A Vicious Report.
Mr. Ford's Recipe.
5 Billion Dollar Infant.
Mr. Budd Goes to Russia.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS MORNING'S newspapers publish a secret report of the 1928 national election made by the secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, now part of the Congressional Record.

The secret report, accusing Jews and Catholics of uniting to beat Hoover, openly accuses religious personalities and religious organizations of voting at an American election on a strictly religious basis.

Vicious discussions and hatreds that have no place in American politics, or American life, will be the outcome of this secret report now published to the whole world.

HENRY FORD says people must keep up their spirits, American farmers must develop mass production as American factories do, wages must not be cut, and everybody must be cheerful.

SOUND ADVICE for everybody except the man out of a job, and the farmer, who doesn't know how to get mass production out of 50 acres.

Mr. Ford lets the workmen stand still while their work passes in front of them. The farmer can't stand still and make the rows of corn or cows pass in front of him.

But Henry Ford is a genius and may find a way.

WALL STREET believes that J. P. Morgan, most powerful figure in American finance, is perfecting an enterprise that will make his late father's big steel company look like a modest investment.

The new enterprise, called in Wall Street slang: "United Corp.," plans a five billion dollar corporation to include practically everything in the way of public utilities in the North Atlantic region.

Steam power, water power, gas, and the great distributing agencies would all be under one hat.

TOMORROW MR. RALPH BUDD, president of the Great Northern Railway, with his son and some first-class railroad engineers, will start for Europe, to be met by representatives of the Soviet commissar of railways at the Russian frontier. Mr. Budd will devote a year to planning reorganization of Russian railways on American lines.

THIS SHOWS that Russia knows something about business, whatever you may think of her politics and social theories.

IN THE House of Commons, Lady Astor, born here, objected to reducing the price of the British workman's beer, Winston Churchill, son of an American woman, couldn't understand how Lady Astor dared to talk about limiting the British worker's cheap beer, "after the ghastly muddle made of the drink trade in her own country." Winston Churchill thought it better to give British workers the benefit of free beer than give American bootleggers the benefit of expensive whisky.

NEW YORK becomes the center of all kinds of high finance. Secret Service uncovers the biggest counterfeiting scheme in history. One million dollars in counterfeit gold certificates were seized. The plant raided would turn out $5,000,000 such bills in a week, a simple way of counteracting hard times.

COMMISSIONER MULROONEY'S New York police having arrested thieves with hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of stolen jewelry in a New York hotel, picking up some of the $1,000 bills thrown out of the window, now find in their safe deposit boxes $1,000,000 worth of stolen jewelry.

DOZENS of witnesses have been called to discuss the proposed naval treaty. The highest officers of the United States Navy have declared against the treaty, calling it unjust to the United States, too favorable to Japan, etc.

All our high officers demand eight-inch guns. England and Japan allow us only six-inch guns.

REAR ADMIRAL WYLIE, wisest of all perhaps, says this country ought to have 70 submarines.

Supremacy in airplanes and submarines would give this country all that it wants, safety from attack, leisure to develop.

NOT VERY long ago, a "million-share day" meant marvelous prosperity for brokers.

Yesterday 2,258,240 shares of stock were sold and brokers called that an absolutely dull day. Some of them sat on the floor of the exchange playing checkers. Others arranged golf games for the Friday, Saturday, Sunday holiday.

Everything is comparative.

Predicts Future Trouble in Pacific if Nation Adheres To Treaty; Hearings Close

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Sharp censure of the American delegates to the London naval conference, for giving up the 21 8-inch gun cruisers which the General Board considers the minimum for national safety, was voiced before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee today by Rear Admiral S. S. Robinson, superintendent of the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Admiral Robison, who bluntly had set forth his views before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday, was one of the last witnesses in the treaty hearings which Chairman Hale ended today.

REITERATES HIS VIEWS

Robison again emphasized the need for more 8-inch gun cruisers than the 18 allowed America under the treaty, with an equal number of 6-inch gun cruisers. Pointing out, as he had previously, that the 8-inch arm is far superior to the smaller caliber gun, he said:

"In fleet tactics, the 6-inch-gun cruiser is helpless. An 8-inch-gun cruiser is not helpless in fleet tactics. It is an effective warship.

"There is no use for anyone to sit here and tell you that for general purposes, the 6-inch-gun is as good as the 8-inch-gun. That argument is untenable."

The submarine clause in the London treaty, giving Japan as well as Great Britain equality with the United States in this type of fighting vessel, Robinson argued, constitutes an even greater advantage for the Oriental nation than the new cruiser provision.

WOULD ALTER RATIO

The latter he averred, would change the American-Japanese cruiser ratio to 5-3, recognized at the Washington arms conference.

DETROIT, May 29.—(AP.)—One possible source of opposition to Senator James Couzens in the September primaries was removed today with announcement by Gov. Fred W. Green at Lansing that he will not be a candidate for senator and that he does not expect to take part in the campaign.

The governor also announced that he will not seek re-election to the office he has held for two two-year terms. Senator Couzens is the only avowed Senate candidate so far in either party.

Associated Press.

The Graf Zeppelin today had rolled up another thousand miles of her journey from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J. The dirigible was 450 miles due east of Cayenne, French Guiana, this forenoon, going 60 miles an hour and rapidly cutting down the distance to the West Indies.

The dirigible had less than a thousand miles left of the journey to Trinidad, or a point at sea opposite that island city. This distance covered, she would pass into the West Indies where her progress would be almost continuously over populous island areas.

SENDS MESSAGE

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, May 29.—(INS.)—A radio message received here today from the Graf Zeppelin gave the latest position of the airship on her flight between Pernambuco, Brazil, and Havana, Cuba. The message said:

"Position at 6 a. m., G. M. T. (2 a. m. Pittsburgh time), 02.40 north latitude, 42:30 west longitude. All well."

Report to Assembly Brings Protest From Philadelphia; Seminary Branch Elects

CINCINNATI, May 29.—(AP.)—The report of the special commission on marriage, divorce and remarriage loomed today as one of the most discussed documents ever prepared for the Presbyterian General Assembly, in session here.

This report drawn up by a committee of which the Rev. Ralph Marshall Davis, of Erie, Pa., is chairman already has drawn a protest from the Philadelphia Presbytery because of the freedom with which it has discussed modern matrimonial problems and attendant sex questions.

GOLF VICTORIES WON BY JONES AND VOIGT

Only Two Americans Remain In British Play; Johnston Gives Bobby Hard Battle

By F. A. WRAY.
International News Service.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 29.—Bobby Jones, greatest of all golfers, and George Voigt, one of the ranking best in the game, alone remained of America's gallant array at the end of a fighting day in the British amateur golf championship late this afternoon. Jones, American open champion, keyed to the tautness of a violin string in his effort to win his first British amateur title, defeated Harrison Johnston, American amateur champion, in a dramatic sixth-round match this afternoon, 1 up, on the home green.

Voigt also went on to the round before the semi-finals by a thrilling finish to win from W. L. Hope, England, 3 up, on the eighteenth green.

DRAMATIC MATCHES

Two matches like these have seldom been staged in any championship anywhere. Jones, seemingly a sure winner when 6 up and 5 to play, almost had heart failure before he got the final putt home to beat the gallant, courageous Johnston on the last green.

No golfer ever before had staged such a comeback against the great Jones. Known as a competitor with the "killer instinct" highly

LOBBY QUIZ TO REPORT RELIGIOUS ATTACK TO SENATE

CHURCH VOTE ACTIVITIES REVEALED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The attack by Dr. Clarence True Wilson on the Catholics and Jews, contained in his secret report to the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, will be the subject of a special report to the Senate before adjournment, Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, said today. He announced:

"Such a report will be prepared, with especial attention paid to this report of Dr. Wilson. It was for this reason that we allowed Deets Pickett, the Methodist Board's research secretary, to leave the stand. I think that we have conclusive evidence of the lobby operations of the board and great light has been thrown on how they operated in the 1928 campaign."

SENATORS ASTONISHED

The Catholic Church, Jews and the "liquor interests" were denounced as part of a combination trying to "scuttle the ship of state," in the secret report on the 1928 presidential election submitted by Dr. Wilson.

The report was so inflammatory that the Senate Lobby Committee, investigating the board's activities, deliberated at length before placing it in the official records. It astonished committee members.

SCORES SMITH BACKERS

The report listed the Smith support as follows:

"We went up against the worst combination that ever fought together in the United States; an effort to corral all the foreigners to get the united voice of one great thoroughly-organized church, which for the first time gave its sisters, its nuns, its religious orders the right to register and voted them almost to a man, and almost to the last woman.

"Then the entire group of weis, the thirsty, and those whose cupidity wanted a continuance of the bootleg trade; an effort to make the Jews believe that they had something in common with the Catholics in this contest, and with the aid of one or two distinguished rabbis, who tried to whip them as a race into line behind the marching column of Al Smith."

The report likewise said the Methodist board contributed $5,000 to help defray the printing bills of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., who led the anti-Smith fight for the Southern Methodist Church. Pickett said this was a mistake because the money was really given to pay for the printing of 400,000 copies of one of Cannon's speeches which was distributed in the Southland.

NYE DUE TODAY IN HARRISBURG

HARRISBURG, May 29.—(AP.)—Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the Senatorial Campaign Funds investigating Committee, was expected at the State Elections Bureau late this afternoon to continue his inquiry into Pennsylvania's senatorial primary.

Nye's visit here is for the announced purpose of scrutinizing expense statements from the various county committees for the Davis-Brown ticket and Senator Joseph R. Grundy. The various campaign treasurers are compelled to file statements of their receipts and disbursements by June 19. To date less than a dozen statements have been received.

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—(AP.)—While the Pennsylvania Republican primary has been over more than a week and Gifford Pinchot has an unofficial lead of 15,000 votes over Francis Shunk Brown, his opponent for the Republican nomination for Governor, the leaders supporting Brown have not conceded the nomination to Pinchot.

In Philadelphia the Pinchot people succeeded in having the Common Pleas Court order 19 ballot boxes opened today, and expect to file petitions for the recounting of the vote in many more, on suspicion of fraud.

In the borough of Archbald, Lackawanna County, the Pinchot leaders want the entire borough vote thrown out on allegations of irregularities.

16,000 PINCHOT MARGIN HERE

Gifford Pinchot probably will carry Allegheny County by 16,000 votes in the official returns now being compiled by the return board.

The figures include the First, Second, Third, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Nineteenth wards, 24 districts of the Fourth and five districts of the Twentieth Ward. The boroughs which are tabulated alphabetically include all those from Aspinwall to Edgeworth; the townships to and including the First district of Mifflin. The third class cities are included in the total.

The return board will finish its work Tuesday, Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong said.

Fifteen other boxes from the Sixth Ward and nine from the Fourth Ward have been brought in by the sheriff for recount.

to one of 5-3-2. This, he asserted, would be dangerous to America.

Robinson said he could find no clause requiring the Japanese to scrap old U-boats when replacements are completed. Pointing out that the treaty would allow them to finish a dozen submarines after 1936, he said:

"A country that has 12 submarines nearly completed, as Japan can have at the end of the treaty term, in addition to her full allotment in the water, is in a very good condition indeed."

WOULD RELY ON U-BOATS

In case of war with Japan, he added, these are the vessels on which that country properly would rely for reducing the navy of its enemy to a size where it could be met on equal terms.

The United States, he went on, may some time agree to free the Philippine Islands, but it will never allow them to be taken from it, nor another country to control them.

Senator Oddie (Rep.), of Nevada, interrupted:

"Then you think the fact Japan has forced us into this position of inferiority will actually lessen its respect for us?"

Admiral Robison instantly replied:

"Yes, I do."

SECRET NOTES UP NEXT

The Foreign Relations Committee will take up next week secret State Department dispatches dealing with the pact.

The Naval Affairs Committee will submit no formal report on the treaty, but Senator Hale, (Rep.), of Maine, Senator Oddie and others plan speeches opposing the document on the floor of the Senate itself.

DRYS ALARMED AT WAVERING IN CONGRESS

Anti-Saloon League Protests Fail to Stem Senate Tide; Sheppard for Referendum

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The sturdy oaks of prohibition that for 10 years have stood firm in all kinds of storms are beginning to sway a little to catch the breeze of popular opinion.

Nearly all of the Senate drys came around today to support the position of Senator Wesley L. Jones (Rep.), of Washington, author of the "five-and-ten" law, that if the people of their respective states want referenda on modification of the Volstead Act they will vote to submit the question to the people.

DRYS ALARMED

It may be that a campaign year has something to do with this remarkable reversal of policy on the part of the Senate's outstanding drys; it may be that they have been impressed by recent polls showing 43 of the 48 states to be anti-dry—but whatever the cause it was apparent today that the Congressional pillars of prohibition will no longer oppose putting prohibition to a popular vote in the various states.

The professional dry organizations like the Anti-Saloon League, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals and kindred associations are deeply disturbed over the situation. They are deluging dry senators with protests against any yielding at all, however slight, to what they consider "propaganda." Nevertheless, so many drys are committing themselves in favor of state referenda that they may find it difficult to oppose them later on.

SHEPPARD JOINS WALSH

Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, who has remained consistently dry despite the fact that his state has twice voted in opposition to prohibition, caused further consternation among the drys today with his statement that he was "perfectly willing" to see prohibition put to the test again in his state, and that he would "stand by the vote in such a referendum." This is further than the Montana senator has ever gone before. He is a candidate for re-election this year, and facing a stiff fight.

Senator Sheppard (Dem.), of Texas, co-author of the Eighteenth Amendment, who is accounted the real dry leader of the Senate, said he would not be inclined to oppose a referendum in Texas if the people wanted it, but he said he was so certain of Texas' aridity that he considered it useless expense and trouble. Sheppard also is a candidate for re-election.

The organized anti-drys, militant now under the leadership of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, are planning to take advantage of the situation that has been created, and press for state referenda wherever possible. It is probable that the forthcoming November elections will see a greater number of states voting directly or indirectly on the question than ever before and that 1932 will see still more of them.

repeal, 14 per cent for the Blue Laws and seven per cent for modification. The ratio remains at 5.8 ballots for repeal to every ballot for the Blue Laws.

The totals are divided between men and women as follows: For the Blue Laws, 2,082 men and 1,819 women; for modification, 1,229 men and 832 women; for repeal, 15,098 men and 7,531 women.

Every one of the 32 Pittsburgh wards is rolling up a majority in favor of repeal of the Blue Laws and in a number of them the ratio for repeal compared to continuance of the laws is more than 20-to-1. North Side wards have been sending in a volume of ballots recently with repeal strongly favored.

Assembly Hears Kerr, Favored for Moderator

By DR. JAMES H. SNOWDEN

CINCINNATI, O., May 29.—The pre-assembly meeting filled yesterday at the Presbyterian General Assembly. A conference on evangelism was held in the forenoon at which the Rev. Dr. Mahy, secretary of evangelism, presided. The two principal addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr and the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Speer.

Dr. Kerr spoke on "The Mirror of Missions," in which by means of charts, he displayed the progress of the leading Protestant churches in the last 75 years, in which the Presbyterian Church made the best showing. He then proceeded to draw important lessons for today.

Dr. Speer spoke on the Holy Spirit.

Other conferences were held on national missions, foreign missions, Christian education and pensions.

In the evening a popular meeting was held in the Taft auditorium on the work of the National Loyalty Commission.

The delegates have practically all arrived and the lines on the moderatorship are being closely drawn. The candidate that will be nominated are Dr. Kerr, of Pittsburgh, the Rev. Dr. Henry B. Master, of Philadelphia; the Rev. Dr. S. G. Craig, of Princeton, N. J., and the Rev. Dr. Howard A. Johnston, of Milwaukee.

Friends of Dr. Kerr are optimistic as to his election.

It was announced that his name would be placed in nomination by Dr. Henry Shapman Swaringen, of St. Paul, Minn., and would be seconded on behalf of the southwestern section and the Pacific coast Presbyterians.

JONES, VOIGT WINNERS

developed—that is, he kept his matches won, once his lead was safe—Jones suddenly was attacked by a rival who would not take "no" for an answer.

Throughout the last five holes, both Americans had been unable to play their shots because of the attentions of an unruly gallery. The latter was particularly interested in Jones' stroking and hardly give him room to swing his clubs, in spite of frantic appeals from the officials.

COMES FROM BEHIND

Voigt had to come from behind to win from the former British Walker Cup player. The American was 3 down after the first three holes, but squared the match in the next three and although he turned home 1 down, he again squared the match at the thirteenth and went on to win.

Jones, Johnston and Voigt were the only three Americans remaining in the tournament after the fifth round, which brought defeat to George Von Elm and Francis Ouimet, Walker Cup team members.

EASY VICTORIES

Jones, Johnston and Voigt all won with comparative ease in the morning. Jones defeated G. O. Watt, 7 up and 6 to play. Johnston stopped D. C. Murray, 5 and 3, while Voigt turned back William Campbell, 4 and 2.

Von Elm was defeated by the 52-year-old Hon. Michael Scott, scion of a famous British golfing and banking family, in a stirring 20-hole match in which the Detroiter came from behind to square the match, only to lose later.

Duncan Off to Paris With Salt for Gandhi

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Wearing his Grecian tunic and sandals, Raymond Duncan sailed today for Europe with a packet of salt he intends to send to Mahatma Gandhi, the imprisoned civil-disobedience leader of India. Duncan said he would take the salt, made from sea water he dipped up at the Battery Tuesday, to the British consul in Paris, with the request that it be sent to Gandhi in India.

DR. ATCHISON HEADS U. P. ASSEMBLY

Ex-Carnegie Pastor Elected Moderator; Pittsburgh Group to Favor Union

DES MOINES, Ia., May 29.—(AP.)—The Rev. Dr. Thomas C. Atchison, of Lawrence, Mass., formerly of Carnegie, Pa., is the new moderator of the United Presbyterian Church of North America. The vote at the General Assembly last night was unanimous.

Dr. Atchison was born in Bloomfield, O., was graduated from Muskingum College and Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. He served 20 years at Carnegie.

He has two sons, Prof. Clyde S. Atchison, of Washington and Jefferson College, and Thomas C., Jr., of Cleveland, O.

WILL SUPPORT UNION

The matter of union with other Presbyterian bodies will be presented by Dr. William J. Reid, of the First United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, chairman of the committee of union.

The proposed merger of the United Presbyterian Church with other denominations will have the support of Pittsburgh ministers and elders attending the assembly.

Denominations involved are the Northern, Southern, United, German Reformed and Dutch Reformed Presbyterian churches.

The Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart, of Pittsburgh, former moderator, believes that it is economic folly for the five churches to continue their separate organization.

SEEK FUND INCREASE

Members of the delegation will ask the assembly to provide means of raising additional funds for home missionary work. Proposed expenditures for this purpose are said to exceed appropriations by $140,000.

Dr. Wishart believes that Pittsburgh has been assured the general assembly in 1932. He said that the sessions probably will be held in the Mt. Lebanon church there.

BOOTLEG CHIEF, GIRL CLAIMS

Harrisburg three years ago. I looked for work and finally got a job as domestic in a North Side hospital. In the district where I lived I became acquainted with people who knew how to make moonshine. I listened to them tell how to make it.

"I wasn't making much at the hospital and decided to enter the moonshine business. I saved $350 and went into business on my own account.

"I bought a still for $100 and 50 barrels at $1.50 apiece, also other things necessary.

'DOING NICE BUSINESS'

"I have been in the business only three weeks. I was doing nicely. I sold the liquor at a legitimate profit. Of course it was against the law and I have been caught.

"If I can't scrape together enough money to pay the fine tomorrow I will have to go to jail. When I get out I'll start in all over again. A girl has to make a living somehow and there's more money in moonshine than lots of other things."

Carol Raps Move to Oust Son as Rumanian King

PARIS, May 29.—(INS.)—Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania, an exile in France, expressed little surprise today when informed of the report from Brussels that Prince Charles, second son of King Albert of Belgium, had been asked to accept the Rumanian throne.

The request is reported to have come from M. Bratianu, Rumanian political leader, on the ground the boy King Michael, son of Prince Carol, is too young to rule as sovereign. Carol declared:

"I am not surprised at this report. Bratianu is capable of anything, but, after all, it is the people who guide the destiny of dynasties—not one man."

The Brussels report declared Bratianu had turned to the Belgian royal house because he felt Michael is too young to inspire public confidence or to insure against the ultimate return of Carol.

BELGRADE, May 29.—(INS.)—Prince Carol of Rumania plans a return to his native land soon, it was reported here today.

M. Titulesco, Rumanian minister to London, is said to have informed Yugoslavian officials of the prince's intention during his recent visit here.

Navy League's President To Tell Faults of Pact

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(Universal.)—An analysis of the London naval treaty will be made by William Howard Gardner, president of the Navy League of the United States in a radio address tonight.

Gardiner has made a critical study of the treaty and the negotiations leading up to its adoption at London. He has been in constant attendance at the hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at which the trea has been dissected and its inequalities to the United States laid bare by naval experts.

In his address Gardiner will point out to his listeners wherein the treaty falls short and fails to safeguard American interest. He will go on the air at 6:30, eastern standard time, over a National Broadcasting Company chain, speaking under the auspices of the Navy League which he heads.

Gardiner has contributed extensively to magazines. He is an exponent to the belief that the United States is a self-sufficient country, with resources and organization sufficient to maintain the nation's economic and industrial independence.

For years he has been active in support of movements to maintain the United States Navy at full strength in relation to the other navies of the world.

Lindbergh to Give Father-in-Law Aerial 'Lift'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 29.—(AP.)—Dwight W. Morrow today announced he was going to take advantage of the fact he has a flier for a son-in-law.

The senatorial candidate, who speaks here tonight, has an engagement tomorrow morning to dedicate a monument at Camp Merritt, near Tenafly.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will pick up Morrow here tomorrow, on his way back home from Washington, and land him at Newark in time to reach Camp Merritt for the dedication speech

Jefferson Davis Wins Niche In Capitol Hall of Fame

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(INS.)—Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, and Senator James Z. George have won places in the Capitol's Hall of Fame as the two greatest sons of Mississippi.

Bronze statues of both, gifts from the state, have been placed in an obscure corner of Statuary Hall, awaiting dedication exercises.

A Mississippi committee is expected here soon to confer with Capitol authorities on plans for the dedication. There have been reports, however, such exercises may not be held.

Years ago, it is said, protests were made against placing a statute of the Confederate leader in the Capitol. Under the law, however, each state has the right to name the two native sons who shall be represented in the Hall of Fame and protests are unavailing.

Capitol attaches expect no untoward incidents to mark unveiling of the bronze figures. Gen. Robert E. Lee, Gen. Stonewall Jackson and other Southern leaders are represented in the Hall of Fame, as well as Union generals.

SURAT, BOMBAY, India., May 29.—(AP.)—A year of rigorous imprisonment was the sentence imposed today on Chimanhal Chincy, president of the Surat National Congress committee and leader of the League of Youth of India, for inciting salt raids.

Chincy, awakened before daybreak, was charged with inciting members of his party to join the civil disobedience campaign, also with leading them in the raid on the Dharasana Salt depot.

Taken before the city magistrate, he pleaded guilty as is the custom with followers of Mahatma Gandhi.

Immediately after his arrest a hartal—a cessation of industry in mourning for the loss of another leader—began throughout the district.

NEW OUTBREAK QUELLED

RANGOON, Burma, May 29.—(AP.)—Military pickets and police patrols were dispatched to the outskirts of the city to quell a new disturbance there this morning.

Meanwhile the latest report showed 81 persons dead, 382 patients inside and 390 outside hospitals as a consequence of rioting between Burmese and Hindu dock workers, earlier in the week. Other estimates said 100 were killed and 960 injured.

The main Indian business quarters still were closed today. Shipping was at a standstill. The streets have not been cleaned for days, constituting a menace to health.

Priests and Indian leaders are continuing their efforts to settle communal differences.

PLAN TO DEFY LAW

BOMBAY, India, May 29.—(AP.)—Twenty-nine Nationalist volunteers left here today for Sholapur, where they will defy martial law regulations prohibiting display of the Nationalist flag. Several arrests already have been made there.

Bombay Nationalist Congress criers last night paraded the city, calling on the people to join today in a procession with the body of a non-volunteer salt raider who died of injuries received Sunday in the raid at Wadala.

NEW GEM CACHE IN CHICAGO

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Police announced today that a safe deposit box held by Robert Nelson and believed to contain about $200,000 worth of jewels had been found in the First National Bank of Chicago.

Gems valued at a million dollars were found in Nelson's deposit boxes here Tuesday. He is charged with receiving stolen goods.

Police are considering the possibility that the robberies in which the jewels were stolen were directed from the gangland haunts of Cicero, Ill., operating base of Al Capone.

An application for a search warrant to permit opening the Nelson box in Chicago would be made to the Superior Court of Chicago.

A telegram from Hot Springs (Ark.) police today asked that two of four men arrested here with a woman last week in the jewel theft roundup be held.

It was assumed they were wanted in connection with the killing there last September of Preston Austin, Victoria (Tex.) rancher.

Nelson, arrested the day after the others with $1,000,000 worth of reputedly stolen jewels, was admitted to $25,000 bail yesterday.

WAR MOTHERS OFF TO HEAR PERSHING

Leave Brussels to Share In Memorial at Somme; First Group Over Returning

BRUSSELS, May 29.—(AP.)—The visit by the Gold Star mothers of the Twenty-seventh Division to Brussels ended today and most of the contingent departed for St. Quentin, en route to the Bony department of the Somme, where Gen. Pershing will preside at tomorrow's Memorial Day ceremonies.

Other groups left Brussels for the Aisne, Marne, Oise and Aisne-Marne and Oise-Aisne and for the St. Mihiel cemeteries. The last group to go was the contingent of 13 headed for Waereghem, site of the only American cemetery in Belgium, where they will remain three days.

Eighty veterans of the Twenty-seventh Division, with members of their families, who also had been visiting here, left this morning for a trip to the Flanders battlefields, where the division participated in engagements during the last Flanders offensive. They also went to Waereghem cemetery, where wreaths were placed on the graves of fallen comrades.

The Schelde Bridge, built by contributions from Ohio, was another point on their itinerary.

This group will return to Brussels tonight and the entire party go to St. Quentin tomorrow for the Bony Cemetery Memorial Day ceremony with the Gold Star mothers who already have left for France.

FIRST GROUP RETURNING

LIQUOR SEIZURE HELD ILLEGAL

Seizure of liquor in the home of Vincent Rzasa, 2024 Sarah street, by prohibition agents was held illegal by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson. He ordered the search warrant quashed and the liquor suppressed as evidence.

The warrant authorized the search in a club in the rear part of the first floor of a building at the Sarah street address. The court held that testimony given at a hearing on the petition of Rzasa for the suppression of the evidence did not show the existence of a club on the premises.

The court pointed out that instead of confining the search to the part of the house designated in the warrant, agents searched the entire house, and liquor was taken from parts of the building other than that which was authorized.

OPEN SWITCH BLAMED IN CRASH

Eight Victims in Hospital; Motormen Given Warning Against Speeding Cars

Motormen of the Pittsburgh Railways Company today received a warning against speeding. In a wreck last midnight 19 passengers were injured when a Mt. Lebanon car hopped the tracks at an open switch and rammed an iron pole at West Liberty avenue and Brookline Junction.

The warning was a notice posted at the South Hills Junction Railways office. It read:

"Operators of Routes 38 and 39 must consume 6½ minutes from Brookline Boulevard to Tunnel office."

The warning was ordered posted before the accident and was not issued as a result of it, company officials stated.

More than a score of passengers were thrown from their seats when the car, a one-man type operated by A. G. Hogan, of 220 Hargrove street, was brought to a stop when it rammed against the pole, loosening it from its concrete base. The car was city-bound when it ran into the open switch. It made a sharp turn to the right and then careened about 30 feet.

PASSENGERS IN PANIC

Armelia Goldstrom, 15, of 1930 Plainview avenue, who received lacerations, supplied an eye-witness version:

"We were traveling at what I thought was a rapid pace. The car started rocking. Suddenly broken glass was flying through the car. The passengers were frantic and running towards the doors. All I could think of was to pray."

Ordinarily the switch at that point, officials of the railways company said, is set for the motorman to proceed straight ahead. Last night, a few minutes before the accident, another car was taken from the Tunnel barns through Brookline Junction. The switch had been opened to permit its passage. It apparently had been left open, it was said.

Five of the passengers, taken to Mercy Hospital and kept there for observation, were Dorothy Goldstrom, 21, and her sister, Armelia, 15, of 1930 Plainview avenue; Mrs. Bertha Doege, 43, and her son, Charles, 14, of 860 East Ohio street, and Gertrude Hofscher, 37, of 2948 Howley avenue.

Fairbanks to End Trip in Airplane

HOLLYWOOD, May 29.—(INS.)—Douglas Fairbanks, returning from a trip to France and England, is expected to arrive Sunday morning by airplane from Arizona, it was announced at his studio today.

Stevens Quits as Director Of Chicago Art Theater

CHICAGO, May 29.—(AP.)—Thomas Wood Stevens has resigned as director of the Goodman Memorial Theater, a position he had held since it was founded five years ago. Hopeless disagreement with the theater committee over the question of art or profit, was given as the reason.

Twenty members of the Goodman company, including the two directors, Whitford Kane and B. Iden Payne, signed a statement indorsing Stevens' stand.

Thomas W. Stevens founded the department of drama at Carnegie Institute of Technology, first in the country to give the degree of Bachelor of Arts to graduates. After 10 years in that capacity, he went to Chicago in 1924 to direct the Goodman Memorial Theater. Payne is a visiting director, specializing in Shakespeare at Carnegie Tech. He presented "Love's Labor Lost" this spring.

Chester M. Wallace, present head of the Tech drama department, expressed regret over the resignation. Stevens, he said, undertook the task because of his warm friendship for Kenneth Goodman, in whose memory the theater was erected.

Martin, Phipps' Grandson, To Wed in '400' Romance

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Widespread interest was aroused in society circles here by announcement of the engagement of Miss Katherine Kennedy Tod to H. Bradley Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin.

Mr. Martin is a grandson of the late Bradley Martin and of the late Henry Phipps, of Pittsburgh, at one time partner of Andrew Carnegie.

For several years there were rumors of Martin's engagement to Miss Valerie French, granddaughter of the late Earl of Ypres, despite repeated denials from Miss French and Mr. Martin.

When Martin suffered injuries in a motor car wreck in Colorado, Miss French visited him at a hospital in Denver.

The future Mrs. Martin is a member of the Junior League and the Colonial Dames of America. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Tod, of Park avenue.

Amy Johnson Uninjured As Plane Crashes

SYDNEY, Australia, May 29.—(INS.)—Amy Johnson, youthful British aviatrix who recently completed a solo flight from England to Australia, crashed her light Moth biplane in landing at Brisbane but escaped injury today.

Miss Johnson attempted to land her plane crosswind. The Moth shot into a field adjoining the Brisbane aerodrome.

Both wings of the Moth crumpled up and the propeller was snapped off. The undercarriage and the cockpit escaped damage.

A wild burst of echoing cheers greeted Miss Johnson when she climbed out of the cockpit and rode in an automobile to the aerodrome, where thousands greeted her.

GRAF ZEP RACES OVER OCEAN TO CUBA

EXCLUSIVE

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Special Radio Dispatch

Aboard the Graf Zeppelin, enroute to Havana and Lakehurst, May 29.—Running at an average speed of 60 miles an hour, the Graf Zeppelin is now leaving the equator far in its wake.

We "crossed the line" for the second time in this voyage at 10 o'clock last night (9 p. m. Pittsburgh time) far out of sight of the Brazilian coastline.

EATING UP AIR'

Still under an overcast sky but under weather conditions much more favorable than at our departure from Recife in the morning the huge airship is "eating up" the air miles between us and Havana.

When we passed the equator at the fortieth meridian, 700 miles of the 4,500-mile hop to Havana were behind us. At that time we were 200 miles due north of Avarcy on the Brazilian coast and 700 miles east of the estuary of the Amazon.

FIERCE BLACK CLOUDS

At sundown, a wall of ominous black clouds loomed ahead.

"That won't be as bad as it looks," remarked Dr. Eckener as I stood beside him on the bridge.

We dashed into the blackness at 68 miles an hour. The vertical currents shot the ship up so far it made me dizzy, but we were through it in a moment and again flew slowly.

At 8 o'clock, while dinner was being served, we ran into a short squall.

We caught our last glimpse of South America at 3:15 p. m. (2:15 p. m., Pittsburgh time), about an hour after we passed Natal. With only four motors running the Graf turned its nose on a more northerly course. Dr. Eckener seems bent on economizing on the fuel, saying "There's no hurry."

WREATH FOR HERO

Were we to turn the nose of the Graf eastward now we would be in Seville as quickly as we shall be in Havana.

At 2:20 p. m. (1:20 p. m., Pittsburgh time) we passed over Natal. A light drizzle was falling as we sighted the important air center, right on the "elbow" of Brazil's coastline.

In honor of Augusto Severo, the Brazilian national hero, a wreath tied with the Brazilian and German colors was dropped from a cabin window. A note attached asked that it be placed on the hero's statue in Natal.

We could see a crowd scurry for the wreath and watched the men stand with bared heads as our request was fulfilled.

Ahead of us lies Havana, which we expect to make some time Friday, and New York, over which we should soar, by present calculations, some time Sunday. After flying over New York, Dr. Hugo Eckener expects to moor at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval station. Two or three days later he will start home for Friedrichshafen, where he hopes to land June 9.

CALL ZEP "AIR SHARK"

Despite the rains at Recife, there was again a huge crowd at the landing field yesterday morning. Even the weather could not dampen the interest they display in our mammoth air liner.

In the minds of many of them the Zeppelin is compared with the huge sharks that infest the warm waters of the Atlantic off their harbor. They call the dirigible "the air-shark"—a new phrase among the many that have been conjured up to describe the Graf.

The Zeppelin took off just as the sun that had played with us all morning burst through the clouds for the third time. The field was in a tumult as we floated upward. Slowly the shouts of the crowd, the shrieking of sirens, the hooting whistles and the explosions of holiday firecrackers died away, and we were again alone in the air.

FAREWELL TOUR

Before heading northward, Dr. Eckener took his ship for a farewell tour of the city. Beneath us the rooftops were black with people, the streets jammed with automobiles, their drivers crowding the roadway, their faces turned upward. Before us glistened the Atlantic.

Like passengers on an ocean liner lying at dock in a fogbound harbor waiting for the weather to clear so that the steamer can leave the dock, so the 20 Zeppelin passengers waited aboard the Graf for the sun to break through the slaty clouds to draw off several tons of water from the vast surface of the airship.

All the passengers had been aboard promptly at 7 a. m., the time scheduled for the take-off. Scarcely was the last piece of baggage aboard when a veritable tropical cloud burst thoroughly drenched the ship, adding tons to its weight.

U. S. Writer Held After Covering Graf Flight

RIO JANEIRO, May 29.—(AP)—Chauncey B. Wightman, correspondent in Brazil for the New York Times, and Leo K. Bouron of Finland, were detained last night by maritime police after they had arrived here by airplane because inspectors found cameras in their baggage.

A Brazilian law prohibits flying over fortified cities with cameras, and since it is impossible to reach Rio Janeiro without flying over the harbor forts, tourists with cameras in their baggage have been detained in recent weeks.

Mr. Wightman was returning from Pernambuco, where he covered the visit of the Graf Zeppelin.

LEGION HEADS GET MEDALS

Medals commemorating the services of 13 past commanders were presented at the twelfth annual banquet of Burt Foster Post No. 361, American Legion, in Elks' temple, Market street, McKeesport, last night. Mayor George H. Lysle gave the address of welcome, and Dr. Andrew Hunter was toastmaster. State and national legion leaders were speakers.

Those presented medals were Theodore Petty, retiring commander; Harry M. Jones, Robert C. Calhoun, Stanley Douglas, Bernard Ragner, Clarence C. Johnson, Paul Mack, John Bligh, Ralph H. Pitzer, Edward H. Hoak, Daniel Marsh, Paul Whitehead and J. H. Newlin. County Commander Edward Crump, Jr., made the presentation speech.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 29.—John M. Short, 77, former deputy United States marshal for Northern West Virginia, police officer of Wheeling, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad police chief and captain of the United States secret service at the Worlds Fair at Chicago, died here yesterday following a brief illness. He had operated a private detective agency here for some time.

ZEP GIVES NEW FLIERS THRILL

EXCLUSIVE

By LADY DRUMMOND-HAY
Special Radio Dispatch.

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, En Route to Havana and Lakehurst, May 29.—Three of the four new passengers who boarded the Graf at Recife yesterday morning and are making their maiden airship flight are already ardent "Zeppelineers."

The fourth new passenger is William B. Leeds, the American millionaire who was with us on the Zeppelin's round-world flight. To him the experience is nothing new.

The reaction of new passengers is always interesting to observe. I. H. Durrell, vice-president of the National City Bank, of New York, is enthusiastic in his praise of airship travel.

"This is certainly more comfortable and enjoyable than any plane flying of which I have much," he said to me.

Darke Bhering Mattos, Jr., son of Brazil's chocolate and coffee king, and Valentin F. Boucas, general manager of the Hollerith Company, Rio de Janeiro, the two other new passengers, are both equally surprised at the comfort we have.

Dr. Hugo Eckener's "Captain's table" changes with each leg of our flight. This time Prince Alfonso, Col. Herrer, Capt. Breithaupt, Karl von Wiegand, and myself are seated at it.

All the passengers are happy at the escape from the heat of Recife and are glad to again be in the air.

It was estimated that the damage will run into millions. More than 200,000 acres are under water.

Wife, Furniture Gone, Asks Divorce

An empty apartment, with all his furniture removed to a storage house and his wife gone, greeted Harry A. Klein, of the Frontenac apartments, South Highland avenue, when he came home April 20, 1928, according to his bill of particulars filed in Common Pleas Court.

He asked a divorce from Mrs. Alice R. Klein, of 5871 Ellsworth avenue, on the grounds of desertion. He alleges she removed the furniture from their apartment, 7418 Penn avenue, owned by him, and stored it in her own name. They were married October 13, 1919.

QUEEN GREETS 6 AMERICANS

LONDON, May 29.—(AP.)—Six American women were among those presented to Queen Mary and her son, the Duke of Gloucester, at last night's last royal court, which in many ways was the high-water mark of one of London's most brilliant seasons in recent years.

The two and one-half hours' wait in the late afternoon sun and the absence of King George, who is suffering from an attack of inflammatory rheumatism, did not in any way detract from the thrill the scores of debutantes had when they were presented.

The six American women presented were: Mrs. Hoffman Nickerson, of Oyster Bay, N. Y.; Mrs. Franklin Terry, of New York City; Miss Maxine Adams, of Rexburg, Ida.; Miss Carolyn Apperson Leech, of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Jacob Bauer, of Chicago, and Mrs. Edward Spafford, of New York City.

FATHER SEEKS BOY PRODIGY

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Nine-year-old Ruggiero Ricci, San Francisco violinist, who attracted attention by his playing in Carnegie Hall and other places, has become the object of legal contention.

His father, Pietro Ricci, obtained a writ of habeas corpus requiring Mary Elizabeth Lackey, guardian of Ruggiero, to show cause why the boy and his brother, Giorgio, also a violinist, should not be given into their father's custody.

Ricci charged the children's health has been endangered by exploitation of their musical talent by Miss Lackey. He also attacked the validity of Miss Lackey's guardianship, saying she was given papers of guardianship in California in 1928 by Judge Lincoln S. Rich, of Alameda County, who did not have jurisdiction.

He also said signatures of himself and wife on the adoption papers had been obtained by false representation, and added that he and his wife had not seen their children for more than a year, nor received any money from their earnings.

RASKOB DENIES PLAN TO QUIT

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Returning from a European trip, John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, denied rumors he would resign that post.

He expressed the belief proposed increases in the tariff would act as a boomerang against American industry and praised the recent Supreme Court decision that purchasers of liquor were not guilty of a crime. The decision represents a "common sense" attitude, he said.

MORROW SEES BETTER TIMES

ATLANTIC CITY N J May 29 —(INS.)—"This year is a period for courage," Dwight W Morrow candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, so declared this afternoon in an address at a luncheon in the Hotel Chelsea. Morrow confined himself to the economic situation, making no reference to prohibition, somewhat to the surprise of the several hundred Republican leaders of Atlantic City who attended the luncheon.

Mr. Morrow declared:

"While we cannot predict with accuracy when changes in business may come, we can have faith that a great people, with a great industrial plant, and with ample credit resources, will go on with their work, raising still higher their standard of living, raising still higher their power of consuming goods for the durable satisfaction of life, furnishing more employment to each other by a further multiplication of the interchange of goods and services."

STRIKE THREAT FOR 6-HR. DAY

Demands of the Plasterers' Local Union No. 31 for a six-hour day at eight-hour wages may result in a walkout Monday.

John F. Taylor, president of Master Plasterers' Association, today declared no settlement was reached between committees of both organizations meeting last night.

The wage agreement expires Sunday.

The union seeks the change of a basis of providing more employment for the trade. The present wage scale is $15.30 a day, which the union seeks to be continued for the shorter hours.

Mr. Taylor declared the change would not provide sufficient additional employment. The employers are willing to continue last year's scale, he said.

River Gives Up Body Of Jeweled Woman

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—The body of a woman upon whose finger was a diamond-studded ring and about whose neck was a copper wire drawn tight, was found today in the Harlem River a few blocks from the Yankee Stadium.

Police estimated the corpse had been in the water at least two months. About the wrist was a white gold watch. The ring was set with nine diamonds and two sapphires.

Contractor Fined On Woman's Charge

Frank J. Lamont, 34, a building contractor, of 2022 Charles street, was fined $50, with the alternative of serving 30 days in the workhouse, by Magistrate T. D. Jones in Morals Court today.

Police testified that Lamont was arrested yesterday on complaint of a woman who said he acted improperly on a Charles street trolley car. Lamont denied the charge. He paid the fine.

POLICE BLAMED BY ACCUSED BOY

William Conover, 16, of 530 Main street, informed Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today that he and other youths were permitted to play pool in his neighborhood, although it was against the law, as the policeman on the beat "had fixed it up for them."

The youth told of frequenting poolrooms in admitting the theft of $10 yesterday from the home of Miss Mary Graham, 739 East Ohio street.

Patrolman A. J. Judas spied the bill in the crack of a telephone pole as he was questioning Conover near his home, he testified. The youth was turned over to social workers.

POISONED RUM KILLS PRISONER

A prisoner who had been arrested for drunkenness died in St. John's Hospital last night of "poison liquor," according to a report to the coroner, and a second man, arrested with him, was reported in serious condition today.

James J. Golden, 35, of Metropolitan street, died an hour after he was arrested. John W. Wallace, 40, of Rush street, in serious condition, told police they had bought the stuff in a Beaver avenue book store.

Woods Run police quoted Dr. A. E. Chadwick as saying that Golden had died of "poison liquor." After Golden's death hospital authorities instructed police to bring back Wallace, who had been treated earlier.

ONE PRESCRIPTION MADE FAMILY DOCTOR FAMOUS

Seldom has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than that of Dr. Caldwell in 1885, when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over Dr. Caldwell wrote the prescription as he found men, women and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, no energy, lack of appetite, and similar things.

Demand for this prescription grew so fast, because of the pleasant, quick way it relieved such symptoms of constipation, that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is always ready at any drugstore.

CAR CONDUCTOR TELLS HOW NEW KONJOLA WORKED

Suffered Three Years — Famed Medicine First To Bring Relief From Ailments

Don't harbor any doubts about the merits of Konjola, the medicine that has been quick to win new fame and friends everywhere it has been introduced and put to the test. Get all the facts about this medicine that triumphs even after all else tried has been found wanting. Hear the remarkable story of this new and different medicine from the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh. See for yourself how Konjola, taken after meals, works with the food you eat in cleansing and stimulating the ailing organs, and in aiding Nature in paving the way for the return of new and vigorous health.

Take, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mr. Mark P. Lovett, street car conductor, 40 East Roseridge avenue, Bellevue, Pittsburgh. After all, results are what count in any medicine, and Konjola's success rests upon its proven ability to give splendid results. Even though Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals, it quickly brings relief, and a treatment of from four to eight bottles brings amazing results. Read, now, the words of Mr. Lovett, who recently said to the Konjola Man:

"I was generally rundown in health. I was weak, tired and worn-out each morning. I had stomach trouble that caused gas and bloating after eating. I also had headaches and dizzy spells. I was in this condition for about three years. I spent hundreds of dollars in an effort to get relief. I have paid as high as fifty dollars for examinations.

"Someone recommended Konjola and I got some right away. I didn't notice any results until after the second bottle. Then I felt refreshed each morning and ready for my day's work as conductor for the Street Railway Company. The gas and bloating disappeared and my food digests a lot better. Headaches are less frequent and my bowels are in more normal condition. It is worth so much to get relief that I am glad to indorse Konjola."

Konjola will produce results that will amaze those with the most stubborn ailments. It is recommended that six or eight bottles be taken as a fair trial.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold by all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

THOUGHT HIS BACK HAD BEEN SPRAINED
World's Tonic Gave Mr. O. C. Bayter Double Relief

"I thought I had sprained my back in handling some heavy machinery one day in the factory," declared Mr. O. C. Bayter, of East Liverpool, O., who works in one of the factories in that thriving city. "It hurt me so that I put hot towels on it that night and tried to heat out the pain. The next day my back was so lame that I feared it all I could. But the pain hung on as no strain had a right to, and after a couple of weeks I began to fear it might be from my kidneys. I had had a considerable amount of trouble with constipation, and I thought some of the strong medicine I had to take two or three times a week for this might be injuring the kidneys. So I tried two or three kinds of kidney medicines, but without any good result. This thing worried me so that I did not eat very well, and I was not sleeping good either. Between the pain and the worry I was very restless, and I began to lose weight.

"I felt that I must have a good tonic to keep up my strength, and entirely without thought that it might benefit my kidneys I commenced taking World's Tonic. The first pleasing thing I noticed was that this medicine was regulating my bowels. After I had taken a bottle of it I had two passages regularly every day, and that alone made me glad I had used World's Tonic. But after I had taken two bottles I noticed that the pain in my back was less severe, and then one night I slept all through without any sign of pain.

"Making this story as short as I can, after three bottles of World's Tonic I had neither bowel nor kidney trouble, and my back felt as good as it ever did. Believing that kidney trouble was like receiving money from home, I had not expected it, and I, therefore, felt a big winner. But I have since learned that several others in the factory had used it for kidney trouble, and all of them agree with me that it certainly is a wonderful medicine." World's Tonic is sold by Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and all other first-class drug stores. (A-31)

GREED OF DRY AGENTS LAID TO FANATICS

Seattle Newspaper Tells Of Causes Leading to Indictment of Officials

SEATTLE, Wash., May 29.—The Seattle Times today discussed the indictment of dry officers in this district in its editorial columns. The Times says:

Seattle and the Federal prohibition district of which this city is headquarters, are due for much disagreeable notoriety. Indictment of the highest dry officers of the Pacific Northwest on charges of violating the laws they were sworn to enforce can give pleasure only to the comparatively few personal enemies of these men, and must otherwise be regarded with profound regret. It isn't good for the city or the country, to say nothing of the cause of prohibition, to have men so high in authority brought under enough suspicion to justify indictment and arrest.

Dry law enforcement methods of this district have been subject to the frequent and just criticism of fair minded citizens. That is probably true in all districts, since enforcement agents everywhere long ago learned that they might depend upon the active support of fanatical drys in any and every practice, no matter how abusive and violent. The service generally has attracted an inferior class of men. There have been no standards of fitness, no rules of conduct. It has been an indiscriminate and at times a shameful scramble.

Apart from any consideration of the guilt or innocence of those now under indictment here, public resentment has been stirred in this district by the partly successful attempt to bring all branches of Federal government service under the immediate personal control of the prohibition office. Too much greed for power in that office; the persistent impudence of the local mouthpiece of the Anti-Saloon League, and the bland arrogance of Senator Wesley L. Jones, have been more productive of unpopularity for this prohibition unit than any of its efforts at enforcement or any of its alleged offenses.

Navy Won't Cancel Second Dirigible

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(INS.)—The Navy Department has no intention of canceling its contract for the second of two great dirigible airships, the first of which already is under construction at Akron, O., Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, told the House Naval Affairs Committee.

Moffett made this statement to emphasize the need for building a dirigible base on the Pacific Coast.

Morgan was arrested last week, but broke out of jail at Lumberport. Three others have been jailed as members of the alleged band of safe crackers.

Girl's $1,000 Prize Means Schooling

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., May 29.—(AP.)—The victory of 13-year-old Helen Jensen in the national spelling bee at Washington spelled education for her.

Mrs. Mary Jensen, mother of the new champion, had found it rather difficult to keep Helen and five other children in school since the death of her husband, 12 years ago, and her plans had called for Helen to go to work after she completed her eighth-grade work.

But things are different now. With the $1,000 cash prize Helen won, there is no need for her to go to work. Instead, she will enter high school in September.

VOTE UPHOLDS LABOR RULE

LONDON, May 29.—(AP.)—The Labor Government of Ramsay MacDonald last night weathered another attempt by the opposition to upset it. The Labor opponents failed by 29 votes to pass a motion calling for reduction of the salary of J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and unofficial minister of unemployment.

The vote was 270 against to 241 for the motion which was introduced for the purpose of obtaining debate on England's serious unemployment problem.

This is the second time the question has exercised the House of Commons in the last two weeks. On the first division the Government won by a majority of only 15.

2 DIE IN WRECK OF FAST TRAIN

FLINT, Mich., May 29.—(AP.)—The Montreal-Chicago Inter-City Limited, passenger train on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, ran into an open switch at Belsay, five miles east of here, late yesterday, while traveling between 60 and 65 miles an hour. The engineer and fireman were killed and five others injured. No passengers were hurt seriously.

The dead are Engineer Arthur Morden and Fireman Clyde Pierce, both of Battle Creek.

The passengers are believed to have been saved from injury by the presence of several empty coaches between the diner and the rest of the train. These coaches were cut into the train to take on members of the Flint High School band who were waiting at the station in Flint to start their trip to Lincoln, Neb., where they were to participate in a high school band contest.

Easy to keep hands lovely

"REAL FOLKS" Headliner

MISS VIRGINIA FARMER says that she has learned a delightfully simple way to keep her hands soft and smooth and she wants to tell you about it. You know, she plays the part of Aunt Martha Thompkins in the popular radio program "Real Folks" which is broadcast every Monday night at 9:30 over station WJZ or KDKA. Probably you've heard her friendly voice over the air. Now try her beauty suggestion:

Miss Farmer says: "I have found that there is nothing better than plain 'Vaseline' Petroleum Jelly to keep my hands in perfect condition. A light film of it applied after washing the hands is usually sufficient, but in case of chapping or special dryness I advise you to use it more generously at night and wear cotton or silk gloves to bed.

"Even one such treatment make the hands wonderfully soft and smooth. 'Vaseline' Jelly is fine for the manicure, too—keeps the cuticle smooth and unbroken. Do try it."

DENVER TO GET FIELD MEMORIAL

DENVER, Col., May 29.—(AP.)—The old home of Eugene Field, author and poet, is to be moved to one of Denver's city parks this summer for use as a new branch of the Public Library.

A move by Joseph G. Brown, close friend of Field's, to have the home made a permanent public memorial failed, but Mrs. J. J. Brown, Denver society matron, purchased the residence at Brown's instance and offered it to the city.

The new branch probably will be known as the Eugene Field Memorial Library, and one corner will be reserved for a collection of articles used by Field when he lived in Denver.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgher To Marry In East

This week-end and the early days of next week will resound with wedding bells, and as soon as the horse show, to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, is over, they'll peal forth again, and will make the hills reverberate all the month of June.

One wedding of interest here will take place tomorrow in Princeton, N. J., when Katherine Gauss, daughter of Dean and Mrs. Christian Gauss, of the university, will become the bride of Andrew Jackson, son of the John J. Jacksons, of Pittsburgh.

The wedding will take place in the university chapel with the president of Princeton, Dr. John Grier Hibben, officiating, assisted by Dr. Alfred H. Barr, of Chicago, and the Rev. Robert Russell Wicks, dean of the chapel.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear a gown of eggshell satin in the empire mode and a veil of tulle with a cap of rose point lace, and will carry bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Her two sisters, Natalie and Hildegarde, as maids of honor, will be her only attendants, and will wear green point d'esprit gowns with picture hats of leghorn with streamers of green velvet, and will carry arm bouquets of garden flowers.

Lovely Gowns

D. Christian Gauss, the bride-elect's brother, will be best man, and Lewis W. Hicks, Jr., James Hardy and William Puehlhart, of Pittsburgh, George Stephenson, S. T. McClintock, Charles Kyle and John Lockwood, of New York, will be ushers.

Following the wedding will be a reception in the Gauss home.

Mr. Jackson and his bride-to-be are planning to spend a month in Europe, and will be in Princeton for the remainder of the summer. In the fall they will be at home in New York.

Mr. Jackson is a graduate of Princeton, class of 1926, and of Harvard University Law School, class of 1928.

Among the Pittsburgh guests in addition to the ushers will be the John J. Jacksons, the bridegroom's father and mother, Mrs. Harold Shirk and Mrs. W. S. Brower, his sisters; Mrs. James Hardy, Mrs. Marian Lawler and Mrs. Lewis W. Hicks, Jr.

Today I want to talk about one of our June brides-to-be, Clarissa Howe Reed, daughter of the Samuel Clarke Reeds, of Murray Hill avenue, whose marriage to Paul Robbins Haviland, son of the Walter W. Havilands, of the Knoll, Landsowne, Pa., will take place Tuesday, June 24, in the Calvary Episcopal Church at 5 o'clock.

Clarissa has named her bridal party, including her two sisters, Ellinor, who'll be maid of honor, and Alice, who'll be a bridesmaid. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Samuel Clarke Reed, Jr., will be a bridesmaid, too, as will Eleanor Longenecker, Nancy Brown, Juliet Hillman, Ellen McClay, Elinor Munroe and Betty Wells, all members of Pittsburgh's younger set.

Harris Goddard Haviland, of Philadelphia, will be his brother's best man, and Samuel Clarke Reed, Jr., and James B. Reed, Clarissa's brothers, will be ushers. Others who'll serve as ushers are Allen Fisher and James Kuhn, of Pittsburgh; Wilson Book, of Sewickley; Robert Bates, of Ardmore, Pa.; De Long Monahan, of Ridgewood, N. J., and Howard Comfort, of Haverford, a cousin of the bridegroom-elect.

There are a great many entertainments being given the week of the horse show, which is to take place next week on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Allegheny Country Club show ring. And the Thomas Atterbury McGinleys are to take their guests to the clubhouse for a dance on Saturday evening, June 7, followed a buffet supper for 42 guests which they will give in their Sewickley Heights estate, "Oak Knoll," in honor of Mary Elizabeth Floyd, their debutante daughter, and Edward S. Moore, Jr., of New York, their nephew, who will be a guest of his uncle and aunt, Capt. and Mrs. Cyrus R. Miller, of East Drive, Sewickley, during the horse show.

Dinner Dance

And on Friday the Robert H. McCagues and the F. Bourdette Kirkendalls, of Sewickley, will give a dinner in the clubhouse, in honor of the John C. Stewarts, of Keswick, Va., who will be guests during the horse show of Mrs. Robert Nevin Standish, of Edgeworth lane, Edgeworth, a sister of Mr. Stewart's.

Haven't you noticed that a great many Pittsburghers are visiting or planning to visit Europe this year? On Saturday Mrs. John Miller Freeman, of Ellsworth avenue, and her daughter, Evelyn, will sail on the Franconia for England, where they will visit relatives and will motor through the lake district. And they will visit Scotland, too, then cross over to France to spend some time in Paris. They will return the latter part of July and will go directly to their summer home in Bass Rocks, Me., where they will join Mrs. Freeman's mother, Mrs. K. C. Lippa, and John Guffey Freeman.

To Visit Europe

Yesterday the Longue Vue Country Club was the scene of a bridge-luncheon given in honor of Mrs. Hilary Kenelm Binns, the former Eloise L. Roman, of Cumberland, Md., by her two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Sidney Whittier Binns and Mrs. Winfield Holden Binns. The guest of honor was a bride of November.

Aides for the affair were Harriet Fickes, Nancy Brown, Harriet Wainwright, Mrs. James Henry, Jr., Frances Henry, Mrs. Neilan Otterbein and Ursula Reilly.

Miss Helen Latchshaw, of Pittsburgh, will be a bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Margaret E. Cook, daughter of Dr. Charles R. Cook, of New York, and Gordon L. Leach, son of Mrs. Walter B. Leach, of Brookline, Mass., which will take place June 12, in the Appleton Chapel of Harvard University. Officiating will be the Rev. Sydney Nussher, of New York. Miss Helen Gillespie, of Boston, will be the maid of honor, and the other bridesmaids will include Mrs. W. Barton Leach and Mrs. David Whiting, of Brookline; Miss Alma Kline, of Nyack; Miss Esther Wise, of Brookline, and Miss Susan Gill, of Louisville. The ushers will be members of Mr. Leach's class at Harvard. After the ceremony there will be a reception in the Belmont Spring Country Club.

Denver Meet Drawing Few From Here

Fewer Pittsburgh club women than usual are planning to attend the General Federation biennial, which is to be held in Denver June 5 to 14. Indeed, it is scarcely probable that anyone except Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl will go from here.

Notwithstanding this, the biennial will be of interest to clubwomen everywhere. It is hoped that all the living past presidents will be present to contribute to "Backward Glimpses of Forty Years." Especial interest attaches to the galaxy of brilliant speakers who will address the sessions, among these being Otis L. Wiese, editor of McCalls; Whiting Williams, author, lecturer and world-famed authority on labor problems; Dorothy Dix, well known newspaper writer; Marion L. Telford, field secretary of the educational division, National Safety Council, and Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, former president of the Federation.

"Woman's Service as Citizen" is the keynote of the convention.

Installation of officers in the Pittsburgh Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will take place Monday at a luncheon in the Garden Tea Room, Center and Liberty avenues. The chapter's guests will be Mrs. Walter Grace, of Macon, Ga., former president of the Georgia Division, U. D. C., and two veterans of the war between the states, Capt. L. E. Jenkins, of the Confederate Army, and John A. George, who served in Col. J. M. Schoonmaker's Fourteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry. Mrs. William V. Mahaffey, Jr., will sing. The program is in charge of Mrs. Elder W. Marshall.

Install Officers

On Memorial Day the chapter will honor the memory of a distinguished Union veteran when a wreath will be placed on the tomb of Col. Schoonmaker. This office will be performed by Mrs. Fanny Loney Hooff, honorary president of the chapter, of which Col. Schoonmaker was also an honorary member. With Erasmus Wilson, Judge Charles F. McKenna, Col. James E. Porter and other Pittsburgh veterans of the Union Army he assisted the women to organize their chapter.

* * *

Mrs. Renshaw C. Dewitt, of Williamsport, chairman of vocational training for World War orphans, will be guest speaker Wednesday at the regular meeting of Allegheny County Council, American Legion Auxiliary, in the Congress of Clubs. Mrs. F. B. Emery, state president, will also be present and that evening she and Mrs. Dewitt will attend the meeting of the South Hills Unit.

* * *

Mrs. Wilson A. Campbell will entertain the Pittsburgh Wellesley Club at her home, Creek Drive, Sewickley, Saturday afternoon, June 7. A number of prominent club women were guests yesterday morning at the Enright to see a private showing of the new film, "Courage" featuring Belle Bennett. Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, motion picture chairman of the General Federation of Woman's Club, and Mrs. Joseph B. Drake, southwestern district chairman in the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, were in the audience.

Members of the Home and Hospital Club of Bellevue will meet at noon Monday at Mrs. L. L. Knox's home before going to the Highland Country Club for the annual luncheon, the season's closing event. DESIGNERS FAVOR RUFFLES FOR MANY NEW GARMENTS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, MAY 29.—If we wear a ruffled surface we can face the world with a calm front. For ruffles are the latest manifestations of femininity in fashion and are to be encountered on every type of garment, from counter-tailored and sports to princess The severity of the straight line has been tempered somewhat by soft blousings at the waistline flares to the skirt and tiers, of which ruffles seem to be the logical outcome. These ruffles are very strategically placed on a frock, for their effect can be devastatingly ridiculous if they are allowed to go their untrained way. But if due care is exercised and the ruffles judiciously handled their effect can be devastatingly charming on even the more mature type of woman, a type that is not usually associated with beruffled frocks. And so, do not succumb to the appealing tempations of a beruffled organdie frock unless you are still youthful enough to be able to be blase about Spring.

AS AN EXAMPLE of the charms of ruffles—and organdie ruffles at that—when in their proper place, we submit a sketch of an unusually distinctive frock from Lenief. It is fashioned of black crepe marocain with double ruffles of white organdie forming the flaring short sleeves. These are attached to the edge of a slightly circular bertha which dips in front and buttons onto a stitched belt of the marocain. The circular skirt is attached to a deep rounding yoke.

THE COAT-DRESS has met with some success this season, especially is this so of the models shown by Lenief. One of the most successful creations of this establishment has been the model of which a sketch is herewith appended. It is of a light weight woolen in a soft and most attractive shade of yellow. It has a high belted waistline and amusing panels which swing loose from narrow, straight sleeves. The scarf collar is knotted in front and color contrast is introduced by black cloth borders at the ends of the scarf and by a black leather belt.

That's why you should carefully choose your dentifrice. Do not use just any tooth-paste. Consider its actual merit or your teeth may suffer from real neglect.

VARIETY IS ESSENTIAL IN CORRECT DIET

Diversified Diet Insures the System Getting Necessary Calories, Vitamins, Minerals and Roughage

Rarely does a single food contain all the elements of nutrition. But too often meals are served without regard to this fact.

To promote health, fruits, vegetables, meats, eggs, fish and cereals should be eaten for the contribution each makes to the system's needs. What is more, desserts, jellies, jams and confections may be included. Not only do they contain wholesome elements, but they round out the meal in a most satisfying way.

The taste appeal of many foods is definitely increased by using sugar as a flavor. A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt will heighten the flavor of most vegetables. Try this suggestion in cooking spinach, turnips, peas, cabbage, tomatoes and string beans. The same rule applies to the preparation of meat and vegetable stews.

Doctors and dietitians recommend a diversified diet. They also approve the use of sugar in making essential foods appetizing. Most foods are more delicious with sugar.

ASK $130,000 FOR ORPHANS

A suit seeking $130,000 damages was filed in Federal Court against the Commercial Investment Trust Company, a Delaware corporation, with offices at 5648 Friendship avenue, in behalf of four minor children of the late Walter and Katharine Szafraniec, of Meadowlands, Washington County. The suit grew out of an automobile accident.

The action was brought by the Dollar Savings and Trust Company, guardians of the Szafraniec children, Erwin, 13; Genevieve, 11; Norman, 3, and Dolores, 1. The bill of complaint alleges that the parents sustained fatal injuries and the children were hurt in a collision between an automobile in which they were riding and a machine owned by the defendant company.

The machine in which the Szafraniecs were passengers was overturned, and before the occupants could be extricated from the wreck it was struck by another automobile. The parents, the bill cites, died a few hours later from injuries.

The plaintiff in the suit seeks $100,000 for the children because of the loss of their father and mother, and $10,000 each for Genevieve and Dolores and $5,000 each for Erwin and Norman because of injuries.

CURB ON RIDE SEEKERS URGED

Director James M. Clark, of the Public Safety Department, has been asked to investigate the report that factory girls in the vicinity of Sixteenth and Thirty-fifth streets congest traffic by asking rides after working hours each evening. The request is made by C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

According to Roth, club members have complained that girls stand so far out in the street that drivers are compelled to travel at a low rate of speed for many blocks and that traffic is delayed every day. He requests that traffic policemen be assigned to speed up vehicular traffic.

Members of the club also object to girls asking rides on the grounds that drivers of cars who pick up girls are responsible for injuries to all passengers in case of a crash.

Wife Charges Neglect, Asks Divorce

Her husband treated her "as a permanent fixture," Mary W. Devaney, of Clay street, Sharpsburg, testified in her divorce action heard by Judge James B. Drew of Common Pleas Court. While she charged cruel and barbarous treatment in her libel, the libellant told the court her husband, whose residence was given as Fairfax Hotel, had never struck her.

Mrs. Devaney said her husband kept a store in Sharpsburg at the time of their troubles. They were married April 14, 1920, and separated October 6, 1926.

Her chief complaint was that her husband paid no attention to her and did not support her.

SHIPPERS TOLD OF NEW FORMS

Shippers in the Pittsburgh district have been advised not to stock up on forms now in use for bills of lading on which the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled to be effective August 1. The warning was sent out by Donald O. Moore, manager of the traffic division of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

The revision of the contract terms and the conditions of the uniform bill of lading was submitted to the commission in order to bring conformity with the law as amended March 4, 1927, and April 23 of this year. The present bill of lading forms may be used after August 1 if a rubber stamp is applied, but only for a reasonable time to give the shipper an opportunity to obtain the new form.

OUTLINES CHILD STUDY COURSE

A child welfare program for Allegheny County, in which each children's organization should serve the community and its children most effectively was outlined by Arthur Dunham, secretary of the Child Welfare Division of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania and director of the Pittsburgh Child Welfare Study.

Mr. Dunham spoke at an open forum luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. on "Building a Child Welfare Program for Pittsburgh." The meeting was held under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Federation of Social Agencies. J. Rogers Flannery, chairman of the committee in charge of child welfare, presided.

Hollywood Lamentation

I made a mental image of a man whom I admired,
Endowing it with qualities I 'specially desired;

With Sympathy, and Tolerance, and other virtues, too,
The effigy was fine "Within" a "Sportsman" thru' and thru'

I mixed these thoughts into the clay, the Image did erect;
And last of all I painted it with most sincere respect.

And then, one day, the Image toppled over just a bit;
For I had mixed too much Imagination into it.

I've tried to reconstruct it, but despite all I may do,

Ah, There!

The current Vanity Fair offers a devastating picture page of well-known lads whom the magazine wishes were given a load of "Prairie" hair to you'll. The page is amusingly titled "We Nominate for Oblivion," and Richard Halliburton, the author-lecturer-shiek is among the unfortunates. But what we started out to report was this yarn about Richard. The story is intended to show why Halliburton invariably gets a return date in the towns where he lectures for Ladies Clubs.

The night he leaves town Halliburton sends the club secretary a bouquet of 11 American Beauty roses—with this card:

"Thanks for making my stay so pleasant. There are only 11 American Beauties in this bouquet—11, because you are the twelfth!"

Hehehch

From Washington, D. C., Richy Craig, Jr., telegraphs: "Sign on marquee opposite my theater reads 'Dumbells—Joe Frisco in person.' Haw!"

Quiteso, Quiteso

"They do not wear many clothes," says Guiman, "but you can see that their hearts are in the right place."

The Squelch Swelegant

One of the reasons for the recent Joseph Schildkraut-Elise Bartlett divorce, they say, is that at a Hollywood party Schildkraut berated his wife before the guests. When the actor got through thundering, however, his wife turned to the assemblage and calmly quipped:

"You see? Never a dull moment!"

You Never Can Tell

Several months ago Elinor Hunt was a terpsichorine in "Whoopee." Between numbers Elinor and the other chorines had to wait until Eddie Cantor and his principals were taken up in the elevator to their dressing rooms. Then the elevator took up Elinor and her mates.

Sam Goldwyn is now making a movie of that show. Eddie Cantor and several of his principals are in it. But they couldn't find the leading lady "type" for weeks, and you have one guess who finally got it. Yop! Elinor Hunt!

And is she giving them the headache? We're telling you, not asking you. Elinor makes them wait until she is ready, and they have to like it, too. Somfun, hey?

Incidentally

No, sirr, you never can tell when the sour breaks turn sweet on Broadway. The night before Elinor got the big news she was carrying plenty of "torch" for her "heart" who "went" for another honey. And was she blooooood?

And you never can tell about the boy or the girl you snub, too. The late Walter J. Kingsley, one of the better press agents, used to put it this way: "It is dangerous to be indifferent to people. I have always treated the most insignificant newspaper reporter like a king for you never can tell when one of them becomes the managing editor."

For Life, Too!

PICTURIZATION OF WAR NOVEL AMONG NEW FILMS

The Messrs. Shubert will present Universal's screen version of Erich Maria Remarque's book, "All Quiet on the Western Front," in the Pitt next week. It will open Monday evening and performances will be twice daily thereafter.

"Ritzy," a comedy which is this week's attraction in the Pitt, marks the close of the George Sharp season in that playhouse. The stock company will return in August.

CLARA BOW FILM

Clara Bow comes to the Stanley today and to the Enright tomorrow in her latest talkie, "True to the Navy." Frederic March and Harry Green are prominent in the cast.

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran are very used to working with each other. These two funmakers have been paired in "Bringing Up Father," "Callahans and the Murphys," "Dangerous Females," "The Hollywood Revue of 1929" and now "Caught Short," directed by Chuck Riesner, which will open at the Penn tomorrow.

"Song of the Flame," featuring Bernice Claire, Alexander Gray, Noah Beery and Alice Gentle, will open on the Warner screen tomorrow.

FANNIE BRICE SINGS

Fannie Brice, who is starred in "Be Yourself," a musical comedy of night clubs and prize fight rings, coming tomorrow to the screen in the Aldine, sings four original songs in the picture.

The first downtown showing of "Ladies of Leisure" will be in the Harris, beginning Saturday. The cast includes Ralph Graves, Lowell Sherman and Barbara Stanwyck. The stage feature will be Victor Graff.

"CUCKOOS" COMING

A big searchlight, sending its rays skyward each night, marks the specially constructed railroad car, located on Penn avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, which houses "Colossus," huge sea mammal, and other species of deep-sea life that comprise the Pacific Whaling Company's educational exhibit. The light is the original searchlight that was used on the Hercules, the central ship of the whaling fleet that captured the mammoth whale after a spectacular pursuit.

Swimming, Dancing In Kennywood Park

Memorial Day will be observed in Kennywood tomorrow with a special celebration. There will be an A. A. U. track and field meet, John Robinson's elephants will appear in three shows. There will be four concerts by Izzy Cervone's band. There will be all-day swimming in the big pool. Dancing will be held afternoon and evening.

Norman Kerry Views Seal And Lowell Sherman Directs Picture

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 29.

It happened at Malibou Beach. Norman Kerry and a bunch of the fellers stopped in front of Grace Moore's cottage to view the dead seal that had been washed ashore.

Along came Roger Davis and Mrs. May Sunday. Miss Moore strolled down to see what in the world everybody was staring at.

"My heavens, a dead seal!" she shuddered. "Take it away. Take it away or drag it in the yard. Don't leave that thing here."

Norman Kerry

I don't know just what they did about the seal after that.

Lowell Sherman is a pretty busy lad these days. He's megaphoning his initial outloud for RKO, "Lawful Larceny," with Bebe Daniels the stellar fem and Lowell, the stellar male. Olive Tell (Mrs. Hobart Henley) has a featured role.

I discovered Lowell sitting in ye directorial chair, as swank a director as ever eyed a scene.

"Better dress less immaculately," I cautioned, "or they'll be saying you're still an actor to your toes."

"I'm afraid of that," he agreed. "But I do need a shave. I'm doing what the producers do. Waiting to get one at 2 o'clock, that may help."

AN EXCITED CHAP

The Sherman chap is excited over his first directorial effort. They do be saying he has a smart flick, thus far.

Lowell Sherman

Lowell is terribly enthusiastic over Bebe. "They haven't any idea how good she is," he opined. "Why, that kid can ease from a dramatic scene to comedy and back without blinking an eyelash."

Years ago, when Lowell and Bebe were co-featured in Rudolph Valentino's picture, "Monsieur Beaucaire," Sherman was loud in singing Bebe's praises. Claimed she'd have stolen the picture if they hadn't left most of her scenes on the cutting room floor.

So if you're willing to take a director-actor's tip, you'll see a Whoopee Daniels girl in "Lawful Larceny." Lowell goes to First National after this 'un to traipse in Otis Skinner's initial outloud effort, "Kismet." Later he returns to RKO. Will direct and perhaps star in five more celluloiders on that lot.

BESSIE WORKING AGAIN

Bessie Love is back at work again, on "Conspiracy," her RKO flick. Bessie returned to the grease paint bringing two nurses with her. She is still suffering slightly from that dread illness, trench mouth, but figures she'll make this picture all right, with the nurses right there to treat her. Staunch little trouper, Bessie.

Mrs. John Robertson and Gloria Swanson lunching tete-a-tete at ye Embassy . . . Walter Wanger, Paramount Eastern chieftain, in town for a week or so . . . William Haines, the Mark Kellys et al visiting Dick and Adela Rogers Hyland at Malibou . . . Flora Le Breton, petite blonde, Britisher, is in Hollywood. Last time I heard of Miss Le Breton she was playing in one of the late Barbara La Marr's pictures back in New York.

Dolores del Rio and Johnny Farrow entertaining a few of the officers from a British warship anchored off Santa Monica . . . When Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon are married, June 14, they will make their residence at Ben's Hollywood apartment . . . Later they may build on the three acres that Ben owns in the hills of Mulholland drive—which overlooks the village . . . Well, I'll be seeing you.

Music and Fireworks In West View Park

The Decoration Day program in West View Park tomorrow will include a fireworks display at 10 p. m., on the baseball grounds. Four concerts by the Grand Army Band and music for the dancing at the newly-decorated dance pavilion will be afternoon and evening features.

Songstress

Bernice Claire is the singing heroine in "Song of the Flame," which opens on the Warner screen tomorrow.

Al Marsico's Band In Sanders Tonight

Al Marsico, leader of the Enright stage band, takes his musicians to Sander's Inn, Freeport road, Aspinwall, where he will open an indefinite engagement tonight. A floor show will include Dorothy Bushey, boop-boop-a-doop songstress, and Frances Ruppert, dancer. Dick Powell, master of ceremonies in the Stanley, will be present after 11 p. m., through the courtesy of Warner Brothers.

Eddie Klein's Villa Gets Lombardo Band

Eddie Klein's Villa, Babcock boulevard, beginning Saturday evening, will present Guy Lombardo and his band from New York. Jan Garber and his recording orchestra will close their engagement at the roadhouse tomorrow evening. The Villa's floor show, headed by Sammy Walsh, the dancing master of ceremonies, includes Tonia, soprano; Phillips and Zoe, dancing team; Isobella Dawn, dancer; and Ruth Petty, personality singer.

SPROUL TRIAL BRIEFS ASKED

Arguments for a new trial for Evangelist John W Sproul convicted two weeks ago on three charges of passing bad checks were heard today by Visiting Judge W T Darr of Jefferson County, and Judges J M Swearingen and Thomas J Ford.

Sproul according to the testimony at the trial had borrowed $5,000 from Frederick A Vogel, crippled former railroader of Millvale, last year and gave him in payment five checks each for $1,000. Two of the checks were good, but the others were returned as worthless, according to the testimony.

Attorney A F Burkhardt for Sproul, argued that the checks being post-dated did not constitute a violation of the bad-check law and that the Superior Court had so held.

Assistant District Attorney M Berney Cohen held Sproul's act was a plain violation.

Judge Ford said Sproul's case was different from the one cited by Burkhardt. Counsel were asked to file briefs. Sproul was not in court today.

FIVE FACE QUIZ ON HOLDUPS

Four men and a woman were being held in police stations in the Turtle Creek Valley today for questioning in connection with a series of robberies and holdups in valley towns.

One of the alleged gang, Steve Pusca, 24, alias Don O'Day, of 305 Talbot avenue, Braddock, was arrested early today, a few hours after he is said to have attacked and robbed John Kondash, 34, night attendant of the Liberty filling station, 1556 Electric avenue, North Braddock. Pusca's wife was arrested also.

Others arrested were John Greenawalt, 22, and Clarence Stead, 17, both of 326½ Braddock avenue, Turtle Creek, and Joseph Wiess, 21, of North Braddock.

Stead is said to have admitted to police participation in numerous robberies, implicating the others arrested and naming Pusca as the ringleader.

Kondash was struck on the head four times with a lead pipe. He was robbed of $3, police said.

BOY GRADUATE HIT BY TRUCK

Struck by a truck a few moments after having been graduated from school, Frank Gloria, 16, of Harmarville, was in a critical condition in Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, today. Walery Brzywery, of Haffey, alleged driver, was arrested by Patrolman J M Burnsworth of the state highway police and lodged in the Oakmont lockup.

The boy had participated in the commencement exercises of the Harmarville Public School and had just reached the Freeport road in front of the building when he was struck, Burnsworth said. He sustained fractures of the skull and leg.

Burnsworth charged Brzywery with reckless driving, and the victim's parents swore a warrant against him charging aggravated assault and battery.

SILES RESIGNS, BOLIVIA QUIET

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—The Bolivian legation was informed by its home government last night of the resignation of President Siles, with the additional word that the country was tranquil.

The cabinet, in the hands of which the government was placed, has issued a decree, the message said, calling for the election of delegates to a convention the purpose of which is to assure the continuance of normal conditions. The election was called for June 29 and the convention for July 8.

Siles was said to have resigned for "high reasons of state," in spite of popular demonstrations of approval of his administration. The new Cabinet government, the message said, is supported by public opinion and the national army.

CLASH ON HEAT PLANS HEARD

The bitterly opposed proponents of single pipes and double pipes for warm air furnaces still are debating before council.

For two hours yesterday following an even longer hearing two weeks ago, the contending factions presented their arguments.

All of the numerous speakers attempted to make clear that the general subject was "warm," not "hot air." Council again reserved decision.

The question is whether the building code shall continue to permit only double pipes and prohibit single pipes. J. L. Eddy again led the fight for single pipes. W. D. McElroy and W. C. Markle headed a large delegation for the double-pipe standard.

W. K. Estep, of the Board of Fire Underwriters of Allegheny County, said that double pipes are preferred, but admitted that his organization makes no differentiation in the rates charged in either case. Eddy again produced a letter from the New York office of the organization saying that either is permissible if certain construction standards are followed.

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 29.—Members of the highway patrol spent last night searching the hills in the vicinity of Morganza for Robert Hurst, 40, of Washington, injured in an automobile crash at that point last Sunday. He is believed to have wandered off into the woods and died of injuries received in the accident.

W. B. McNeely, proprietor of a car-renting agency in Washington, for whom Hurst worked, was told that a companion of Hurst's, now in the Canonsburg Hospital, said Hurst had been injured seriously when the automobile struck a pole. The last he saw of the missing man, he said, was a few minutes before motorists picked him up and took him to the hospital. At that time Hurst was staggering toward the woods, he said.

MANLEY SAILS FOR EUROPE

NEW YORK, May 29.—Valentine Manley, of Pittsburgh, sailed for Europe yesterday in the Aquitania bound for Cherbourg and Southampton. Mr. Manley will disembark at Southampton, after which he will take a month's tour of Continental Europe.

Mrs. Delphine Williams, Mrs. Fannie B. Nolan, Miss Mary E. Steele, Miss Ethel G. Cordes, Miss Edith Bane and John J. Koch, of Pittsburgh, returned today in the Franconia from a world cruise lasting 138 days. They left in the Cunarder from this port on January 11.

KILLS WOMAN AND SELF

Police summoned by neighbors to 139 Elm street late last night broke into the place and found Edward Hill, 32, former convict, and Mrs. Florence Green, 29, both Negroes, dead in a bedroom.

The woman had been shot in the left side and left temple, and Hill through the right temple. A .38 caliber revolver with three empty cartridges, was found nearby. Police said they believed Hill killed the woman and committed suicide.

Hill, according to police, served two years in the Federal penitentiary for selling drugs. At one time he was said to have been wealthy. The woman, it was said, was a former sweetheart, and married while Hill was in the penitentiary. Following his release, it was said, she left her husband and had been living with Hill.

Putnam, Sculptor, 56, Dies in Paris

PARIS, May 29.—(AP)—Arthur Putnam, 56, American sculptor, died suddenly Tuesday at his home at Ville Davray, near Paris. His body will be cremated and the ashes taken to America. He had made his home abroad for a number of years, but was represented in leading art galleries of the United States.

John D. Jr., Biggest Home Taxpayer, $150,000 Set

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., May 29.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., laid further claim to being America's largest residential taxpayer when it was announced by the Mount Pleasant Township Board of Assessors that his holdings had been assessed $500,000 in valuation more than last year. As the Rockefeller property extends into Tarrytown, North Tarrytown and Greenburgh, it is estimated that his assessment will total $6,000,000.

At the average tax rate of $25 a thousand Rockefeller's tax is estimated at $150,000. In addition he pays a special lighting district tax.

Mrs. L. O. Lohstoetter Honored at Dinner

Mrs. Lotte Olga Lohstoetter, a member of the modern language faculty of the University of Pittsburgh, was honored last night at a dinner in the Faculty Club. She is to receive the doctor of philosophy degree at the June commencement. She is the only grandmother on the Pitt faculty.

Speakers included Dean Lee Paul Sieg; Dr. J. F. L. Raschen, head of the modern language department; Emma Barth, president of the German Club, and Hermine Ruoff.

Miss Hilda Schimmel was chairman of the dinner committee. She was assisted by Dorothy Elges, Otto Truschinger, Emma Barth, Paul Walters and Eleanor Kerber.

BIG BOGUS CASH PLANT RAIDED

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—A million dollars in spurious gold notes, a lithographing press, and paper enough to print $4,000,000 more in bogus currency were taken by Secret Service men in the biggest counterfeiting haul made in New York in years.

These were brought to the customs house, and with them Pericles Mannerini, Giuseppe Di Negri and Matteo Mattera—caught inky-handed, the federal agents said, over the gleaming plates of a money-making machine in the upper floor of a Brooklyn apartment house.

The notes were to have been delivered, it was said, to "dealers," who would buy them at 15 cents on the dollar.

Gabriel Di Piore, who led the raid by Secret Service operatives on the counterfeiting plant in Brooklyn, was formerly a Pittsburgh city detective. Since joining the Secret Service in 1916 he has figured in breaking up many counterfeiting plots.

Made a city detective by the late Thomas A. McQuaide, then superintendent of Pittsburgh police, he obtained a leave of absence after five years to become identified with the Government service. He soon was classed an able operative.

"You Have Half a Minute to Live!"

THIS man, an honest woodcarver, who knew too much about one of the Chicago gangs, heard these words snarled by a gunman, and felt the cold muzzle of a pistol against his temple.

He had come to the end of his ride — which meant the end of his life, but—he was rescued, miraculously, by an incredible piece of luck—to see the gangsters handcuffed and behind the bars. What you see in the movies never happens in real life—but this really happened outside Chicago. Read about this startling partnership with Lady Luck—the amazing experiences of "The luckiest man that ever lived"—Next Sunday in The American Weekly.

Modern Survivals of Ancient Superstitions

Is modern civilization just a thin veneer? Have we advanced very far from the cave-man days of thousands of years ago? In the very center of modern civilized life are men and women whose minds are in the cave-man age of progress. A startling illustration of this has been brought to the public by an exhibition which reveals modern belief in witchcraft and magic. Do you want to know why we carry acorns on umbrellas, curious necklaces and amulets? Read the astonishing details next Sunday in The American Weekly.

Equals Brilliant Exploits of Famous Scotland Yard

By an amazingly clever process combining keen observation and accurate deductions, the detective work of the scientists in discovering the secret of how old the pueblos are rivals the most improbable exploits of story-book detectives. Their fascinating series of researches and deductions in solving the problem equals the most brilliant exploits of the famous investigators of Scotland Yard and the Paris Surete. An intriguing story—next Sunday.

An NBC announcer will describe the actions of our President as he enters the Civil War battlefield to participate in the annual Memorial Day Service. After the strewing of flowers upon the graves he will be escorted to the speakers' stand where Lincoln delivered his immortal Gettysburg address.

Pres. Herbert Hoover

The invocation will be followed by selections played by the Tenth Cavalry Band. Gov. John S. Fisher will introduce the President about 3:30 o'clock. After a short benediction the services will close with a chorus of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Dignified senators, representatives and their secretaries will take part in a horseshoe-pitching tournament at Griffith Stadium in Washington, D. C., at noon tomorrow. WCAE will be the station.

Graham McNamee's account of the 500-mile automobile race at Indianapolis will be broadcast over WCAE tomorrow at 4:15.

A powerful story of Lincoln's love for his fellow men will be dramatized on the Freedom sketch, KDKA at 8 o'clock Friday night. The setting for this historical revival will be Mary Raymond Andrews' "The Perfect Tribute."

Another Memorial Day feature on KDKA will be a staff presentation at 6:30 o'clock which will depict the progress of our country from the first Memorial Day to the present, as described by a World War soldier to his English bride. The cast will include Frederick G. Rodgers as narrator, William A. Farren as the doughboy; Georgia Wharry, the bride; J. W. Williams, Claude Morris, Walter Myers and Glenn Riggs representing various periods of time. Marquis Chisholm wrote the continuity.

Story of Brave Wife.
The story of the gallant Marquis de Lafayette, and his love for his beautiful wife, Adrienne.
Throughout his life, Lafayette had two loves, his wife, and the cause of liberty. In 1777 when he heard of the struggle of the American colonies he was torn between his devotion for his young wife, and his desire to aid Washington's little army against the English.
His family, friends and even the Queen of France forbade him to go to America, but orders were issued to prevent his departure. Adrienne alone understood her husband's motive, she encouraged him, and although her heart was breaking, she smiled a brave farewell.

The vicinity of Riverside, Cal., will be the scene of Mary and Bob's story. The story which the radio audience will hear with them at that time is entitled, "My Easy Going Husband," a startling example from real life of how a wife dealt with the problem of husband who refused to accept the responsibilities that naturally fall to the head of a household. The manner in which he was finally awakened to his duties provides material for a broadcast of unusual power.

New Way Closes Ugly Pores

—blackheads disappear!

Whenever I see a face that would be beautiful—if it weren't for disgustingly large pores, blackheads and oily skin that spoils make-up—I feel sorry.

For out in Hollywood they have a wonderful recipe for a lotion that so easily corrects these flaws and quickly makes the skin nice and smooth.

The very minute you pat it on the face and neck it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt. It removes blackheads, closes the pores and erases tiny tell-tale wrinkles. Soon the skin becomes silken in texture, youthfully fresh and healthy. There is no oiliness to fight or perspiration to damage make-up and make you look done-in.

Just get 3 ounces of Orchard White from any druggist, mix it with the juice of 2 lemons and you have a full quarter-pint of a lotion far finer and more effective than any special soap, cream or liquid you have ever used.

Note: In the summer this Hollywood recipe keeps the skin free of freckles and guards against that leathery look caused by wind and sun.

COUNTY READY TO HONOR WAR DEAD

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

An old admirer of John Smith, we have decided to rename our turtle John Smith. Later we may decide to make it John Smith, Ph. D., because we are an old admirer, also, of Ph. D. John is scheduled to race tomorrow night in Mr. Crandall's Terrapin Derby and we share his—John's—pre-race excitement. We have never raced a turtle before; probably we shall never race one again. It is the chance of a lifetime for us. Already we have written the line for our tombstone: "Here Lies William Pfarr. He Raced a Turtle. He Lost."

If Pat O'Malley loses his contest with P. J. Sullivan, then Congress loses an unusual member. Of Pat's lawmaking abilites we know nothing, but we know enough about congressmen to realise that Pat would be an extraordinary one. He has been reared in the Strip. He has been a college student, policeman, detective, soldier and politician. He is blunt in speech. In two words he classifies himself on prohibition: "I'm wet."

He is in early thirties and a strapping fellow of broad shoulders. When he was younger he took a prominent part in more than one Strip fight. He told us he had never taken a drink. Until he entered the Army during the war he had never smoked, but the soldiers began to doubt that this young man of exemplary habits was really a son of the unsullied Strip, so Pat, to show them he wasn't a himano boy (Pat's words), took to cigarets.

Master Sergt. Frank Bailey's has been an unusual job. He walks along the streets, his eyes scanning the faces, the shoulders and the general build of young men. He sees a likely prospect and he says to that young man: "Would you like to join the government service?"

In the seven years he has been operating in Pittsburgh he has won 1,600 recruits for your Uncle Sam. Now, having completed 30 years' service in the Army, he has retired with memories of days in Alaska and the Philippines.

Sir: This one will slay the customers. Once upon a time there were two other colored fellows named Ham and Bones and Ham sold a piece of property to Bones and said, "Now, tomorrow Ah gives you de deed fo' de place." Bones replied: "Ham, if she's jest de same fo' you Ah takes a morgridge 'stead of de deed," and Ham came back, "Why, de deed shows you owns dis heah place, de morgridge don' do that." But Bones concluded, "Ah knows, Ham, but once before Ah buys a place and de bank takes de morgridge and Ah takes de deed and 'less time than she takes to say Georgia de bank has got de property."

Persistently,

A noted physician, the modest Dr. Harry N. Malone, has other accomplishments of which he might but doesn't boast. For 20 years he has been collecting folk songs of European countries. Where you sing only in English, Dr. Malone sings in Russian, Chinese, Japanese, French and Italian. The copies of Dr. Malone's Russian songs furnish the most trouble to his secretary, Miss Kitty McGowan. Miss McGowan isn't sure when she has placed the music upside down.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 29.

Next to the discovery of a cancer cure there couldn't possibly be anything of any more value than the claim in the papers that Mr. John Hays Hammond had discovered a television that would penetrate fog, and that an aeroplane pilot could look at his television and see exactly what was through the fog. If they got that, why that's all they been needing, finding a way to eliminate fog. The next big discovery is to find a way to get prohibition out of politics.

Yours,
WILL.

GIRL UNAFRAID

By GLADYS JOHNSON

Ardeth Meets Neil While Out for Walk

CHAPTER XLIX.

To Ardeth the loneliness was harder to bear after that glimpse of Ken and the baby.

In the daytime it was not so bad. Then she was busy with the shop and the customers. But at night—when Ah Ling had slipped into her smart sports coat, pulled her new beret over the marceled waves of her hair and departed for her Chinatown home, then the gray specter of loneliness crept in to fill the small, quiet store.

The big chair under the lamp spoke of Ken . . . She did not like to see Tom sitting there when he called on her in the evenings.

Many nights now, when she lay staring wide-eyed into the dark, listening to the mice scampering in the store room. To the footsteps of some late wanderer passing the door. Seeing the first gray traces of dawn creeping through the little alley window.

When the dark mood struck it had no pity. Nothing could lighten it. Tom's clumsy kindlinesses filled her with secret exasperation. No comfort in Mary Eastwood's blunt common sense. No company in Carolyn Forsythe's prime, bright home.

She wandered through the dark like an exile, her heart swelling with unshed tears.

Why had this dreary emptiness fallen to her lot? she asked herself in hot rebellion. Why had unhappiness struck like a blight across those warm young years, rendering them sterile, and forlorn?

Into the Past
Ardeth Wanders Through Aunt's Neighborhood

She had the desperate need of clinging to something. Of belonging. It was this, perhaps, which sent her one night, wandering through the old neighborhood of the Harrison flat.

Not since that stormy night two years ago had she been here. Fell street.....the Fell street of her childhood—dingier than ever.....

The corner grocery store with cellar steps guarded by an iron rail, where she had hidden in hide and seek games with Neil. Filled as always with sodden newspapers and rubbish..... Rows of wooden houses, shabbier, more weatherbeaten than she remembered them. The corner where Ken had always stopped the car. Down there—in the middle of the block in grey ugliness, the Harrison flat. Long bleak windows. The warped wooden steps.

The front door, banded with panes of colored glass. She remembered how she and Bet had pressed their noses first to one pane, then another, looking out on a street turned uncannily purple, or murky red or a dismal and cold blue.

The doorway was like a black cave, thick with gloom.....

Her heart leaped. Someone stand there, fitting the key in the lock. Blur of white face. A man's form running down the stairs.

Sees Neil
His Dynamic Force Thrills Ardeth

Neil's voice, shaking—incredulous. "Ardeth . . . it is you!"

Dismay and smothered excitement pounding her heart. Out of the past . . . Neil! Neil, tall, before her. His white, intense face—black eyes boring down into her own.

"I thought I was dreaming hearing your step on the sidewalk—I'd know it anywhere. I listened for you so long . . ." Then, with smothered force, "Why are you here, Ardeth? Why did you come?"

His very voice repelled her as it had always done. She found herself repenting the whim which sent her back here into the past. Her tone was defensively light.

"Oh—just taking a walk to get the cobwebs out of my brain. I'm indoors so much now, you know. Just happened to find myself walking down this way—"

A breathless silence when each studied the other. A thrill went through the girl at the dynamic force of him. Like—yet changed from the Neil she remembered. Black hair falling in a heavy shock over his white forehead. Black eyes looking from straight black brows.

She found herself suddenly eager to get away. Fumbling with her purse. Trying to rebutton her glove.

"So you came back, Ardeth—" Neil was saying softly.

She tried to treat it lightly. "They say the murderer comes back to the scenes of his crime. What do you hear of the Harrisons, Neil?"

He told her, impatient at the turn she had given the conversation.

Bet was engaged. Going to be married next spring. Tom had hurt his hand — they had been afraid of blood poisoning, but he was all right now. Aunt Stel had gone up the river with Fan and Paul for the last school vacations.

And all the time the man's burning black eyes were drinking her in, drawing her down into his heart as though he would never let her go.

Abruptly, "You'll come in, Ardeth? Granny's heart would be broken if she knew you'd come by without coming in to see her."

She wanted to refuse. She was suddenly filled with panic. She crushed it down and went into the dark house with him, feeling the years drop away at the remembered smell of the musty hall. Filled with the ridiculous fancy that she was walking into a trap.

Judge Grants Writs Against 2 Saloons

Preliminary injunctions were granted by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson against a saloon in the Eighth Avenue Hotel, 122 West Eighth avenue, Homestead, and a saloon on R. D. No. 1, Mifflin township, pending final hearings September 9. Bills of complaints by prohibition authorities allege violations of the dry law at the two places.

Philip M. Majkut was named proprietor of the Homestead saloon and William J. Bost of the Mifflin township place. Under the preliminary injunctions the alleged proprietors and owners are restrained from permitting violations on the premises.

Bar Association Offers Three Names to Fisher For Judge Evans' Post

J. Smith Christy, Judge Sylvester Snee and William A. Challener, in the order named, having received the highest votes cast at yesterday's election of the Allegheny County Bar Association today were certified to Gov. John S. Fisher as the choice of that organization, in suggesting a candidate to be appointed to succeed Judge John A. Evans, retired.

A total of 1,336 votes were cast, but 38 votes were invalidated because the lawyers voting did not comply with the rules governing the election. Christy received 362 votes, Judge Snee, of the County Court, 248, and Challener, 238.

ELECTION BOARD

The other four candidates were W. Heber Dithrich, county solicitor, 216; Charles A. Waldschmidt, city attorney, 117; C. Elmer Bown, 85, and Howard W. Montgomery, 32.

The election board was composed of Oscar Emerick, law librarian, overseer; Edward C. Sykes, Sun-Telegraph, judge of election; Joseph F. Huhn, Press and H. F. Richards, Post-Gazette, inspectors; Joseph G. Rebel, Pittsburgh Legal Journal, chief clerk and Hastings C. Hamilton and Edward N. Hamilton, assistant librarians, assistant clerks.

THIRD MAN NAMED

Gov. Fisher has been awaiting the action of the members of the bar association, before announcing a successor to Judge Evans. It is assumed he will act promptly on receiving the report of the returning board.

In the election held by the bar association last March, Judge Samuel H. Gardner, then district attorney, who was the third man in the count, was named to succeed the late Richard W. Martin.

James Fabini, 45, proprietor of a store in Logan street, who, government agents said, was a source of supply for peddlers of drugs in the Hill district, was convicted in Federal Court for violating the Harrison act.

One of the government witnesses was Frank Branch, who was brought from the Atlanta penitentiary to testify. He said he accompanied Irene Hill, an alleged drug peddler, to Fabini's store on several occasions when she purchased drugs. Pending sentence the bond of Fabini was raised from $3,500 to $5,000.

Dr. J. E. Haigh, of Furnace Run, Armstrong County, a World War veteran, who served in the Canadian army, and was badly gassed, was placed on probation for two years by Judge R. M. Gibson, when he pleaded guilty of unlawfully dispensing 1,834 grains of morphine sulphate between July 1, 1929, and April 23.

MOTOR ROUTES TO GETTYSBURG

To the hundreds of Pittsburgh motorists who will drive to Gettysburg Friday to hear President Hoover speak at the battlefield at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the Pittsburgh Motor Club suggests the Lincoln highway.

It is U. S. Route 30 all the way and the road distance from here is 180 miles. There is one detour east of Jennerstown due to construction work. The detour is five miles long, one and one-half miles of good pavement and three and one-half miles of earth road. The dirt road is in good condition but dusty during dry periods.

Bridges are under construction at three points on this highway. The first is west of Bedford, second is east of Everett and the last west of McConnelsburg. The approaches to temporary bridges are rough but there are no traffic delays.

After leaving Pittsburgh by way of Wilkinsburg and East Pittsburgh the road passes through Greensburg, Bedford, McConnelsburg, Chambersburg and Gettysburg.

CIVIL WAR CITY AWAITS HOOVER

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 29.—(AP.)—This little city, scene of the bloodiest battle of the Civil War, tomorrow becomes the center of the nation's Memorial Day exercises, with the nation's President leading the memorial services in the national cemetry.

Once more a chief executive of the nation will speak where Abraham Lincoln delivered his now immortal address. President Hoover's words will be carried by amplifiers to the thousands who will throng the national shrine to pay honor to the heroes of the civil war and by radio to millions more throughout the nation.

For weeks Gettysburg has prepared for the entertainment of President Hoover and the thousands who will come here to take part in the exercises.

A thousand Gettysburg school children will march to the cemetery, carrying flowers which they will scatter over the graves while President Hoover looks on.

The President will be escorted by the governor's troop of the One Hundred and Fourth Cavalry. Other National Guard troops will add an imposing military aspect to the scene.

Eichleay Brothers Clash Over Hilltop Zoning

Roy O. Eichleay urged the defeat of an ordinance changing the zoning classification on the west side of Arlington avenue, south of McLain street from "B" residence to Commercial.

Harry Eichleay, who wants to build an art gallery over a garage he owns in that section, urged the passage of the ordinance.

Council unanimously voted in favor of Harry in spite of the fact that Roy produced a letter from L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the Department of City Planning, urging the defeat of the ordinance.

"The entire ordinance is apparently based upon the desire of a private individual to be permitted zoning privileges not enjoyed by neighboring properties."

So ended a letter from Frederick Bigger, W. C. Rice and J. D. Hallman, which accompanied Mr. Monteverde's communication.

"My brother is trying to hold me up for $18,000 for that property," Harry Eichleay told council.

"That's business," said Councilman John S. Herron.

"It's only assessed at $6,000."

"If he can do that he's a good man," remarked Herron.

"If he can do that he has to be a better than I am," said Harry.

County Building Phone Plan Held for Study

County Architect Stanley Roush's idea of an inter-communicable telephone system in the county office building didn't click with the commissioners. The system, separate from the regular telephone exchange, would be installed by the Bell Telephone Company at a monthly rental of $432, Roush said.

"The United States Senate is just throwing the dial system of inter-communicable phones out the window in Washington. We should investigate thoroughly before we adopt something that the Senate is throwing out," declared Commissioner Charles C. McGovern.

Director Norman F. Brown, Roush and Commissioner E. V. Babcock all claimed that big business corporations are putting in the systems.

"There's no use of us jumping into an automatic system that probably would keep some poor telephone operators out of work," declared Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

The suggestion was tabled for further consideration.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: Do you think longer skirts have taken away flapperish ideas from young women and have made them more dignified?

MARGARET GREENE, actress, Downtown: There is no doubt in my mind that long skirts have had an effect on young women by making them appear more dignified. If one appears dignified, then isn't it plausible that one will tend to act that way, too?

Miss Greene

BERNIE ARMSTRONG, organist, Stanley Theater: If a young woman is to act dignified and not flapperish, the length of skirts doesn't make any difference at all. My own preference is the shorter skirt because it typifies the spirit of the average American girl.

B. Armstrong

LAURA LANE, singer, Downtown: Yes, longer skirts have made America's young women more dignified. The psychological effect of wearing them and knowing that they look that way makes them forget they are flappers and adds that subtle touch of dignity so desired.

Miss Lane

IRVIN CRANE, musician, Downtown: I don't think lengths of dresses or skirts have anything to do with the dignity of a young woman. If a girl is inclined to act dignified and not kittenish the distance between the ground and her skirt hemline isn't going to make any difference.

Irvin Crane

F. FELDMAN, Penn avenue: If a girl goes hither and yon, pulling "boop a doop" stuff and all that sort of thing, the fact that her dresses are longer than they used to be has no influence in patterning dignified conduct. Dignity doesn't depend on one's skirt length.

F. Feldman

HEINIE GRAVER, Sixth street: Long skirts add that touch of dignity, sophistication, beauty or what have you to the girls America is "that way" about. Short dresses, by their very appearance, give rise to the idea of silliness and flapperism.

SLEUTH FIXES TRAP FOR 'HEALER'

Medicine Given To Treat Detective's Fictitious Sister To Be Analyzed

Alleged to have treated patients by fake radio apparatus for cancer and tuberculosis in all parts of the world with his own office as the central station, Dr. J. E. Johnston, of 501 Liberty Building, Penn and Sheridan avenues, was free under $2,000 bond today on charges of attempting to obtain money under false pretenses and conspiracy.

Dr. Johnston, arrested by county detectives in a spectacular raid yesterday, posted bond before Alderman George Anderson for a hearing next Thursday. Chief George W. Murren, of the county detectives, ordered his arrest.

SLEUTH SETS TRAP

Twice, according to Detective David Drexler's statement in the informations, he went to Dr. Johnston's office and asked that a ficticious sister, "Katherine Evans, of Washington, Pa.," be treated for cancer and tuberculosis. Drexler said he agreed to pay $250 for a course of "radio treatments" by Johnston to last six to eight months.

The physician's office, Drexler charged, was fitted with make-believe radio equipment with which the suspect claimed to be able to diagnose ailments and effect cures. The presence of the patient was not necessary, Drexler said Johnston told him. After placing the name of the phantom sister on a key which "would emanate radio waves to the patient" Johnston is alleged to have diagnosed:

"Your 'sister' is suffering from cancer, a blood clot on the brain and liver trouble. I diagnose by means of radio waves from the bodies of the patient which are picked up by my apparatus here. Likewise I can give treatments in the same manner."

Each specific disease emanated a special wave length and vibrations to his apparatus, Drexler said Johnston told him, and killed germs and effected cures.

PAYS $25 RETAINER

After paying $25 to the physician as a retainer fee, the detective obtained a receipt. Johnston offered to start treatments at once. By means of radio, the defendant, according to the detective, said, he has treated patients in Chicago, Berlin, St. Louis and South Africa. He claimed, Drexler said, to have received a cablegram from a woman in the Belgian Congo whom he had cured of a malignant disease.

Medicine given the detective to augment his "sister's" treatments has been ordered sent to the Allegheny County chemist for analysis. Opened at county detective headquarters by Detectives Frank Ritz, W. O. Alexander and Leo Dunn, several of the supposed radio boxes revealed no electrical contacts, they said. Two trips were made by Drexler to the physician's office for evidence, Chief Murren related, and the raid was ordered after his reports had been filed.

MOTHERS PITY FOR YOUNG SONS PROMPTED SHORT SKIRT

THEORY GIVEN BY DAVIES ENTRANT

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, May 29.—Women of the gay nineties did not shorten their skirts to please their husbands, "catch a beau," or annoy some other woman.

They did it because they felt sorry for their small sons.

This novel explanation fo. the gradual changes in fashions from those of the "mauve decade" to the present ones was offered today by John Henry Hornbeck, Los Angeles resident, who related his experiences as a little boy.

LETTER ONE OF HUNDREDS

HORNBECK WROTE:

"Who is it wants them back? Not I, for I sure have seen many styles of dresses for ladies.

"My first experience with women's dresses was this: My dear mother was a Christian. She belonged to the Methodist church and we lived on a farm in Adams County, Ohio, about two miles from the church. So, on Sunday morning we would dress up and start to church, down the long dusty road.

"Mother would make me walk behind her and hold up her dress until I would choke with dust, then stop at a creek crossing the road and she would make me take a drink of water and wash my face and hands, then go on.

MOTHER TRIMS GARMENT

"Well, Ma got sorry for me after a while and cut off about half a yard off her skirt. All I had to do then was to take a little stick and hold it up, which tired by arms. She was such a good mother, so she cut off some more.

"Other women saw this and the whole outfit of women cut off theirs and they have been cutting them off ever since.

"And, I don't care, for I am in my eighty-third year."

BEAUTY AND HEALTH GAIN

Some of the other letters follow:

In the nineties we thought the ladies looked nice—but that was because we had never seen them at their best. In my opinion American women have never before achieved the grace, beauty and health that they have today. And it is largely due to common sense dress and hygienic hairdressing. J. P. BOYNDON, 422 South Ave., Whitman, Mass.

OLD STLYES "TERRIBLE"

Give us the style of today. The styles with long skirts, puffy sleeves and so on look terrible! Let's keep away from that old, old-woman look!
EDNA ELIZABETH SWAMM.
21 Oregon street, Rochester, N. Y.

WITH SPIRIT OF AGE

Modern apparel is consciously in harmony with the spirit of the age. America leads the world in twentieth-century style.

Smart males used to sneer at woman's needing leisure for "the improvement of her mind." They did not know she had any. Today they know! Our up-to-date matron or bachelor girl does not spend all her time before the glass, over the washtub or the kitchen range—or in rocking the annual cradle.

Given to youthful play and bravado in her ways, woman has become self-reliant in her attitude to the world and to her "lord and master." ELIAS ARNESON, 1165 Holloway drive, San Francisco, Cal.

CORSET "PLASTER CAST"

When I see the girls of today returning to the styles of yesterday at the edict of the fashion-makers, I get sick at heart. I am nauseated at the thought of sickly children being borne by these women who would cover their beautiful bodies with plaster casts—for that is what it amounts to! If I had a daughter, she would never know the evil of a corset or a long skirt. I should want her children to be like my boy is—strong in body and clean in mind and heart.

And the men who prate about the long ago. Show me one of them who would wear long hair, as men did in the days of King George the Fourth! Show me one man who would wear a pair of corsets! Or who would wear high-heeled shoes and his pants trailing on the ground! Even the Scotchmen who wear skirts wear 'em above the knees!
MRS. ELLA V. ARMAND,
929 New Hampshire avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Kerosene Explodes; Woman Badly Hurt

Mrs. Charlotte Kelly, 27, of 15 Linden avenue, Duquesne, was probably fatally burned today when kerosene she was using to start a fire in the kitchen stove exploded, igniting her clothing. She was removed to the McKeesport Hospital. Her husband, James, suffered burns of his hands in extinguishing her blazing clothing.

The exercises were held in the main auditorium of the building with R. N. Spohn, president of Post No. 157, G. A. R., acting as master of ceremonies. The program included selections by the Fifth Avenue High School Band, invocation by Dr. Grafton T. Reynolds and addresses by William E. Ralston, the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, R. M. Sherrard, associate superintendent of schools and Attorney W. B. McFall, Jr.

Of the many thousand who answered the call to arms in 1861, only five members of Post No. 157 were able to attend. They were R. N. Spohn, John Little, John A. Friesel, J. C. Swearington and Charles Sheffler. Illness and infirmities of age kept the others confined to their homes.

O.K. EXTRA COST FOR BUILDING

Changes in the plans for the new county office building which will cost $35,679 were approved by the County Commissioners. The changes are in the floor plans and additional illumination. County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern objected.

When Director of Public Works Norman F. Brown asked for approval of the changes, McGovern said:

"Just as I expected—increased costs for this building. When you come in here asking for $10,000 for this and $10,000 for that somebody is at fault. The figures should have included these things. These are the same old excesses that have brought ill repute to the commissioners' administration for several years."

Brown countered McGovern's remarks and explained that these extras are not unusual.

The approval was given by 2 to 1 vote, McGovern voting "No."

Overhead Bridge Asked of Council

A delegation headed by Samuel Reno, Nineteenth Ward chairman, and Mrs. Della Hartner, has asked for an overhead bridge over Carson street at the foot of the Duquesne Incline. Reno declared that in the past few years seven have been killed and 25 injured at that point. Council, on motion of Harry A. Little, ordered a "stop and go" signal there while plans for the bridge are being prepared. The bridge will cost $15,000. An officer there would cost $2,500 yearly.

Price of Gasoline Goes Up One Cent

An advance of one cent a gallon on gasoline in Pennsylvania went into effect today, according to officials of the Atlantic Refining Company, which followed the action of other companies in increasing their prices.

New prices will be 16 cents, tank wagon, and 18 cents service station. This will increase the curb price to 22 cents, one cent of which will be dropped when the state tax is automatically reduced July 1.

THEATERS HOST TO BABIES

How will YOUR baby act upon seeing its first talking picture?

Will he be delighted, surprised and amused or will he be wary and a bit apprehensive?

Anyway, the fact remains that everyone is going to have a good time and simultaneously have an opportunity studying their baby's reaction to talking pictures.

The Sun-Telegraph and the Stanley Theater next Sunday afternoon are giving a free show for babies in arms and their parents. A ticket for this special show cannot be purchased at any price, the child being the means of admittance.

The "Baby Matinee" is but the opening event of an extensive program of unusual entertainment which all Warner Brothers theaters are featuring during the month of June.

Next week, at the Enright, "Graduation Week" will be observed, each high school of the East Liberty district having a night set aside for its benefit.

Peabody, Schenley, Westinghouse and Taylor Allderdice will each contribute a program of entertainment from the graduating classes on one of the nights of the week.

RECALLS FLOOD AT JOHNSTOWN

The forty-first anniversary of the Johnstown flood, Saturday, will find many persons throughout the country casting their thoughts back to the fatal day when a break in the South Fork dam across the Conemaugh River loosed the torrent that swept Johnstown's valley with destruction and death.

The only organized observance of the day in Pittsburgh will occur when about a dozen newspaper correspondents who covered the flood dine together for the fortieth time Saturday night, in the Roosevelt Hotel.

To John E. Myers, 76, retired Pennsylvania Railroad engineer, however, the memory of that day is more than the memory of thousands of tons of raging water and debris sweeping down on the peaceful city on the banks of the Conemaugh, bringing death to nearly 4,000 men, women and children, and property damage of $10,000,000.

It is the memory of a narrow escape from death, of an engineman watching from a hillside the torrents battering his train, depositing tons of rock and lumber against it and failing to beat it down.

Deeds of heroism, of sacrifice, brighten the records of that day. Tales of mothers rushing back for babies, of families saving themselves by clinging to floating houses, of locomotives carried along on the crest of the flood still live.

Aid from Pittsburgh and other cities and towns throughout the state and nation came quickly to help the stricken survivors. Thrifty, industrious, courageous, these people soon rebuilt their town where it stands today, busy with the grinding wheels of Pennsylvania's industry—leaving in the past memories of the fatal flood of 1889.

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XCVIII.

Chaos about her. Jonathan, the man—a struggle; Jonathan ordering: "Go—get out of here—what have you done—"

The man answering: "Sorry, sir—sorry—"

Broken sobs. God of anguish—that was Jennie crying so—like a child in terror: "A baby? My Chickie? A baby? Oh—did you say that—why—

Chickie called: "Mother—mother—" But her lips were dumb. Oh—reach the door—dash from them—hurl herself out—die—die now—

A form towered. She crouched. It grew bigger. Jonathan—her father—darling old Jonathan.

Blindly as one grouping through a dream of horror he reached out—he caught her. "Chickie — Chickie! Stop! Chickie—deny it—it's not so! Tell your mother—tell her—" He shook her.

"My God."

But he stooped, caught her, wrapped her in his arms—great sinewy arms. His voice rumbled. "Get out—didn't I tell you. You don't take her. By God, no! Get out!" And like that, straining her, he raised her to his shoulder, carried her from the room.

All the time that tortured cry of love that dies breaking on her ears. "My God! My God!"

Hearing it, she tried to beat his hands away. She pushed with all her frenzied strength and sobbed: "Let me go—you let me go—you will!"

But he laid her on the bed. He said, with his lips white under the straggly mustache: "Chickie—Chickie girl—your dad—"

Chickie Heartbroken

Her heart broke and all her faith and hope. It grew dark. It was quiet. Only a cry—a dying cry in her ears. She knew that—and nothing.

For it had happened—the brutal thing. Months of piteous bravery; months of aching loneliness. Now this—oh, the world would know—and Jimmy—and Mary—oh, all—all—

Figures moved in her room. They whispered. And there was a thing that had been glad—the proudest heart in all the earth because of her—that Jonathan. Now he walked about the hall. He chewed his lips—he chewed his heart—

Then Jennie came and sat beside the bed. Her hands were over her eyes. Chickie knew nothing of this.

Half conscious she cried out: "Jonathan — go" — and would have sprung from the bed; would have dashed to the window. No—they didn't know. They couldn't know. God would not do this to her—God would not dare—"Go—oh, Jonathan—you go!"

Jennie turned at that, but Jonathan came and kneeled at Chickie's bed.

Night worse than death—night when youth creeps away and every vestige of joy—even the last shred of hope—

She was awake. She turned from them, begging to die. Oh, let her die—she would—she would—

"You won't take me back—no—no—"

"Chickie, girl, we're brave—you and your old dad. Never mind now."

And there was no escape. He knew this. Now she knew it—bear it all—stand up and take it all.

They knew. The blasting shame was hers, after all.

Months of crucifixion—an awful night when she ran along a pier. The waters were so dark, so cold, lapping at her feet—Oh—that she had dropped in then—forgotten now—

In two hours that man with the red, heavy face would come for her; take her back to Vermont.

There came a ringing at the bell; suddenly voices—a man who said: "You might as well, Mr. Bryce. Give her side of it. It's out already—"

Sees News Story

Jonathan answering, suppressed, bewildered. Then rumbling in a low fury: "By God, you don't! By God, I'll kill you!"

Chickie's hands flew to her throat. She reached her father's side. He pushed her; plowed like a tortured animal down the passage—into the kitchen. He had the morning paper in his hand. He said: "Go away, —Chickie—go away."

She held to his arm—tried to speak. Her breath whirled dizzily—in a sickness. "Let me see—"

He shook his head. She begged, half fainting: "Oh, yes—I will—I will—" and snatched the paper from his lifeless hand.

Only a line of that she saw; "Local Girl in Death Probe." Only that. The blood went hot and thick and made a blindness in her eyes. She fought it back.

She turned from him with that gone and broken look in the rugged face. She said in a quiet: "It doesn't matter." Then read it word for word—

"Summoned to attend a coroner's inquest called at Castletown to inquire into the death of her infant daughter two months ago, under circumstances declared mysterious, Mrs. John Clayton was served with a subpena last night by Deputy Sheriff John Ricks. She will accompany him to Vermont today.

Mystery Case

"According to Ricks, a quiet investigation of the case has been under way by the authorities for several weeks. The child, born on the farm of Mrs. Agnes Robbins, north of Castletown, is declared to have been in good health when secretly taken away by the mother four days after birth.

"It is alleged to have died the same evening in the sanitarium of Dr. Robert Emerson, who attended the mother at the birth. Mrs. Clayton, Ricks said, then hurriedly left for her home, leaving funeral arrangements with Dr. Emerson. He is said to have signed the death certificate. The physician has been summoned to appear before the coroner's jury.

"Added mystery, Ricks declares, is the fact that Mrs. Clayton was known as Miss Helena Bryce in Rutland, where she stopped at a hotel for several days prior to the birth of the infant. Search for John Clayton has been fruitless.

"No one by the name of Mrs. John Clayton is known at the residence of Jonathan Bryce. Bryce refused to discuss the connection of his daughter, Miss Helena Bryce, with the case."

Play Life's Role With Courage to Gain Happiness, Counsels Fay King

FAY KING
HOW BRAVE ARE MANY WHO GO CHEERFULLY TO WORK FROM HOMES OF SICKNESS AND SORROW
THE ROUNDS OF SOCIAL LIFE ARE NOT ALWAYS AS GAY AND CAREFREE AS THEY READ!

By FAY KING

THOSE who seem the happiest are those who have learned to make the best of things.

In every life there is much sorrow and trouble of some kind or another. But the brave have learned to hide this side of their life from even close friends and associates.

Some do not even burden their near and dear ones with them. We often envy those in the spotlight of fame, or those whose riches seem to surround them with every luxury and gaiety.

They, too, have their trials and tribulations, but worries are more cleverly concealed with smiles and finery.

They have learned to play their roles well.

Those who whine most and loudest often have least of which to complain.

Learn to play your role well!

Madge Evades the Prying Eyes of Katie

But there was no sign of Mrs. Ticer when we entered the kitchen. The clam chowder she had been preparing for us was steaming in a kettle on the stove, but my neighbor, together with her hat and coat, was nowhere to be seen.

Katie rushed to her oven, opened it and drew an audible sigh of relief.

"I back in time," she said, with as much favor as Sheridan might have used on reaching Winchester. "She no tooch dose doomplings."

She shut the oven door and gazed around the kitchen blankly.

"Vere she go?" she demanded. "You say you take her home. Vot make her skeep oudt?"

But I had gone to the window and looked out at a tableau of my father and Mrs. Ticer in earnest conversation. I wished Katie to hear no word of that talk lest her temporarily appeased jealousy should be aroused again, and I gave her a hurried command as I moved toward the door.

"Better stir that chowder, Katie," I said over my shoulder. "Mrs. Ticer is in the yard. My father evidently wants her to do some errand for him. I'll be back in a minute."

I pretended not to hear Katie's rebellious murmur to the effect that "dot vomans stir her own chowder," but sped into the yard and gave a low-toned warning to my father.

"Don't let Katie hear you saying anything about The Larches. She knows nothing of the marauders over there and I don't want her to find out that Mrs. Ticer knows anything."

"Oh, Katie," my father called across my shoulder, and I realized that my little maid must be standing in the open kitchen door. "Will you please come out here. I need you. You were not in the kitchen, so I asked Mrs. Ticer to help me. But she is anxious to get away."

I applauded his quick wit as Katie with suspicion replaced by smiles came up to us, and took from my father's hands his overcoat, the pocket of which I had seen him tear with a strong surreptitious wrench as he called to her.

"I've torn my coat lining," he said, showing her the jagged rent, "and I want to go out again pretty soon. Will you have time to mend it?"

"Oh! sure, I feex," Katie caroled, her face sunny again. "I ut vot about showder, Ideesis Ticer? Meesis Graham she tell me to stir eet, und I do unce, but I no like meddle mit oder voman's cooking."

"Nonsense, Katie," Mrs. Ticer laughed indulgently. "You know all there is to do with that chowder now is to stir it once in a while, so it won't stick, and set it to the back of the stove when it's done."

"How I know ven eet done?" my little maid asked with an obstinancy that made me long for the power of corporal punishment which mistresses used to possess.

"I'll tell you, Katie," my father said briskly. "There isn't a man living today who knows the fine points of a chowder as I do." He drew himself up and bowed to Mrs. Ticer grandly, but with a merry twinkle in his eye. "Have no fear, madam," he said. "I shall sample the chowder at regular intervals and see that it is drawn back when it is done. And now, Margaret," his tone changed subtly, "if you are going to send that telegram, you ought to be going."

I took his cue at once. "I'll get my hat and coat," I said. "You are all ready, I see, Mrs. Ticer."

I took Mrs. Ticer with me to the telegraph office and consulted her about details as I framed my night letter to Mrs. Brinton. When I had finished I read it over for her approval.

"Have found place I am sure will suit you. Forty-foot living room—can be cleared for dancing, small reception room, library, dining rooms, breakfast room, kitchen pantries, seven master bedrooms, three baths, two maids' rooms, sitting room and bath. Chauffeur's living quarters over garage. Rental for month—," I named the sum Mr. Halset had given me—"Place is in order now, but if you wish will have woman give it thorough going over. Will also order coal and have fires started immediately and kept up until you come. Also can put in stock of groceries if you desire. Please advise me about this. Furniture in good condition, linen fair, plenty of plated silver. Please call on me for anything you wish."

The corners of Mrs. Ticer's mouth quirked into a grin as I finished reading.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, May 30

The sidereal operations for this day are to be interpreted as contradictory in their influence. While employment is under excellent prospect, and the personal affairs are under the kindliest rule of the stars, yet there may be some devastating or frustrating conditions to confront. There may be some undesirable and sudden change, accompanied by delays, obstacles or disappointment in attaining cherished desires. Physical conditions of concern over elderly persons may be contributory factors to this delayed state of affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of rather contradictory conditions with success in employment and satisfactory personal relations but there may be abrupt change and stubborn obstacles to overcome. There are signs of delays, postponements and setbacks, in which health may be a factor.

A child born on this day may have many talents, graces and accomplishments, fitting it for success in employment, but it may be restless, nervous, and be called on to work hard for its ultimate success.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND,

This Married Life

Furnishing an alibi comes as naturally to most married men, as furnishing a home comes to a woman.

When a girl attempts to read a man's palm, she is usually

If a man can survive his wife's third degree, without incriminating himself, he feels sufficiently encouraged to go right out and do it all over again.

The man who marries a temperamental wife seldom finds life dull; but he has to keep his wits at high-pressure, to avoid stepping on her uninsulated feelings left trailing around, or contacting her high-voltage nerves.

The only thing men seem to want to know about a woman's "past" in these days is how MUCH there is of it.

A widow is a bundle of tact, wisdom and experience, wrapped in mystery and tied with a love-knot.

Many a woman, who would shudder at the thought of trumping her husband's ace, will calmly take the point out of his best story or cap his wittiest remark, without batting an eyelash.

"Friend husband should take you out just two evenings a week," advises Jean Partridge, clubwomen. "The rest of the time, let him stay at home." Meaning probably, nail him to the floor, those other five evenings?

* * *

It is no real handicap for a woman to have brains and intelligence, even in these days, if she will only use them, to appear beautiful-and-dumb.

Many a man has married 90 pounds of "IT," only to find himself paying alimony, a few years later, to a 150 pounds of gold-digger.

Complete Sentences Important

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have received your most welcome letter and thank you for the complimentary answer, and I thank you ever so much for the knowledge that I have one friend who thinks and knows I do right.

1. Is a black derby proper for street wear at any time?
2. Is a black lace dress permissible for street wear?
3. Will you kindly let me know if the long sheet of letter paper is better taste, or the double sheet?
4. What shade is best, and should it be monogrammed?

E. K.

Good—I am so happy that my letter was helpful to you.

1. Yes.
2. No.
3. To my taste, the double-sheeted letter paper is far better looking and far more interesting for social correspondence, than is the single sheet. There is something business-like about a single sheet that I do not like for social letters.

The new ivory shades, just off-white, are beautiful, I think. A double-sheeted paper, of ivory tone, of generous proportions, written with good-looking handwriting, in black ink, the paper of as fine a quality as we can afford—this is, to my taste, about as perfect a background as we can get for our letters. White or cream paper is good, too, or light blue, if you like blue.

For your handwriting I recommend that you have a slightly larger paper. Your letter-form is good, and your handwriting is very good. One or two suggestions: Do not abbreviate any words on the envelope or in the heading; and do not write sentences without subjects—that is to say, "I received your letter," not "received your letter." Also, write out the word "and," rather than make the sign of and (&).

A Gracious Manner and "Pretty Words"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

How should a young girl show her appreciation to her escort for taking her to a ball and for flowers sent before? E. D.

With her most gracious manner and with her "prettiest words" she will thank him for both of these charming attentions and courtesies.

Household Hints

If the fat is on the fire and sputtering about until the fish is placed in the pan there is a way of pacifying its animated movements. Place a small piece of bread in the frying fat while it is being heated to the proper temperature and you will be surprised to find how it will behave.

The ogre that lurks above the kitchen sink might be described as a dirty baking dish. It is so much easier to wash if the casserole has been well buttered before the food has been placed in it. The buttering of the dish takes but a minute and it saves many minutes of tiresome scrubbing afterwards.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Know Values and How to Eat Foods

Why are some people undernourished? There are three chief reasons that underlie this so frequent condition. They are being unable to secure proper food, ignorance of the laws of nutrition, and a capricious appetite.

DR. COPELAND

Here in America the vast majority of people who know what to eat can by one means or another obtain it. The problem is to get the right selection of foods.

There are a great many persons who, because of lack of proper exercise or some other reason have little or no appetite. They eat when they get a chance and are constantly nibbling at this and that. Nothing really substantial in the way of food appeals to them.

Lack of proper diet is at the foundation of undernourishment or malnutrition. You can see why.

McCollum, the eminent malnutritionist, has said that faulty diet does not often produce sudden consequences. Its results are slow, insidious and sometimes extremely difficult to recognize.

Nutritional failure leads to numberless vague, poorly "defined states of ill health. The so-called "deficiency diseases," among which come beriberi, scurvy pellagra, rickets, and others, have their foundation in the lack of proper diet.

Diet should be considered as a whole, and all the essentials, the vitamins, carbohydrates, proteins and minerals, must be given equal importance. One of the most common mistakes is to have an excess of one of these food elements and a deficiency of another.

Thousands of people today indulge in a diet made up of refined foods. This is in direct contrast to the foods of the hardy mountain tribes of the Himalayas, who consume milk, eggs, whole grains, fruits and the leafy vegetables. People in those regions rarely have appendicitis or other stomach disorders. We need to get back to the coarser, natural foods.

Resistance to infection depends much upon good nutrition. It has been demonstrated again and again that a liberal, well-balanced diet protects against bacterial invasion. Also it hastens recovery from an infectious disease. Tuberculosis is a particularly good example. Its cure lies above all in proper diet, fresh air and sunshine.

Poise and stamina are dependent to a great extent on good, nutritious food. If you don't have poise you soon have an unstable nervous system and lack of emotional balance.

It is absolutely essential that the undernourished person should eat much of the "protective foods." These should include an abundance of milk, eggs, liver and kidneys, green vegetables and fresh fruits, particularly the citrus fruits, strawberries and raspberries.

Unless the little child from birth receives a proper diet you cannot hope to have it healthy. If the child is not breast-fed it should have the best of milk, orange juice or tomato or prune juice every day.

The nursing mother must supply herself and child with the foods that contain lime, iron, phosphorus and vitamins. She must include in her diet milk, eggs, a moderate amount of meat, and plenty of the fresh green vegetables. And as the child grows most careful attention must be given the diet. Eggs, mashed and strained vegetables, meat soups, white meat of chicken, lamb chops and simple desserts will make your youngster a hundred per cent healthy.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hard water flays the skin. It is responsible for itching, flaking, chapping. A good water softener is made by combining six ounces of rubbing alcohol, one-half ounce of ammonia, one dram of oil of lavender. Pour a few drops into a bowl of water when bathing the face. The lubbing will be more thorough and refreshing. Good for oily skin. Only a few drops are necessary; not more than half a teaspoonful of liquid is necessary.

Dogs and cats are given cod liver oil to make their fur coats thick and glossy. Now the humans are taking it. Cod liver oil contains vitamines that are good growers of bone, finger nails and hair. The plumptitudinous ones can't indulge, but all the dear skinnies can become addicts of the c. l. o. bottle. Fine for man and beast! Not to mention woman. Some day we shall have special diets for baldheads. what you eat is what you are, or at least what you look. Yazzum, that's what the doctors say!

In the human face there are fifty-five muscles. They are used when we eat, when we smile, when we frown. Muscles are attached to the skin by means of small fibers. If a woman frowns, permanent lines form between the eyes. Hence, temperament and disposition change our features. The sneery, sniffy woman grows a thin, mean nose. Honest!

Details of the beauty routine should be pleasurable habits. Not bothers, to be hurried through. The warm bath at night should be taken leisurely, enjoyed with a feeling of luxury. The brushing of the hair, the anointing of the complexion, the polishing of the fingernails, are delightful tasks, refreshing to the soul. After half an hour of beauty rites, nerves lose their tension and the supplicant for good looks is in better condition to sleep than if she had rolled into bed with uncombed hair and an unwashed face.

SPRINT KINGS MAY THREATEN RECORD

IN A YEAR of sensational speed spectacles and achievements, there is one event on the program for the I. C. 4-A. meeting opening at the Harvard Stadium tomorrow that promises to be a standout. No doubt it would be fairly worth while to be hanging around when Eddie Tolan, of Michigan, Frank Wykoff, of Southern California, and Hector Dyer, of Stanford, clash with the best of the East in the 100-yard dash. Even if Karl Wildermuth, of Georgetown, intercollegiate champion, does not compete, there will be enough class in that race to make it one of the greatest ever run.

Frank Wykoff

Such events do not always turn out in accordance with expectations, as witness the meeting of Tolan and George Simpson in Evanston last Saturday. Their clash at the century, in particular, had promised a thrilling contest and possibly a new record, yet Simpson won with comparative ease by a yard and a half in the disappointing time of 9.7 seconds. But that disappointment is not likely to be repeated at Cambridge. Every sign points to a great race and a close approach to world record time.

THE SAME SPRINT stars are to meet also at 220 yards, but it is the hundred that will hold the major part of public attention. Too bad Simpson, Bracey and Leland are not to be included among the starters. That would mean the greatest American field of all time. Even as it stands, however, the contest shapes up as one that ought to have a thrill in every yard.

Tolan is the officially-recognized holder of the world record of 9:5 seconds. In the A. A. U. meet at Denver last year, the bespectacled Negro beat Wykoff in both the century and the furlong. Wykoff also was defeated by Dyer this spring. Dyer making 9.8, but less than two weeks ago Wykoff turned the tables on Dyer in 9.7, and between those contests the Southern California flash ran the distance without blocks in 9.4, which is one-tenth of a second better than Tolan's world record. The Cambridge race ought to be one for the story books.

PITTSBURGH BASEBALL FANS were severely shocked by the sudden death of Hal Carlson, Cub pitcher. In his more than five seasons here, Carlson won a big personal following, and his record on and off the field was one that made him a credit to the game.

Hal Carlson

The loss of Carlson is a hard blow to Chicago's hopes for another pennant. He had won four games against two defeats and had given promise of having a good season. Even so strong a club as the Cubs must necessarily be weakened by the loss of a dependable regular moundsman in a season when there is perhaps a higher premium on good pitching than ever before.

HOW QUICKLY A ball club passes is brought to mind again by Carlson's death. Of more than 30 players who were Hal's team mates in 1923 before the Pirate management sent him to Wichita Falls, only Pie Traynor is still an active Buccaneer. Two others remaining on the club are Manager Jewel Ens and Coach Max Carey, but the playing careers of both have ended and Carey has returned only this season after three years in the service of another club.

PIRATES, REDS CLASH TWICE TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Aside from a brisk workout this morning, the Pirates are enjoying another rest period today. This date was left open when the schedule was made, and it so happened that the contest with the Cardinals scheduled for yesterday was postponed on account of wet grounds, the Buccos, therefore, indulging in two days of comparative idleness.

In view of the condition of the club, the rest and relaxation should prove beneficial. It will give Skipper Ens a chance to build up his pitching fences to a certain extent, and in a general way may help the Oaklanders.

TWO GAMES TOMORROW

Plenty of excitement is slated for the Oakland Orchard tomorrow, however. The annual Memorial Day games are on the Pirate calendar with the Reds carded to furnish the opposition. The games will strat at 10:30 a. m., and three p. m.

Manager Ens stated today that he probably would use his Gallic sharpshooters on the mound against the Rhinelanders. Leon Chagnon will grace, Fogarty Knoll in the forenoon battle with Remy Kremer slated for front-line duty in the afternoon fracas.

There is a chance that Paul Waner will be able to go to his position in the holiday scraps. The two days of rest, together with the treatment his bad hip has received, may bring him around for the games, but if he is unable to perform, Jim Mosolf or Ira Flagstead will be in right field.

Ervin Brame, it develops, was a sicker boy than most people thought. The tall Kentuckian was running a fever for about three days and only yesterday was he able to leave his bed. It isn't likely he will be able to pitch for a week, but Skipper Ens is hoping the star

JOHNSTON, VON ELM, OUIMET DEFEATED

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 29.—In two of the most stirring matches ever to grace a championship at historic St. Andrews, Bobby Jones, United States open champion, and George Voigt, of New York, one of America's ranking stars, turned in spectacular triumphs and advanced into the quarter-finals of the British amateur tournament here this afternoon.

Jones recorded his afternoon victory at the expense of Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston, American amateur titleholder, in a thrilling duel that ended on the home green. Jones' victory margin was 1 up.

Voigt's triumph rewarded him for a great rally in a great fight in which he came from behind to nose out W. L. Hope, of England, 2 up.

Although Jones was 4 up when five holes remained to be played, there was not that much difference in the play of the two American champions at any time. In tight places Jones seemed able to make the breaks and this turned the scales of fortune.

JOHNSTON RALLIES

The open champion, after apparently establishing a commanding lead early in the homeward journey had to fight back a sensational attack from the amateur champion in the closing holes.

Johnston shot two birdies at Jones on the fourteenth and seventeenth holes and brought the match to the home green.

Jones' sudden break, after his amazing sequence of pars and birdies—he was 1 under par to the thirteenth—was one of the most dramatic happenings ever recorded at old St. Andrews.

The setting for the finish of the exciting match was ideal before the clubhouse of the Royal and Ancient Club.

Stampeding galleries approaching the size of yesterday's, followed the battling Americans all the way, and scrambled across the swilcan burn to see the finish.

The crowd seemed even more

NEW YORK, May 29.—The American League race is settling down on the Red Sox as usual.

Boston is not only the hub of the universe, it is the center of gravity for baseball teams, too. If any team but the Red Sox ever got in the cellar the burglar alarm would go off. I see the Athletics are making cracks that our Washington club won't be up there much longer. That's what they said when Shipwreck Kelly started flagpole sitting. They had to saw off the pole to get him down. All the A's have got to do to grab our perch is come on up and get us.

Von Porat Stops Gagnon in Sixth

CHICAGO, May 29.—(AP.)—Battered to the floor six times Jack Gagnon, the Boston sailor, fell a knockout victim before Otto Von Porat's heavy right hand blasts in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round battle in the Chicago stadium last night.

The Norwegian heavyweight, opening his new campaign for recognition as a contender for the championship, felled Gagnon twice in the second round, again in the third, and three times in the sixth before Gagnon was counted out.

The battle was witnessed by 12,000 with gate receipts estimated at approximately $38,000.

SALTSBURG, Pa., May 29.—The St. Vincent's College nine defeated Kiski here yesterday, 8 to 6.

LaBarba Victor In Tame Bout

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Fidel LaBarba, chunky featherweight from Los Angeles, managed to defeat Bushy Graham, bounding Utica veteran, last night in a 10-round battle of former champions that closed the indoor season at Madison Square Garden and added nothing to the prestige of either.

One of the smallest gatherings of the faithful this season, about 5,000, gathered to root the indoor season into the great outdoors for the summer and stayed under protest to sigh with relief and boo gently when it was over. The struggle was slow in all but the barest spots.

The feature game of the sandlots this evening will be flashed in the C. & I. League when Reick McJunkin, champion of the loop, faces the Baltimore and Ohio aggregation at Sullivan field.

In the opening game of the season, a pitchers' battle between Laboon and Turek was won by the latter, and the champions are out to revenge that defeat. Each club has only lost one game, and to keep in the running with the flying Reliance Life aggregation, neither club can afford to lose.

In the West Penn League, three games are scheduled. North Bessemer will travel to Wilmerding to meet the Airbrake nine. Universal will meet Verona Community at Cribbs field. Dormont, the only undefeated club in the circuit, will be the attraction at Whitaker.

Lutton's Beckman Motors club will have a stiff battle on its hands this evening when Etna visits the South Hills. Lincoln Civics will travel to Magee field to meet Y. M. H. A.

The City League encounters bring together Pleasant Valley at W. O. W., J. L. Thomas at Book Shoe and Stowe Civics at North Side Civics.

The long victory streak of the Homestead Grays, which had reached 33, was snapped last evening by the Stowe Civics in a feature independent sandlot battle. The Stowe nine won 2 to 0. Bradley Fouling the Negro sluggers to six scattered hits. Two walks and a single produced the victors' runs.

In the City League, W. O. A. downed the J. L. Thomas nine 8 to 2. Homewood trimmed Verona 6 to 4, in the West Penn League, and in the C. & I. circuit Reliance Life defeated Mine Safety, 7 to 0, and Joseph Hornes walloped Dravo, 17 to 4.

The Dan Heeps blanked the Jenkins, 8 to 0, in the Greater Pittsburgh League. St. Adelberts won over Iroquois, 4 to 3, in the Major League and the East Liberty Crimsons won from St. Elizabeth, 1 to 0, in the Steel City loop.

TURTLE RACES CARDED HERE

Turtle racing will be introduced to Pittsburgh tomorrow when a two nights' series of races will be held at Duquesne Garden.

Nine races are on the program for the inaugural program, many prominent Pittsburghers having turtles entered. Races will be over the 20, 25 and 30-foot distances.

Among the Pittsburgh celebrities who have turtles entered are A. C. Couch, with Timekeeper; John McGarvey, with Fistic and Gloves; Joe Hiller with Songster; Judge Samuel Gardner, with Jurist; Pie Traynor, with Idol; Paul Waner, with Swat; William Boyce, with Beaver; Frank Cervone, with Trumpet; Max Carey, with Scoops and Georges Holmes, with Pool Ball.

Sport Vignettes

This is one of the famous "dog days" that we hear so much about . . . . In case you don't get the connection, the greyhound race meeting gets under way at the New Kensington fair grounds tonight, and the Bridgeville Speedway bow-wow meeting, which began last Saturday night, continues its sway . . . . Evidently there will be plenty of customers for both enterprises . . . . Bridgeville broke the ice for the sport here last summer, running in such an orderly fashion that the newly-made devotees of the fascinating pastime were glad to welcome back the runners this year . . . . Both meets are being run under American Legion auspices, but they are being conducted by rival organizations . . . . The New Kensington meet is sanctioned by the International Greyhound Racing Association, which brands all meets held outside its pale as "outlaw" affairs . . . . Dog-racing men, however, tell me there are just as good dogs in the latter group as in the International events . . . . The International organization is quite an elaborate body . . . . It controls its meets much as the Jockey Clubs oversee the horse racing meets, issuing licenses to owners and trainers and maintaining a stud book in which all dogs are registered as to weight, age, color, sex and pedigree . . . . Dogs are weighed twice a day to prevent "loading" them so they will not be able to run at their best speed . . . . Overweight or underweight dogs are scratched from any races in which they are entered . . . . This is a safeguard to protect the betting public . . . . A great deal of money is invested in the building of tracks and in the blooded racing animals.

Bill Powley, former Verona star, who went to the training camp with the New York Giants and recently was farmed to Bridgeport of the Eastern League, managed by Hans Lobert, who began his career on the local sandlots, writes Honus Wagner and Tom Birks that he won his first game, 9 to 3, but they are thinking of converting him into an outfielder or infielder because of his batting . . . . He hit .500 in his first 22 times at bat, making 11 hits . . . . He says he plans to play in a few sandlot games here after the Eastern League season closes on September 14, unless the Giants recall him for the remainder of the year . . . . He is highly pleased with his professional career so far, but hasn't forgotten the boys back home who helped to give him his start.

Vincent Forgione, who lost to Gorilla Jones in their bout in the Meyers Bowl the other night, got away with "murder" in the first few rounds, stepping on one of the Gorilla's feet repeatedly and holding him there until he could wheel his left hook to the body into action . . . . It was quite a trick . . . . By the way, the best gag of the chilly night was furnished by a ringsider, who didn't care in a big way for Jones' dilatory tactics at the start and yelled: "Hey, Gorilla, you're not even a chimpanzee to me!"

Phil Schlossberg, manager of Ernie Schaaf, who recently was given a decision over Tommy Loughran in Philadelphia and meets him again there, June 9, avers his Ernie would make a better opponent than Max Schmeling for Jack Sharkey . . . . Believe it or not.—HARRY KECK.

SEC. I WOMEN TEAMS CLASH

With one of the biggest Decoration Day golf programs ever carded on the books for tomorrow, the week's district tournament play comes to a close today at the Allegheny Country Club, with Section I, of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania, staging another of its league matches.

GENEVA CHOICE TO RETAIN TITLE

By JESS CARVER.

With Geneva as defending champion (when hasn't it been?) the sixth annual Tri-State Conference track and field championships will be run off tomorrow morning and afternoon at Reeves Stadium, Beaver Falls.

Geneva has ruled the conference track and field roost since the organization had its inception, back in the foggy days of 1926, and unless an epidemic of broken arms and legs strikes the Covenanter camp between now and meet time tomorrow, the Gold and White figures once again to force Westminster, Bethany, Duquesne, Waynesburg and Thiel to take its dust, and about in the order named.

Bill Bohlender, of Grove City, who ran a 9.8 hundred in the championship dual meet with Ellwood yesterday, and his teammate, Jim Dunn, javelin tosser, left last night for Chicago, where they'll compete in the National Interscholastics at the University of Chicago tomorrow and Saturday.

Ellwood City, Beaver County and W. P. I. A. L. champ, defeated Grove City, Mercer County and Northwestern ruler 69-53 in their dual engagement.

440-yard dash—Dinn, Schrader, Smith, Malloy.
880-yard dash—Lermond, O'Meara, Baldmore, Donaldson.

LOCAL SHARPS PICK DALE AS WINNER

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Has Jackie Rodgers picked off a surprise package for himself in agreeing to meet Jimmy Dale, of Indianapolis, in the 10-round main bout of the second show of the new Hickey Park Boxing Club in Millvale tonight?

Many of the fistic railbirds who haunt the local gymnasiums think so, after having watched Jimmy go through his paces at the Homewood Progressive Club the last few days, and they will be on hand backing Jimmy tonight.

Although virtually unknown in these parts, Jimmy comes here with a fine record, including battles against Eddie Shea, Pee Wee Kaiser, Phil O'Dowd, Sailor Larsen, Hilly Levine, Frankie Tucker, Frankie Larabee, Lou Terry, Tait Langford and others, and with the recommendation of Jim Buchanan, of Charleroi, manager of Willie Davies. He recently knocked out Kaiser in one round.

Rodgers has prepared faithfully for the test in Davies' training camp in the mountains near Everett, Pa., taking no chances of being caught napping. He is matched with Johnny Datto, terrific-hitting Filipino, of Cleveland, at the Meyers Bowl, June 16, and doesn't want to risk losing this match by running into a reverse tonight. He returned to town yesterday, fit for action.

Tommy Ward, of the South Side, subbing for Roger O'Brien, meets Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, in the semi-final of eight rounds tonight. In the two six-round bouts, Don Frazier, of the North Side, meets Al Farone, of the West End, while Sammy Paris, of the Hill, will mix with Paul Balint, of the North Side.

Between Rounds

The Meyers Bowl is looking for its first good break for the season Monday night, when Willie Davies steps into action against Buck Bell, of Cleveland, in the 10-round windup. Bell and Davies have met a number of times in the last half-dozen years, twice in Havana, and honors have been evenly divided between them, with Bell grabbing the palm in their most recent clash, in the flyweight elimination tournament in New York, which ended with Midget Wolgast being crowned world champ.

If Davies wins Monday night, the Bowl will try to lure Wolgast into a title match with him later in the summer. Willie last year defeated two title claimants in overweight matches at the Bowl, Frankie Genaro and Corp. Izzy Schwartz.

Buck McThomas will box the main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Thursday night, likely against Irish Tommy Jordan, of Brooklyn.

Sparky Ewalt and Lawrence (Fuzzy) Ouis, have been matched for the main bout of the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. open-air amateur boxing show next Tuesday night.

The Meyers Bowl card for next Monday night was completed today with the signing of Harry Spencer and Georgie Chambers for the second bout. Patsy Pirrone and Harry Williams are in the semi-final and Johnny Warner and Georgie Tomecki in the opener.

Sharkey Promises Not To Retire With Title

By JACK SHARKEY, American Heavyweight Champion.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., May 29.—William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, asked me the other day what I wish him to do with me in the event I win from Max Schmeling in our 15-round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world at the Yankee Stadium, New York, June 12.

Jack Sharkey.

Carey had a perfect right to ask such a question, as I am under contract to defend the title for the Garden next year if I upset the German Dempsey.

"All I ask is that you match me with the best available challenger in the summer of 1931," I told Carey. "As soon as my bout with Schmeling is over, sign up every heavyweight in the world, let them battle among themselves and you can toss me in with the survivor. It never has been the policy of Johnny Buckley nor myself to hand-pick opponents.

"The fact that I have battled Wills, Godfrey, Dempsey, McTigue, Stribling, Loughran, Maloney, Scott, Risko, Heeney and the rest of the big fellows bears out my statement."

WILL LOSE TITLE IN RING

And then I assured Carey:

"Another thing, Bill, I won't retire on you. I shall keep on battling as long as I am the champion. When I lose my title, it will be under fire against somebody who is a better scrapper than myself.

"This is the way John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries, Tommy Burns, Jack Johnson and Jack Dempsey passed out as headliners.

"I always have felt that Gene Tunney did the heavyweight field an injustice when he retired with his title. It would have been different if Gene couldn't get first-class men to battle. He should have stuck to his guns until his title was blasted from him.

"I always felt I could have beaten Tunney. Maybe Gene held a similar opinion. Anyhow, he retired without giving me a shot at him."

TO BE FIT FOR TEST

Carey appeared pleased with my statement. He apparently concluded it will be easy for him to stage a heavyweight title scrap in 1931 after I upset Schmeling.

The principals in two opening six-round bouts will be Rual Bianchi and Stanley Poveda, and Marty Fox and Pierre Brandt.

Victorio Campolo, South American heavyweight, has been selected as alternate in the event of illness of either Sharkey or Schmeling.

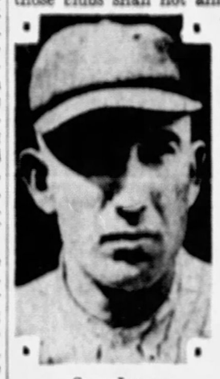
Glazner, George Boehler, Earl Kunz and Jim Bagby.

The infielders were Traynor, Charley Grimm, Rabbit Maranville, Cotton Tierney, Johnny Rawlings, Eddie Moore, Spencer Adams and Lu.s, and the outfielders were Carey, Carson Bigbee, Reb Russell, Clyde Barnhart and Heinie Mueller. Bill McKechnie was manager. It doesn't take long for a team to become a mere memory.

WITH THE AIM of discouraging betting on ball games in New York, Commissioner K. M. Landis has issued an order to the heads of the Giants, Yankees and Dodgers that hereafter the managers of those clubs shall not announce the names of their pitchers for the day until just before game time.



Sam Jones

John McGraw has not been making advance announcements, but there have been leaks on his selections. Bob Shawkey and Wilbert Robinson have been giving their choices to the papers as a matter of news interest. Officials of the Pittsburgh and St. Louis clubs said they had not received any order of that nature from the commissioner.

THOUGH WALTER JOHNSON has been getting great work out of Lloyd Brown, Ad Liska and Bobby Burke, the younger members of his pitching staff, the part that the veteran Sam Jones has been playing in Washington's dizzy spring drive is not to be overlooked. Sad Sam will be 38 in July, but, far from showing any sign of slipping, he has made the impressive record of six victories and no defeats. The only other pitcher in the big leagues who has won six games without a reverse is Bob Grove, of the A's, and Grove was knocked off the hill in a couple of games that did not count in his record. Jones has beaten every other club in the American League except Chicago.

THE ONLY PITCHERS apart from Jones and Grove in the upper leagues who have won more than five games to date are Ted Lyons, won eight and lost two; Harry Seibold, won seven and lost two; Wesley Ferrell and Walter Stewart, won seven and lost three; Dazzy Vance, won six and lost two, and Rube Walberg, won six and lost three.

Sam Gray, of the Browns, is running alone at the foot of the pitching table. He has lost eight games without turning in a victory. Every other club in his league except New York has beaten him and Detroit has done it three times. Gray is still far from equaling the major league record for straight defeats, however. John Nabors, of the Athletics, lost 19 in a row from May 9 to September 28, 1916.

JIMMY M'LARNIN is believed by the majority of fight followers to be the best welterweight of the present day, even though he does not hold the championship, but from all indications McLarnin is not going to get any early chance to prove it.

When Jackie Fields held the title he sidestepped a title match with McLarnin in New York and instead accepted a much lower offer from Detroit to take on Young Jack Thompson, whom he figured would be easy picking, inasmuch as he had beaten the Negro in two previous bouts.

THAT FIELDS MADE a bum guess is still fresh in fandom's memory. Thompson gave him a lacing and took away his crown. However, the change in champions evidently is not going to help McLarnin get the title chance he deserves. For Thompson appears to have adopted the same play-safe policy that was followed by Fields. He seems to want none of McLarnin's game. Frank J. Bruen, general manager of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, says that Ray Alvis, manager of Thompson, made three appointments with him to close a McLarnin-Thompson match for a summer date in New York but on all three occasions failed to appear.

Jimmy McLarnin

CONVINCED THAT THOMPSON'S business handlers will not allow him to fight McLarnin, adds that he will make no further attempt to arrange a match, and that if the Thompson people want the bout they will have to come to him.

It's a pretty safe bet that they won't do that in a hurry, at least as long as there is easier money to be picked up elsewhere. Jack Kearns is now reported to be a silent partner in the management of Thompson, which strengthens the probability that the Negro will not be allowed to take any rash chances with his new title.

CUBS, BRAVES BROWNS WIN

Rain and wet grounds cut short yesterday's schedule in the major leagues. One game was played in the American League and two were run off in the National.

At Boston, Socks Seibold won his seventh game in nine starts, beating the Phillies 5 to 1. At Chicago the Cubs nosed out the Reds, 6 to 5, with Kiki Cuyler hitting for the circuit.

In the American League, the Browns bested the Tigers, 4 to 2. Stewart turning in his seventh win of the year.

Sarubbi, Oldtime Boxing Star, Dies

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Anthony Sarubbi, once known as "Young Wagner," a leading boxed of a score of years ago, died in his home in Greenwich Village as he was celebrating his forty-second birthday yesterday. He had been ill about a month.

He fought Johnny Dundee, Johnny Kilbane, K. O. Brown, Terry McGovern and Frankie Burns, among others. He retired from the ring 17 years ago.

Six of his 10 surviving brothers are fighters, three of them being amateurs.

SERIES ON TODAY

Schenley High School will begin the defense of its City League baseball crown this evening at Forbes Field when it opposes Oliver in the first of a three-game series.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER

Well, folks, them clouds in the sky may turn out to be sunshine. A coupla days off right now won't hurt with Paul and some more of the star out of there. Erv Brame was sittin' up yesterday and I think he'll be ready to pitch in about a week. If we could get Paul and Lloyd back in the game and Erv takin' his regular turn, we could go along O. K. without Steve, who probably won't be able to pitch until after the Fourth of July.

What kinda stuff is that them new owners is pullin' in Cincy. I heard some of the oldtimers talkin' about it, and they can't figure it out. They're runnin' the Reds like a bargain basement, and if Dan Howley doesn't look out he'll be right in that basement when the bell rings next fall. Hughey Critz, Ethan Allen and Pete Donohue was three of the biggest stars on that club, and they'll have quite a time replacin' them, even if McGraw passes them over a hundred grand.

Guess you notice there's not so much talk about the lively ball since Dazzy Vance reeled off that two-hit game. I'm anxious to see that bird pitch, although I don't want to see him work a two-hitter against our club.

Hughey Critz was telling me a funny one concernin' Dazzy. You know Hughey lives down in the wilds of Tennessee where there's a flock of Amoses and Andys. Well, most of them good-natured boys are wild about baseball and they're wild about Hughey, who talk jes' like one of them, himself.

Hughey says when he goes home at the end of the season he is called upon to answer dozens of questions poured at him by the Negro lovers of the game. He tells of one ol' darkey who was all steamed up about Vance. This fella came up to Hughey and says:

"Ah say, Mistah Hughey—what yo-all say about this heah Mr. Vance. I guess when Mistah Vance throws that ball it jes' looks like a lemon seed!"

Well, we ain't got any pitcher who can flip that ball so fast it looks like a lemon seed, but Glenn Spencer is gonna show you a fast one that will be fast enough to fool a lot of birds who are pickin' on some o' the soft pitchin'. And then we've got Leon Chagnon who is just about as fast as Spencer.

Pie Traynor also has a peach of a yarn about Dazzy. Pie was with Birmingham when Dazzy was pitchin' for New Orleans. One hot afternoon Daz was just right and he fanned about a dozen Barons in seven innings. As he came by the Birmingham bench in the the seventh, Dazzy said.

"Boys, is that buckshot I'm throwin' out there botherin' you fellows any?"

DUKES, GROVER NET TEAMS PLAY TIE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Grant Sive.ds Dukes and the Grovers of Bob Thorn braved boreal blasts on the Bluff yesterday and fought to a 3-3 racquet stand-off in a tussle that was as hotly contested as the afternoon was chill.

Capt. Andy Smeaton of the Hillmen annexed his tenth consecutive singles verdict in the number one debate at the expense of Mike Koma, Grove City ace, but not without the hardest sort of a tussle.

The Dukes invade Beaver Falls for a Tri-State Conference clash with Geneva tomorrow morning. The summary:

Singles—A. Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated M. Koma, Grove City, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5; Greg Gilly, Grove City, defeated Campbell, Duquesne, 6-4, 6-2; P. Koma, Grove City, defeated Chase, Duquesne, 6-2, 5-7, 7-5; W. Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated Montgomery, Grove City, 6-4, 6-1.

Doubles—Smeaton and Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated Koma and Koma, Grove City, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4; Greg Gilly and Montgomery, Grove City, defeated Campbell and Casey, Duquesne, 6-4, 7-5.

An echo of last Saturday's ill-fated attempt to open the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League campaign is heard in announcement from Capt. Sam Keller, of Duquesne Library that his proteges, by dint of moving to other courts when their own remained soaked after the deluge of the morning, contrived to complete seven of their nine scheduled tilts with Newt Norris' Canonsburg aggregation.

'Twas quite a testimonial to the two new teams' spirit that they ignored the elements to inaugurate the season. The score stood 4-3 in the Librarians' favor when hostilities were finally called off and because of the scattering of the contestants to various lots for their frays, the returns were not gathered until some time later. The unplayed seances will be played in the near future.

NEW 'HIGH' FOR JONES

Jones has now passed the round in which he was eliminated the last time he played in the British amateur championship. In 1926 at Muirfield he was eliminated in the sixth round. In his first attempt, at Hoylake in 1921, he lost in the fourth round.

Voigt is playing in the British championship for the first time.

The defeat of George Von Elm, in an exciting extra-hole match this morning, removed the last chance of an all-American final as Von Elm was the only player from the United States left in the lower bracket. Both Voigt and Jones are in the upper half of the draw. Francis Ouimet fell with Von Elm in the fifth round.

Douglas Grant made three Americans in the quarter-finals, although he no longer lives in the United States, when he defeated the Hon. Michael Scott, conqueror of Von Elm, 3 up and 1 to play.

William Sutton, former English native champion, advanced to the quarter-finals by defeating Dr. William Tweddell, former British amateur champion, 4 up and 3 to play.

Eric Fiddian eliminated T. A. Torrance, the only British Walker Cup player to win a match against the United States in the last two international competitions, 4 and 3.

CUP STARS LOSE

Jones, Johnston and Voigt were the only Americans remaining in the tournament after the fifth round, which brought defeat to George Von Elm, Detroit, and Francis Ouimet, Boston, members of the United States Walker Cup team.

Jones, Johnston and Voigt all won with comparative ease in the morning, Jones defeating G. O. Watt, 7 and 6; Johnston stopping D. C. Murray, 5 and 3, and Voigt eliminating William Campbell, 4 and 2.

Von Elm was defeated by the 52-year-old Hon. Michael Scott, scion of a famous British golfing and banking family, in a stirring 20-hole watch in which the Detroiter came from behind to square the match, only to lose later.

Ouimet lost to Lister Hartley, 4 and 3.

YANKS IN FAST STRIDE

Jones hit the turn in a blinding 34, two under par, to be 5 up on Watt at the finish of the first nine in their morning match. With birdies popping in and out of the cup with regularity, Bobby annexed the eleventh and twelfth and finished the match without losing a single hole. The cards:

In..... 4 3 4

Watt—
Out..... 5 4 4 5 5 4 4 5 5—40

Voigt played foolproof golf in eliminating Campbell. The New Yorker shot a par 36 to be 2 up at the turn, and added birdies at the tenth and twelfth to make his victory certain. The cards:

Voigt—

In..... 3 5 5 4 3 4 4

Campbell—
Out..... 5 5 4 4 5 4 3 4 4—38

In eliminating Murray, Johnston, like Voigt, shot a par 36 to the turn to be 2 up, and simply ran right over the Briton on the incoming nine. The cards:

Murray—

Ouimet's defeat at the hands of Hartley was due to the fact that he couldn't hold Hartley's rapid pace on the incoming nine, the Briton playing the last six holes of the match in exact pars. The cards:

VON ELM BEATEN

In losing to Scott, Von Elm lost to a fine golfer who four times was champion of Australia, and twice French amateur champion. Von Elm was 1 down at the turn and still was 1 down when only one hole of the 18 remained to be played, but the Detroiter squared the match and carried it into extra holes, only to lose at the twentieth. The cards:

Von Elm—

The team consists of Luis Lacey, Gerald Balding, Capt. C. T. Roark and Alden Roark.

Announcement of the prospective British four to play the United States for the International cup at Meadowbrook in September discloses not only a radical shakeup in English plans but immeasurably strengthens the chances of the challengers.

Only one of the four named, the dashing Irish internationalist, Capt. Pat Roark, was included in the original British trial lineup.

DRIVERS AWAIT INDIANAPOLIS AUTO RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29.—(AP.)—Roaring motors, scheduled to bark their battle cry at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway tomorrow in the eighteenth annual 500-mile automobile race, were given their final inspection today by their 38 drivers and mechanics.

The track was closed for a chemical bath intended to remove all the oil that has dripped from the cars during the last 30 days' practice period. Following a drivers' meeting late today, however, there was a likelihood that the boys would be given a chance for a few final tuning spins.

The 38 cars which qualified for the event mark the largest field that has participated in a 500-mile race since 1911. For many years, the racing authorities limited the number to 33, but the expansion came with the elimination of the supercharger and the passing of the single-seated speedster models. The qualifiers and their positions follow:

First row—Billy Arnold, Chicago; Louis Meyer, South Gate, Cal.; William (Shorty) Cantlon, Detroit.

Second row—Louie Schneider, Indianapolis; Chester Gardner, Pittsburgh; Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles.

Fourth row—Cy Marshall, Indianapolis; Phila Farmer, Philadelphia; Lou Moore, Los Angeles.

righthander will be able to return soon after the Buccos start their first Eastern invasion. The trek over the Alleghanies will begin next Monday night.

L. WANER GAINS

Late reports on the condition of Lloyd Waner are very favorable. The convalescent star of the outfield is said to have picked up about five pounds in a week and is still gaining. He is in the Union Memorial Hospital at Baltimore, but will soon be discharged, according to present plans.

The Pirates are due to finish up the week with the Reds by playing a single contest on Saturday. After this game the Buccos will head for Chicago, where on Sunday they will take on the Bruins in a single game, then back to Pittsburgh for a tilt with Connie Mack's world champions on Monday. The Athletics will stop off to show their style in this National League stronghold. The contest should be exceptionally interesting.

Skipper Ens will lead his team Eastward after the clash with the "A's." Brooklyn will be the first stop on the Seaboard itinerary.

COEN DEFEATED; TILDEN WINS

AUTEUIL, France, May 29.—(AP.)—Wilbur Coen, eighth ranking American tennis player, was eliminated in the fourth round of the French hard court championships today by Baron Humbert de Morpurgo, Italian veteran, in straight sets. The scores were 6-3, 6-4, 6-1.

The Kansas City youngster's defeat left Bill Tilden as the only American standardbearer in the men's singles. Morpurgo's victory carried him into the quarter final round.

Elizabeth Ryan, native Californian residing in England, defeated Yvette Barbier, of France, 6-1, 6-2 to reach the quarter finals. Miss Ryan played magnificent tennis and is considered likely to reach the semi-finals, where she probably would meet her doubles partner, Helen Wills Moody.

Bill Tilden defeated G. P. Hughes, England's third ranking player, to enter the quarter-finals. The scores were 6-1, 8-10, 7-5, 6-3, the American champion losing a set for the first time in the tournament.

Hughes gave Tilden a battle royal the entire match excepting the first set, in which he was visibly nervous. He proved easily the hardest opponent Big Bill has yet encountered in this tournament? Tilden tried every shot in his repertoire, but the Britisher fought back gamely as well as cleverly. Hughes showed in this match that he is one of the best young players England has uncovered in recent years.

Record Entry Filed For Open Tourney

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—A record breaking entry of 1,170 players has been received for the 1930 American open golf championship by the United States Golf Association. They will compete in the 20 sectional qualifying tournaments. The 72-hole championship test will take place at the Interlachen Club, Minneapolis, July 10-11-12.

Because of the size of the entry, H. H. Ramsay, chairman of the championship committee of the U. S. G. A., announced it would take some time to separate the entries by district and allot the qualifying places. Approximately 160 will qualify altogether, the American players now abroad being exempt from the sectional tests, along with the first 30 finishers in the 1929 championship.

Wells, Sharpsville, Named Oiler Coach

OIL CITY, Pa., May 29.—(INS.)—Harold L. Wells, athletic coach and instructor in the Sharpsville, Pa., schools, near here, has been elected to succeed H. E. Brown, local junior high instructor. It was announced here today. Wells, however, will do no coaching.

Brown, former coach in the local schools, goes to Pleasant City, O., where he will become superintendent of schools.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 29.—Suffering from the pre-holiday apathy of traders, the listed bond market dozed today. Its lassitude held prices close to yesterday's close, with a slight tendency to sag evidenced by early trading. Only a few bonds which were among those accumulated moderately made any progress upward in the dull market.

Tariff Protests Multiply; Will Hoover Veto?

By B. C. FORBES

WILL PRESIDENT HOOVER veto the tariff bill?

The opinion is growing that he will.

BEFORE HIS ELECTION Mr. Hoover laid very great stress upon the importance of earning and maintaining the goodwill of other nations and upon the vital necessity for developing foreign trade in order to make prosperity possible in this country. On both subjects he used very emphatic language. He made it starkly clear that it would be economic suicide for the United States to do anything which would tend to make foreign consumers less willing or less able to purchase American products, since our well-being depended upon finding foreign outlets for these products.

HOW DOES THE HOCUS-POCUS tariff now before Congress harmonize with the principles and policies laid down by Mr. Hoover?

COULD IT HAVE CLASHED more violently with these principles and policies if our politicians had purposely addressed themselves to the task of confounding and frustrating President Hoover?

MORE THAN 30 NATIONS have voiced protests against the treatment threatened them under the Smoot-Hawley-Grundy tariff. The boycotting of American goods has been seriously proposed in Europe. Canada, our best customer, is incensed and plans retaliation, penalizing imports of American products. Latin Americans are aroused. Virtually the whole world is up in arms against the United States.

HOSTILITY IS SCARCELY less acute at home. Press and people in most parts of the country express bitter indignation. Manufacturers and consumers alike predict disaster should the tariff schemers get away with their hugger-mugger.

PRESIDENT LUDWIG STEIN, of B. Kuppenheimer & Company Inc., the nationally-known clothing manufacturers, in the course of a lengthy letter to this column, says:

"This letter is addressed to you in the hope that the weight of your expressed opinion may be placed behind the movement to urge the president to veto the tariff bill.

"The higher rates have already unleashed a torrent of retaliation which must ultimately become world-wide. With our tremendous production capacity, the prosperity of the United States largely depends on our ability to retain our foreign trade. We can hardly expect those nations to whom we make our largest export shipments to continue to import from us when we place prohibitive tariffs on the products of their manufacturers.

"Our present tariffs are sufficiently high to protect home industries. Further advance will serve only to advance the present cost of living.

"The Board of Governors of the Clothing Manufacturers' Research Board, have addressed the President urging him to preserve the future of foreign trade by vetoing the pending bill. Various economists—trained analysis whose findings are usually accurate—have addressed him on the same subject.

"Similar expressions from the leaders of all industries would serve to fortify the President in his desire to act for the common good. I am appealing to you in the hope that you will broadcast an appeal to the heads of all large businesses.

"In my opinion, such a step on your part would immediately result in action from the business men and bodies who are most vitally interested in the welfare of the United States."

PARAGON OFFER HINTS MERGER

Henry C. McEldowney, president of the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, last night admitted that his organization had made an offer for the purchase of the Paragon Refining Company but refused to state what plans the Mellon interests have for the company.

While rumors have been current that Paragon is to be consolidated with the Gulf Oil Corporation, J. E. Nelson, treasurer of Gulf, stated that he had no knowledge of the purchase and said that he did not know if the transaction would have any connection with his company.

E. W. Edwards, president of the Paragon Oil Company, announced yesterday that his company will be sold to the Mellon interests for about $10,000,000. Edwards said that the offer was made by the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh and that stockholders will be asked to approve the deal at a meeting on June 24.

The Paragon Oil Company, in addition to its substantial refining operations, owns approximately 500 retail marketing outlets, 700 tank cars and a net work of pipe lines.

Recently it was reported that the Shell Union Oil Corporation was also negotiating for the control of the company.

LOCAL STORES' SALES GAIN

Pittsburgh department store sales during April showed an increase over sales of April last year, exactly double that of the average made by other stores throughout the country, Federal Reserve Board figures show.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Department store sales for April were 6 per cent larger than in the corresponding month a year ago, according to reports to the Federal Reserve System from 659 stores in 267 cities. The board explained that the increase reflected in part the fact that the date of Easter, which was very late this year, April 20.

Total sales from January 1 to April 30 were 4 per cent smaller this year than last year.

Electric Bond & Share May List Issue on 'Big Board.'

Wall Street expects that the forthcoming annual report of the Electric Bond and Share Company, due to be made public in the next few days, will suggest the likelihood of an early application to list its stock on the big board. It is understood that the document will be an unusually comprehensive affair, setting forth much more in the way of information than the public has been accustomed to receiving in the past. The stock has long been one of the prime favorites among curb issues, and, if as believed, it is destined to change its domicile, that exchange will have reason for no small regrets.

Report was current in usually well-posted circles in Wall Street to the effect that the Radio Corporation deal with General Electric and Westinghouse, involving the transfer of certain assets of those Companies to Radio in return for substantial blocks of Radio stock, has been definitely closed and transfers made. It was recalled that at the annual meeting early this month the head of Radio told shareholders that such action would not be taken without advance notice being given the Department of Justice, which has instituted suits in the Federal Court to test the legality of the deal. Radio officials have gone on record as welcoming such a test, believing they are within their rights.

Pullman Company was forced to absorb unusually heavy selling in the course of yesterday under weight of which it yielded to new low ground for the year. There was no particular news to explain the weakness here, but the selling was quite persistent even though offerings were quite well absorbed. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that the weakness could be readily explained by the slack in railway equipment business as well as the reduced volume of travel which must reasonably be reflected in the earnings of the company.

Directors of Standard Brands, Inc., voted payment of the regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share due at this time. Rumor had been current a week or so back that the company might be moved to omit payments temporarily in order to conserve its cash resources in the interest of shareholders. This theory resulted from reported disappointing nature of earnings. But from the favorable action taken by directors, it is strongly indicated that they are not greatly concerned with the outlook. Rather it is suggested that prospects are probably better than generally believed.

General Motors in the past two sessions lost some of its recent buoyancy, but was said to have been well taken on all recessions. Many students of the motor stocks are confident that General Motors will sell somewhat higher before the end of the year. They point to the diversified lines of company's activities and assert that the slackening of automobile production will be made up to a fair degree from other branches.

Activity has again cropped out in Johns-Manville after a long period of dullness. The current move is attributed to the fact that prospects for the building industry are growing brighter and company's new products should help to offset somewhat the slack in general business. There are only 750,-000 shares of the stock and total surplus now exceeds the outstanding common shares.

Initial Dividends on New Republic Steel

CLEVELAND, O., May 29.—Directors of the recently formed Republic Steel Corporation declared initial dividends on both preferred and common stock. On the 6 per cent cumulative preferred they declared a dividend of 1½ per cent, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 12.

A dividend of $1 a share covering a period from May 1 to August 1 was declared on the common. In addition, a dividend of 24 cents a share was declared covering a period from April 6, when the corporation was formed, to April 30. The common dividends are payable August 1 to stockholders of record July 12.

REPUBLIC GETS LARGE ORDER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 29.—Republic Steel Corporation has received an order for 9,240 tons of 10-inch steel pipe, totalling $540,000 in value, in addition to another recent order for $100,000 worth of building pipe. These awards are in line with general improvement in the steel tube industry in the past 30 days, with leading producers sharing in new business. The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company is increasing steel production in anticipation of heavier operations in its pipe mills, on orders already in its possession.

Republic is installing the second in its group of mills to produce steel pipe by the electric welding process. This unit is scheduled to get into commercial production in June. The first unit of this kind, producing small diameter pipe, has been in steady operation for several months.

Improvement in the pipe industry is the bright spot in finished steel at present, and new pipe business will provide the two leading district makers with enough tonnage to operate their plants at a satisfactory rate over the next two months.

Youngstown makers expect to supply some of the pipe for the $40,000,000 natural gas line to extend from the Texas Panhandle to supply communities in Missouri, Kansas, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

Markets Observe Memorial Day Tomorrow

Banks, stock exchanges and the principal commodity markets throughout the country will be closed tomorrow in observance of Memorial Day. The stock exchanges and many of the commodity markets will remain closed on Saturday also for a special holiday, but the banks will be open for the customary Saturday schedules. The Chicago Board of Trade will also be open Saturday. All markets will resume operations at the usual hours on Monday.

Farm Commodity Prices Dip in May

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The Department of Agriculture price index of leading agricultural commodities indicates that prices on May 15 were at the lowest level for the month since 1921. Potatoes, apples and cottonseed were the only commodities to show a gain in unit value over April 15 figures. Largest losses from preceding month were shown by poultry and poultry products, grains, meat animals and dairy products.

BELLE VERNON PLANT BUSY

CHARLEROI, Pa., May 29.—The Belle Vernon plant of the American Window Glass Company, with increased orders, is working at capacity production, its three turns employing 350 men.

Manufacture by the new Foucault method for drawing "white" glass has been pronounced a success and orders are far ahead of production. The new process supplants the necessity for cylinder drawing and subsequent cutting, flattening and treating.

Pure Oil Co. Plans Syracuse Terminal

SYRACUSE, May 29.—Establishment of a central terminal in Syracuse is planned by Pure Oil Company, which is negotiating for acquisition of business and assets of the C. E. Mills Oil Company here. Unofficial estimates place the consideration at $1,000,000.

The Mills Company operates 10 filling stations in Syracuse and vicinity and eight more in Onondaga County. It has a bulk plant with eight acres of land near the barge canal with storage facilities for from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 gallons.

15,000 TO GET EMPLOYMENT

CHICAGO, May 29.—(AP.)—Expansion of two activities of the Grigsby-Grunow Company will provide employment for 15,000 people within the next 60 days, William G. Grunow, president has announced.

Payrolls aggregating $2,000,000 a month will be drawn by 10,000 employes who will be put to work in the radio division to step up production to 4,000 sets daily, the announcement said. The additional men will be employed in initial production of units in the refrigerator division with a monthly payroll of $1,000,000.

President Grunow said advance orders were on hand from the company's sales outlets for 1,000,-000 refrigerators.

May Offer German Loan on Monday

NEW YORK, May 29.—Unconfirmable reports in Wall Street say that the American portion of the German annuity loan under the Young plan, will be offered next Monday. The report fixed $85,000,000 as the amount, 5½ per cent as the interest rate and 1965 as the maturing date.

STOCK PRICES CONTINUE TO DRIFT UP

Market Makes Leisurely And Somewhat Halting Progress—Traders Wait

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP.)—Stock prices continued their leisurely and somewhat halting upward progress today, as professional operators, scanning the rather meager industrial news at hand, still appeared to feel that the weight of the evidence favored substantial business recovery within a few months. Traders by and large, however, were waiting to be shown.

Perhaps the least susceptible of bullish interpretation was the news from the steel industry but steel shares as a group displayed a firm tone as their sponsors felt that pipe line and heavy construction projects, together with indications of a fair average rate of operation by motor manufacturers, would tend to stabilize conditions during the summer months.

SCRAP DECLINES

Nevertheless, steel scrap prices continue to decline with further cuts of 25 cents a ton appearing at Chicago and Pittsburg. Dow Jones & Co.'s average price for eight important iron and steel products declined this week to $46.99 a ton from $47.24 and this average did not include cuts in sheets, slabs and forging billets.

Such reports of merchandise sales during May as are now available, however, indicate that the month's record will not be far from that of last year, which would be regarded in Wall street as highly favorable. The April comparisons were not conclusive, owing to the late date of Easter this year.

Speculation for the rise was resumed in merchandise stocks today for the first time this week.

ADVERTISING GAINS

It was accepted as a particularly good augury that one of the largest publishing houses' bookings for advertising for the second half of the year are now larger than at this time a year ago.

The rail shares, however, continued to reflect light movement of freight. On the basis of information now at hand, it is estimated that April gross for all Class I carriers was approximately 12 per cent below April, 1929, as compared to a drop of 12½ per cent in March.

Trading was restricted, of course, by the fact that the market closes today for the rest of the week, and many traders, in anticipation of a dull day, left town yesterday. The preparation for three-day closing seem to call out as much short covering as profit-taking, despite the moderate progress made this week. Some of the swift moving shares made substantial gains.

MANY GAINS MADE

Worthington Pump sold up more than 7 points to above 167, a gain in excess of 100 points from the year's low. Columbian Carbon made a similar advance. In the steels, Spang-Chalfant, normally not very active, rose several points in active trading. Shares gaining 3 points or more included American Tobacco B, Macy, Sears Roebuck, Safeway Stores, Jewel Tea and A. M. Byers.

Several of the food shares were well bought. National Biscuit, Bordens and National Dairy reaching the best levels of the year. Other shares making fair progress included Air Reduction, Proctor & Gamble, Drug, Inc., Curtiss Publishing, Goodyear, General Asphalt and United Cigar Stores preferred. In the rails, Chesapeake and Ohio dropped 8 points, then rallied moderately.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 29.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 2 points. There was a little selling on lower Liverpool cables but this was absorbed by buying on reports of showers in Oklahoma and Arkansas, where dry weather is wanted. Business was very quiet and barely active, and the market closed the evening up of accounts in preparation for the afternoon's cover the three-day week end. Selling of July against purchases of October was about the only trading feature. July eased off to 14.00 or 7 points net lower, while the new October contract at 14.87 showed a net loss of 4 points. The market was within a point or two of these figures at the end of the first half hour. Liverpool reported that trade calling had somewhat eased American selling in that market and said that Manchester was depressed. A private report was issued pointing to a decrease of 2.3 per cent in acreage and planting. Private estimates of the crop at 69.1 against 69.5 at this time a year ago.

Apprehensions of showery weather in the South over the holidays led to a little more buying later in the morning. Trading was not active or general, but offerings were comparatively light and prices worked up to 14.12c for July, or 2 points net higher. While new crop positions sold about 5 to 10 points above yesterday's closing quotations, with the new October contract reaching to 14.91c, the market was quiet but steady, within a point or two of these quotations at midday.

LIVERPOOL, May 29.—Cotton—Spot dull; prices 1 cheaper. American strict good middling 9.60; good middling 9.14; strict middling 8.91; middling 8.59; strict low middling 8.31; low middling 7.79; strict good ordinary 7.09; good ordinary 6.69. Sales 4,000 bales, including 1,400 American. Receipts 9,000, American 3,200. Futures opened quiet and steady: May 5.18; July 8.07; October 7.69; December 7.80; January, 7.80; March, 7.95; May 7.99.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 29.—Except for the usual evening-up operations that precede a holiday period, there was little activity on the New York Curb Exchange today. There was covering in some of the recent short lines and moderate profit-taking here and there but few new commitments were made.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

MERGER NEED SEEN IN RAIL SLACKNESS

Consolidations Help to Eliminate Duplication of Service, W. L. Ross Says

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, May 29.—The current slack period in railroading emphasizes the desirability of well conceived mergers, according to W. L. Ross, president of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad (the Nickel Plate), one of the key lines in the proposed Van Sweringen consolidation.

"The situation now with us seems to me to add impetus to the desirability of large scale railroad consolidations. Mergers help in the elimination of duplication in facilities and services and they offer the most available means both for cutting down costs of operations and for improving operations at the same time. The necessity for economical operation is brought home with greater force in slack periods."

Incidentally Mr. Ross is one of those who believes that a turn for the better has come in the general business situation. He said:

"The low spot, I believe, is now behind us. The second quarter probably will be somewhat more encouraging and I look for a decided and sustained improvement throughout the three-month period."

LONG DISTANCE TRAVEL

In regard to passenger traffic, Mr. Ross pointed:

"My view is that whatever opportunities exist are with relation to long distance travel, though competition of the private automobile and bus will make itself increasingly felt for some time to come. Taking the long view of it, it is my conviction that the traverler accustomed to journeying to distant points by automobile will eventually come around to the realization that the railroads, after all, offer superior comforts and other advantages as compared with motor cars. I am less optimistic with regard to the outlook in the realm of short-distance railway passenger service."

Queried as to whether the Nickel Plate would cut down on its expenditures in conformity with the slump in net income, the president of the road added:

"The program of the Nickel Plate road calls for 100 per cent maintenance in keeping with traffic and the other conditions. Common sense and good practice caution against overmaintenance. The maintenance schedule and the program of improvements ought to be elastic in the sense that they adjust themselves to the business conditions and the traffic moving over the rails."

FORECASTS IN ERROR

Desiring to make a scientific checkup on the inated claims of the economic forecasting services, Garfield V. Cox, of the University of Chicago, has undertaken to check up the soothsayings against subsequent actual events. He found that the business fortune tellers functioned unusually inefficiently last year, indicating that only one of the important forecasting services was "positively helpful." Three others were classified as "slightly helpful" and two as "neutral."

In commenting on the batting averages for 1929, Prof. Cox said:

"Two factors appear to have accounted largely for the relatively low scores of the services for 1929. One of these was the expectation that high interest rates would prevent expansion of business in the early months of 1929, and might even produce contraction.

"The other source of error in the forecasts for 1929 concerned the relation between production and construction. A majority of the services believed that the rate of industrial production in the first quarter of the year was so far above normal as to be outrunning consumption, and that a decline in production would therefore occur in the spring and summer.

"The high level of industrial activity was due largely to the boom in automobile manufacturing and related lines, and although the decline in this field of activity did not come until September, subsequent events suggest that the services had estimated the market more accurately than had the manufacturers, and that the forecasts of the services proved wrong because the manufacturers continued to overproduce."

ANTICIPATE FORECAST

Of course, the irony of forecasting is that, if the public believes the soothsayer it will anticipate the event, and thus defeat the forecast—at least from the standpoint of a time schedule.

Statistical indicators show little change in May from April. Shifts as among the various industries have been somewhat irregular. The automobile industry has parallelled the April pace, but the steel industry which should show a seasonal gain in May over April, shaded off somewhat. Some of the food industries, especially flour and sugar meltings, have shown better than the customary seasonal variation.

Economists used to complain about the niggardliness of nature. But nowadays observers are wondering about the perils of plenty. For example, Walter E. Edge, retired business man and American ambassador to France, recently remarked that the world's main ailment is over-production.

Pipe Mills Book Large Gas Line Orders

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

STEEL MILL PRODUCTION in general has shown little change from the early part of the month, but the makers of steel pipe have been steadily accumulating tonnages on their order books and may be expected to operate at a very satisfactory rate during the third quarter of the year.

Widespread projects for additional natural gas pipe lines have been a predominant factor in filling the order books of pipe mills. Very substantial tonnages have been placed in the past few weeks and several additional large orders are expected in the near future.

The demand for seamless tubing for automobiles continues rather light. Buying of pipe in the oil fields has been negligible except for shipment to Oklahoma, where several companies are still drilling actively in a new field. The dullness in demand for oil field pipe reflects the inability of the industry to make any progress in reducing either crude oil or gasoline stocks and the continuation of stringent proration measures.

Pipe Companies Benefit

COMPANIES MAKING PIPE will be in favorable positions during the balance of the present year, but wide discrepancies will be apparent in their earnings. Large line pipe orders which will keep plants operating for several months are highly prized. Naturally such business is placed at quotations considerably below the general market.

Some of the pipe companies have been accumulating orders regardless of price. This practice has been apparent in their earnings for the first quarter, some of which did not show to advantage. Other companies have considered the price concessions necessary to obtain large orders to be too severe and have contented themselves with smaller tonnages. Where these organizations have been successful in getting a moderate volume of business without making great concessions, they have been showing profits which are quite satisfactory in view of the general state of the steel business.

Prices Still Uncertain

LOWER PRICES FOR PIPE, which are prevailing on all orders, small as well as large, will tend to counteract many of the benefits of increased business for the second and third quarters.

It is quite probable that most pipe companies will report smaller profits for the second quarter than for the first, due to the price situation. In the third quarter the increased tonnages recently booked will start to exert a favorable effect. The profits to be shown in the balance of the year will depend largely on the quotations at which pipe has been sold.

Corporation Policy Changed

UNSTEADINESS IN QUOTATIONS on nearly all types of steel products is still prevalent. A contributing factor to the situation for several months has been an apparent change in the policy of the subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation.

In the past the corporation has always made a strong stand on prices and has not reduced its quotations until such action has been forced by the selling tactics of a large number of the independent competitors. The corporation seems to have become tired of trying to hold the market for the balance of the industry. It has shown a gerater disposition to meet competitive figures recently than at any time for many years.

ROLLING MILLS GIVEN HOLIDAY

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 29.—A considerable number of rolling mills in the Mahoning Valley will suspend today, to be idle the remainder of the week. Ordinarily, Valley mills do not suspend for this holiday, and many departments will continue operations as usual. During suspension of the rolling mill units, millwright crews will work extra turns on repairs.

Departments such as blast furnaces and by-product coke ovens, requiring continuous operation, will be unaffected, while pipe, hot strip mills and tin plate mills will function as usual.

An appraisal of operations during the first two months of the second quarter indicates a reduction in activity. As compared with average for the first quarter, shipments have been somewhat lower.

Second quarter earnings of the leading district producers will be below first quarter figures, not only because of smaller production, but due to price disturbance.

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Memorial Day'

Someone who sacrificed truth to poetic fancy wrote that it always rained on Memorial Day, and added, "Nature's tears."

He had it all wrong first as to there always being rain on that date, and again as to the "tears."

It is more a day of smiling tribute, tribute to the men who held their country to be worth grim battle or the Supreme Sacrifice.

On this Memorial Day the blue skies bright sun and warm breezes made it perfection.

Already there were veterans hurrying about in the streets, going to their appointed places—veterans in plenty of the World War, a considerable scattering of Spanish War veterans, and rarely here and there a bent, gray-bearded veteran of '62.

I was on my way to see one of the veterans, Jack Waters. Although it was a holiday I was going on a matter of business. Waters was superintendent for Crafett Brothers, noted construction engineers. I was connected with the firm and was going to get a little information necessary for a business conference.

I had known Jack Waters for many years, since away back when he came home from the Philippines after fighting savages and disease through the campaign. I didn't hurry because Jack Waters would not be going out with the veterans. He was hard-boiled and proud of it. Only a few of his intimates even knew that he had a good war record.

He used to say, "It's all washed up—why not put it behind us, forget it, and forge ahead with whatever is to be done today?"

And so when I reached his comfortable bachelor quarters I was not at all surprised to have him greet me wearing slippers and a frayed but comfortable old lounging robe.

There was an old-style trunk in the middle of his living room floor and many articles were scattered about it.

Cleaning Up

"What's this, Jack?" I asked, waving my hand toward the disorder. "Moving to the Ritz or something?"

He shook his head and smiled.

We sat down and talked business for a few minutes. It was comfortable in the big chair by the open window, with the sun slanting in and making grotesque splotches of light on the ancient trunk.

"Go ahead, Jack—it's comfortable here." I said after he had given me the needed information in a few terse words.

He turned to his trunk.

Every move seemed efficient. Jack Waters was always like that. His only interest in life seemed to be to get done as speedily as possible whatever was to be done. Whether the construction company was putting up a six or 60-story building, Jack was always the same—quick, hard, driving—getting the most and the best out of the men.

He picked out a stack of old letters and read one. Then he tossed them in a pile over by the coal grate.

"Letters from her," he said. "Man's a fool to keep such reminders."

He meant that they were letters from his wife, who had died long ago.

Then he took out a bolo and tossed it aside.

"I suppose you cut through many a mile of jungle maze with that old sticker," I said.

"Sure did, but it's all out—all I'll ever cut, so why keep the thing?"

Other war relics came from the trunk and went into the discard pile.

A few business papers, a few technical books and an atlas went to make up the pile of things to be kept.

Then his uniform complete—tunic, trousers, leggings and hat—came from the trunk. To my surprise these were tossed into the discard pile.

I made no comment. He had more than done his duty by his country in the uniform. His point of view seemed to be, "duty done, forget it."

And then he took out a little box tied with what looked like a bit of coated fishing line. He stared at the box and then opened it. I sat so near that I could see what it contained as he poked over the contents.

Face Softens

He closed the box and placed it with the letters and other things to be thrown out or burned in the grate. I could make no comment. Jack sighed and turned swiftly back to the trunk.

More stuff came out of the trunk.

He had finished, finally. The pile by the grate was a large one. The pile by the trunk, to be kept, was very small.

He started to put back the books and paused. He reached down into the trunk and picked out a card.

I could see that it was some motto card, but could not read it then.

Jack stared long at it. Perhaps I imagined it, but I thought that he paled a little under his bronzed skin, and I thought that there was a sagging of the jaw, a tremble about the corners of the mouth.

The card didn't go into either pile. He finally put it into the pocket of the dressing gown, I was unduly curious as to what memories the card stirred.

There was something strange in the eyes of Jack Waters—eyes usually clear and hard, quick-seeing and unfaltering. How far back through the years was he staring? Was it moisture in his eyes or the way the light fell on them?

I do not believe he realized my presence for the moment. Slowly he withdrew the card. Perhaps there was moisture in his eyes, for he turned the card to the light. I couldn't help but see it, and I looked because I unblushingly admit I was curious to know what would stir him to such an extent.

"God Bless Daddy on his birthday. From Estelle."

Scorns Hero Worship

Quickly he thrust the card back into his pocket again and turned to the trunk. Again he was grim, hard-headed Jack Waters. He stopped to put the books back when there came a knock at his door. He crossed and opened it.

"Hello, Old Top!" came a cheery voice.

A man in uniform entered, Spanish War veteran's uniform. Waters greeted him cordially and introduced him. The man was Sergt. Burke, who had served in the Philippines with him.

"Make yourself comfortable, Jim," Jack said.

"Breaking camp, Old Timer?" Burke asked.

"Hey, Jack," Burke said, suddenly, "it's near noon. How come you're not inuniform?"

"Not in the service now, Jim—no bugle calls to answer. I put that stuff all behind me after my last service in the Islands—it's all dead and buried," Jack explained.

"Yes, Jack," Burke said, quietly, "dead and buried, mostly. Say, do you know what day this is?"

"Friday. Why?"

"Oh, come now, Jack, snap out of the granite pose for once, get into the old uniform and march with us today. It's the least you can do. All of us who are left and are able are marching to the cemeteries at 1 o'clock to decorate the graves."

"Nothing doing," Jack said, sharply.

Burke looked at me. I shrugged by shoulders. If he knew Jack he ought to know that his "no" didn't mean anything else in the world.

"Aw, come now, Jack," Burke pleaded, "we both served. It's up to us to pay tribute to the boys who never marched back."

Jack sat down in a big chair. His big hand smacked the arm of that chair. "Don't mention that hellish country to me, Jim. We were there all right, all right, but why squawk about it? This hullabaloo, the fanfares over Memorial Day, may be all right for hero-worshipers—and that leaves me out. Sentiment? A lot of hooey!"

"Sorry you feel that way, old man," he said. "Wish you'd hop into the old uniform and get in line with us. I'll look for you, anyway."

Changes Mind

Burke left.

Jack Waters took some newspapers, crumpled them, put them in the grate and lighted them. Then he turned to stoop and pick up the letters. From his flapping lounging robe the card dropped.

I looked out of the window.

Jack leaned over to pick up the letters and saw the card that had fallen from his robe pocket. Even as he did so he was muttering, "Memorial Day—humph."

But he glanced down at the card again.

He stood there as if fascinated, staring down.

Following the long roll of the drum came the lively marching air of the drum corps, the shrill notes and the drum beats.

Then he turned back again.

Staring up at him, as it were, beneath the handwriting of the little daughter now so long dead, was the motto:

"WE ARE NEVER PARTED SO LONG AS MEMORY LIVES."

"What time is it?" he asked.

I told him.

"Will you get me a taxi?"

"Surely, Jack," I answered. I went down and got the taxi, then went up to his quarters to notify him.

He was just fastening the last button of his tunic!

I saw him slip the card into the breast pocket of his tunic.

'SO FAR, SO GOOD' INSISTS FRISBY

WASHINGTON—Plagued and taunted by small boys concerning his Law Enforcement Drive, Congressman Frisby turned suddenly yesterday and delivered a scathing rebuke to his detractors.

"As a matter of fact," he told the urchins, "the Frisby Drive is going over big. We intend to offer prizes to citizens who can observe the most laws in fifteen minutes (daylight saving time). Many of the merchants are cooperating with artistic window displays. The drug stores, especially, are making displays to tie-up with the Frisby campaign."

Memorial Day Spirit Is One of Consecration

There will be no issue of the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow, Memorial Day.

Memorial Day!

It still belongs to veterans of the Civil War. Even the younger veterans of other wars feel that. But into their hands the white-haired elder men, the nation's saviors of another generation and heroes of all generations since they made their great sacrifice, are placing the flags and flowers with which to beautify cemeteries. Younger men are rapidly becoming the inheritors of the task of carrying out one of our most sublime ceremonies.

Memorial Day!

Still, as it always has been, a day for recalling the deeds of soldiers who have passed on, it becomes each year a more hallowed occasion, with its ever more sharply pointed reminder of the vanishing of the thronged lines of Decoration Day parades of yore. Year after year they show fewer and fewer of the men who once wore the blue so proudly. As Lincoln said at Gettysburg, we do not—cannot—hallow the ground where they now lie. We concentrate it anew every year in our memories and symbolize the consecration as we mingle the souls of flowers with the perfumed spiritual atmosphere of last earthly bed of those who are gone.

Memorial Day!

Those who are old enough see again the great throngs of veterans in blue leave their daily occupations to give a thought to the significance of the conflict they waged and to strew their flowers. A younger generation sees again the youthful army marching off to combat with Spain. Those of that generation and a still younger one see again the flower of our land take up the torch of liberty to bear it to foreign shores against a European foe. The remnants of all these defenders we see now united in honoring those who did not come back from these mighty and solemn enterprises and those who have since moved on to perpetual peace.

So let us all tomorrow honor those who carry on for themselves and their absent comrades!

Four-Five Deadly Hour For Motoring in State

"Motorists should not start out for pleasure jaunts between the hours of four and five in the afternoon if they believe in safety first."

The advice is from the Pittsburgh Motor Club, based on official state figures stating that more accidents occur in these 60 minutes than any other in the 24 hours of the day. For the first four months of this year the total of accidents in Pennsylvania happening between four and five o'clock in the afternoon resulted in the death of 56 persons and the injury of 1,210 others.

Although four to five appears to be a fatal hour, we do not think simply avoiding motor activity in that hour will remedy the situation. It merely will change the deadly period to some other point in time. Yet it will be well to remember that hour and to be extremely careful. That means you must think for yourself and for the other fellow—who may not be thinking—too.

Another thing to think about—Saturday, Sunday and Monday are the more dangerous days for motorists.

Laugh

And Grow Healthy.

The old proverb, "laugh and grow fat," should read, "laugh and grow healthy," according to Johns Hopkins University scientists who have spent hours of research in their laboratories to prove it.

Laughter, they say, stimulates respiration and circulation, increasing the blood pressure and sending more blood to the head by breaking up every train of thinking and every sustained activity of the body.

That is merely another way of saying that a good laugh sweeps away the cobwebs from the brain, gives you a fresh start on a perplexing problem, acts as a sort of mental and physical cocktail, with no harmful after effects.

Thus the clown shares with the physician a place among the benefactors of humanity and the comic strips of a newspaper are as valuable as the column of health hints. Goldsmith's famous line about "the loud laugh that speaks the vacant mind" is all wrong. So is the phrase, "a short life and a merry one."

To live long and die happy don't take anything too seriously—except the need of not being too serious.

Kind Words of War

From the President's Brother.

President Hoover's brother, Theodore, dean of the Stanford School of Engineering, says:

"The human race develops by war . . . Races perish by peace . . . The pacifist errs in assuming that peace is desirable . . . Culture increases by the use of weapons . . ."

Interesting thoughts from an interesting man. Especially interesting when you recall that President Hoover is a Quaker, and presumably Dean Hoover is also.

They remind you of the writings of Von Bernhardi and other Prussians of the old days before 1914. They will not please many millions of Americans, including, perhaps, the President.

That does not prove, of course, that Dean Hoover is wrong.

PA:SMN

HEADQUARTERS
BOSTON, MASS.

May 8, 1930.

Dear Mr. Hearst:

You will probably be surprised to get this letter of thanks for your great support and the interest you have given to the cause of the CONSTITUTION Campaign. I shall never forget how in 1926 you gave the services of Mr. Charles Grant Miller as an organizer to get school boards of different cities to suspend their rules and to allow the children in the schools to hold patriotic exercises in behalf of the Frigate CONSTITUTION, and to make collections of money to help out the rebuilding.

The money received from the school children was a little less than 25 per cent of the total net receipts devoted to the rebuilding of the CONSTITUTION. When the campaign lagged, Congress came to the rescue and has provided the balance of the money needed to finish the rebuilding of the ship.

I know your great interest in all patriotic efforts for our country, and I want you to know how much I, as well as the National Save Old Ironsides Committee, appreciate the great support and continued interest which you have shown.

With kind regards,

Very sincerely yours,

Philip Andrews,
Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy,
Chairman, National Committee,
SAVE OLD IRONSIDES FUND.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst,
San Simeon,
California.

The frigate Constitution, affectionately and more frequently called "Old Ironsides," and to which the above letter refers, was launched in Boston in 1797.

Her copper bolts and sheathing were made by Paul Revere and her first flag was made by Betsy Ross.

She was one of the first naval vessels built by the United States, and built at a time when we were not consulting the British as to what we might and might not build. Had we done so then, there might not of been any United States of America.

Her more familiar name was given her in the engagement with the British warship Guerriere. One of the largest missiles the enemy could fire had struck the side of the Constitution, but the plank was so hard the shot fell out and sank into the sea.

"Her sides are made of iron!" shouted the crew. "See the shot fall out." From that moment she was known as "Old Ironsides."

In the War of 1812 she captured the British warships Guerriere, Java, Picton, Cyane, Levant and fifteen others.

She broke the spell of British superiority at sea and turned the tide to American victory and independence.

Still earlier she had stopped the tribute the United States had been paying the African pirates.

She is floating history, American history, and the fact that she is still floating is proof of the genius with which she was built as well as of her place in the affections of the national heart.

Admiral Andrews' letter is an appreciation of the part played by William Randolph Hearst and the Hearst newspapers in the patriotic campaign for the fourth reconstruction of the Constitution, or, as she will always be known in the annals of America, "Old Ironsides."

JOHANNES KEPLER

By Archibald Henderson

There is something fascinating about the career of Kepler. He was a great astronomer and generalizer. He formulated three famous and indispensable laws, and won for himself the title of "legislator of the heavens."

On the other hand, he was a mystic, and was obsessed by the most curious notions and superstitions peculiar to the age. The great quality which marks him was tireless investigation, endless computation, the persistence to continue experimenting, often in a haphazard sort of way, until he discovered the laws which governed the movements of the heavenly bodies.

Born in Weil in Wuertemburg, December 21, 1571, he passed a miserable youth, even serving for several years as pot-boy in his father's tavern. After studying for a time in a monastery school, he proceeded, in 1589, to the University of Teubingen. He embraced eagerly the Copernican theory and at the age of twenty-three this astronomical enthusiast was elected to a professorship of astronomy at the Styrian University of Gratz.

Kepler has been termed the mystic champion of inductive research. With his mystic inclinations he sought some strange, illuminating correspondence between planetary distances and geometry.

After various abortive attempts to find such correspondences from planes, he conceived the fantastic idea of utilizing the five regular solids—with 4, 6, 8, 12 and 20 faces, respectively. The ingenious and absurd idea occurred to him to place the five regular solids in the spaces between the six planets.

He started with the Earth's orbit as a line on a sphere, says Harvey Gibson in his "Two Thousand Years of Science," and placed around it a dodecahedron whose angles gave him points on an outer sphere which was the plane of the orbit of Mars. Then he fitted around that sphere a tetrahedron whose angles gave points on the plane of the orbit of Jupiter. Outside this he placed a cube giving eight points on the plane of the orbit of Saturn. Returning to the Earth he fitted within the sphere of its orbit an icosahedron which enclosed a sphere giving the plane of the orbit of Venus, and inside that again an octahedron which bounded the orbit of Mercury.

It was an extraordinarily complex and ingenious conception, but had no scientific value whatever. There is no scientific relation between the five regular solids and the orbits of the planets. A comparison between the reasonably accurate figures of Copernicus and those of Kepler's singular scheme explain why Kepler thought he had made a great discovery.

	Jupiter	Mars	Earth	Venus	Mercury
Kepler	577	233	196	765	707

Kepler said, "the intense pleasure I have received from this discovery can never be told in words."

This would-be discovery was published in a book entitled, "Mysterium Cosmographicum or World Secret," when Kepler was only 25. It created a profound sensation, and at a single bound Kepler found himself famous. It is a singular commentary on the mysticism and superstition of the age that this book was given a reception far more enthusiastic and impressive than was given to later works, which contained his great scientific discoveries.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

Don't let people become bad habits.

Strange—how rarely we think of people as "habits." Drinking — or drug addiction — or silly things, like chewing our nails or sniffling—easy enough to recognize these as habits. But people—they're different. They're something outside ourselves. "They can't become a habit." But they CAN—the most subtle and vicious of habits!

Drunkards return to the whisky that is wrecking them because they've "grown used to it."—need it to brace them up." Addicts seek their "snow" and "hop" as an escape from the reality which they have not the courage to face. Many of us acquire the habit of certain people for exactly the same reason—using them as props—as escapes—hanging on to them because we've "grown used to them."

People, as a habit, have wrecked far more lives than drink or dope.

Thousands of young women marry because they've grown so used to some man that they do not know how to get along without him. They do not really love him or need him. But he has become a comfortable fixture in their lives. So they drift into matrimony—and are then mutually disappointed and aggrieved when romance and ambition do not spring from such a union.

Thousands of young men stick in some industrial rut because "the boss" or the "office gang" have become a habit to them. Outside the office, adventure waits—and the young men promise themselves that some day they'll "pull up stakes and take a new chance." But the days pass—and the vision fades—and the young men stay trapped in their habit.

Others, who should have left the home nest at 20, stay on and on in a relationship which grows meaningless and bitter with the empty years, because Mother or Dad became a habit too hard to break.

And wives cling to worthless husbands, and husbands to worthless wives, and whole families to worthless neighborhoods for the same reason—because the association has become an entangling habit, deadening, demoralizing.

IN NEARLY EVERY LIFE SOME PERSON IS A BAD HABIT. But, of course, none of us frankly acknowledge this fact. We have a thousand fine-sounding alibis and explanations if questioned. We call it "love"—or "friendship" — or "common sense"—or "our duty." And love and friendship and sense and duty, are indeed beautiful and necessary things. But the truth is, that most of our entanglements are based on no such noble impulse. We're not really fond of each other—or good for each other—and we're probably wrecking each other's chances and living a dog's life together. BUT WE'RE TOO LAZY AND COWARDLY AND FUZZY-MINDED TO BREAK LOOSE. IT'S SO MUCH EASIER TO STAY OUT AND LAY ALL THE BLAME FOR OUR MISERIES ON THE OTHER FELLOW!

Text For Today

Only fear the Lord and serve him in truth with all your heart: for consider how great things he hath done for you.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE—By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells

There is every graduation in this inequality. We may have quite equal cells conjugating or we may find very considerable inequality in the size of the conjugating cells. Thus in the simplest phase of the sexual process that are neither male nor female: there is a sexual process without distinction of sex.

But as a further development of the appearance of the differentiation of the conjugating elements into larger and smaller there presently appears a differentiation of the parent bodies into those producing active and those producing larger conjugating cells. These are the incipient phases of sexual differentiation.

H. G. Wells

In the lower animals and in plants sexual reproduction exists, as we have seen, as an alternative method to asexual, but in the vertebrata reproduction is exclusively sex-ridden. Before we can produce new individuals there has to be this actual blending of the substance of two parents.

Even in our own species this is plainly an anti-reproductive thing, for if we could proliferate asexually it would take only one to do what now needs two, and we could multiply twice as fast.

Thus in the course of Evolution the two originally distinct and antagonistic processes have come together and become inseparably blended.

Evidently there is a riddle here, and one of very profound importance. There must be something very important about this sexual process, this mixing of the stuff of different stocks.

What it is we shall presently discover, when the basal principles of heredity have been set forth.

SECTION FOUR.

The Gametes, or Marrying Cells.

In such great animals as we are there is a rhythm in the life-history, an alternation between two phases.

First there is the human body that we know as a familiar fact of every day.

Then, proliferated inside the body, are the gametes, that is to say, the sperms and eggs which are to unite in pairs to form new people.

The proliferation of the gametes is our method of multiplying: their subsequent union is the anti-reproductive process which, as we have just seen, is here entangled with propagation.

In many other animals the independence of the gametes is more obvious than it is in ourselves. They are almost like a separate generation alternating with the principal bodyphase as the various phases of the liver-fluke alternate.

In many marine invertebrates the sperms and eggs are spawned in vast misty clouds into the sea, where the sperms swim about and unite with the eggs in a perfectly independent manner.

The product of the union of two gametes is called a zygote. Mr. Everyman, for example, is a zygote, and so are his dog and his canary and the flies on the window of his study and the cabbages in his back garden.

All of the familiar living creatures of every day are zygotes. Let us turn to the less familiar gametes with which they alternate.

The egg, the female gamete, is almost invariably a large cell. Even the smallest eggs, such as those of placental mammals, are large as cells go. The human ovum is almost a thousand times the bulk of an average human tissue-cell.

Most eggs when ripe are passive and spherical, their only visible activity being to send out a welcoming cone of protoplasm which engulfs the first-come sperm and draws it into the egg, and many lack even this.

The size to which the single egg-cell may grow is enormous. There are small eggs, like those of some mammals and flowering plants, under a tenth of a millimeter (1-250th of an inch) across: those of frogs and newts, the size of small shot: others grow as big as peas, like those of trout or some land-snails, as big as damsons, like those of cuttle-fish or pigeons; and so eventually to the huge eggs of dogfish and crocodiles, of swans and ostriches.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The New Bank

World Bank opened last week with branches where you least expect 'em.

We don't quite grasp the theme song of this international merger but we have been on the hot end of some checks that could fly the Atlantic without difficulty.

"Bugs" Baer

But when we drop a dollar into a bank in New York or Los Angeles we don't want it to bob up again wearing a beard in Moscow.

A fast boat can overtake a slow check. But why should we indorse a man's note in Chicago and then chase him through the Suez Canal for revenge?

What has a loan in Pittsburgh got to do with Vienna, Cape Town or Friedrichshafen?

When a bank messenger is stuck up in a bustling African oasis by Rassuli Abba Dabba's hoodlums does a Memphis or a Madrid cop dash out to get Abba's thumbprints on a cocoanut?

We should have thought this business over and under before getting tangled up in a latitudinal and longitudinal scrimmage that will cause us to travel five thousand miles on a camel just to start a run on a Zulu bank.

So far as finances is concerned Voliva is right when he says the world is flat. When we put money in a bank we don't want all its resources to be in souvenir post cards.

However, the World Bank is now a vulcanized fact. You put your collateral on deposit and a man in Indo-China lends it to a Bulgarian syndicate to buy grease for a channel swimmer.

Nobody knows just what happens to money after a banker starts counting it. It seems to evaporate in transit.

We know that they give you a bank book which you attach to the inside pocket of your vest with a safety pin that you stole off of Gallant Fox's hoss blanket.

But, after that there seems to be an agreement if the banker doesn't investigate your vest you're not supposed to investigate his bank.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

Everybody in town knowed that that Jim Hampton had married his wife on account of her dough. She was awful rich, but she looked terrible.

Well, he'd only been married a week when he came around to the Meadowbrook club and says to the boys, "Say, I got luck! Struck oil on my Kansas farm!"

One of his old friends stuck out his hand and says, "Too bad, old top! Only one week too late!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 29.—Blackmailing lawyers—and New York has passed its quota—use a threat of publicity as a leverage for shakedowns. And yet in nearly all the flimsy cases where victims refuse to be bluffed it is seldom their names are dragged across the front pages.

The first move of a crooked lawyer to terrorize is to send anonymous tips to news agencies that so-and-so has been sued. As a matter of routine the agency calls up the victim. This is, of course, alarming but means nothing. Respectable newspapers do not lend themselves to hi-jacking.

Hundreds of trumped-up extortions get no further than a news editor, who promptly tosses them in the waste basket. Most men and women who submit to extortive efforts do so to protect the innocent, a foolish gesture. Even if scandalized by headlines it is a few hours sensation. The public quickly forgets.

A famous comedian of 20 years ago was involved in one of the reddest scandals Broadway ever knew. A year ago he happened to pass a group at a cafe table. One of the party mentioned the affair. Seven out of the eight other Broadway-wise had no remembrance of it.

Indeed a writing gentleman has compiled a long list of names of those who were notoriously publicized in thick eight-column streamers during the past decade. During their ordeal, they were discussed pro and con almost everywhere.

Among them—and how many do you identify?—were: Ocey Snead, Joyce Hawley, Robert Reidt, Joseph Robin, Mary Fagan, Bruce Ismay, Herman Koehl, Wilbur Huston, Caesar Young, Harold Bride, Fred Beauvis, Alice Jones, Clarence V. T. Richeson, Constantin Dumba, Vera Cathcart and Mary Louise Spas.

Nothing achieves such sudden prominence and nothing vanishes so miraculously as scandal. But swollen, ugly headlines will likely strike terror so long as human nature is what it is. And that is why blackmail flourishes. Blackstone said years ago: "Only a fool pays a blackmailer."

One of my Dad's favorite stories concerned the Texas judge addressing a Mexican accused of horse theft. "Manuel Jose Santos," he atoned in a dreamy voice, "in a few weeks Spring will be upon us. The snows and ice will vanish and roses will perfume the glorious air. Earth will witness its annual miracle of transformation. All nature will be glad. But you, Manuel Jose Santos, you yellowbellied greaser, will not be here to see it, because you hang three weeks from today. Court's adjourned."

There are 13 Alfred Smiths in the Manhattan telephone directory and when mail is improperly addressed to any one of them it goes to the Alfred Smith. The ex-governor also has three doubles in New York constantly mistaken for him.

As though life is not difficult enough these sultry days an anonymous person has for ten days been sending in a senseless quotation. Today's offering is: "A small clock wrapped in a sweater will keep a dog from crying."

Every big department store has an official "fall guy" discharged at intervals to appease wrath of patrons with a grievance. When some employe incites the ire of a patron the blame is expertly jockeyed to the "fall guy." He is pictured as head of the department and responsible for whatever happened. In the presence of the customer he is severely rebuked and discharged. Then he takes a walk and returns for his next bounce.

The most beautiful bit of apocalyptic prose—and its source is unknown to me—I have read lately is: "Before the eyes can see they must be incapable of tears. Before the ear can hear it must have lost its sensitiveness. Before the voice can speak, it must have lost its power to wound. Before the soul can stand in the presence of the Master, its feet must be washed in the blood of the heart."

I have talked to many bootleggers and have yet to find one who is not shifty-eyed. Their manner is ingratiating, but I once interviewed one of America's most famous poisoners in a cell in Dayton, O., and he was the politest chesterfield I ever met.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Old Rug

It came from Persia, where skilled hands
Wove, hour by hour, the silken strands
Into the pattern as it stands.

With flowers of an eternal Spring
The Tree of Life is blossoming.
While on its branches ripe fruits cling.

The ape and tiger lithely creep
Along its limbs; in leafage deep
The white doves flit, the nestlings sleep.

In Persian round the border flow
Words Omar penned so long ago:
"Like water I came, like wind I go."

A dark-skinned weaver in Kirman
Dreamed much, the while his fingers ran,
Of rose and wine and caravan.

And something of those thoughts sublime,
The Fire of Spring, the Bird of Time,
Lives here in color and in rhyme.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Aren't you too prone to talk of what you have accomplished when you are among strangers or when you meet a new acquaintance?

Why should you think a casual meeting should cause personal interest in you and your affairs?

You are quite bored when you find yourself in conversation with a person who wants to tell you personal matters. Realizing this, why reverse the matter and become the bore?

Naturally they are more interested in what provides them a livelihood.

If you were engaged in the same sort of business perhaps they might listen with some degree of interest to the details you like to relate, but it will be because the wise man hopes to gain something of value from you.

He won't tell you much of his business, but he may listen, for he knows that if he can get you to talk long enough you may divulge something that ought to be kept secret in the interests of your business.

Then, perhaps, you are the bore who is continually asking questions of others about the lines they are following.

Only the man who wants to talk about himself and not a very successful one at that welcomes questions about his business.
